Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers

If you have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

LEGISLATORS HAVE BEEN FOUND GUILTY

Allegations Against Messrs. Berard, Bergevin and Mousseau Are Proven But No Blame Has Been Affixed to Any Other Members, Declare Reports of Committees —No Recommendations.

INVESTIGATION ENDED

QUEBEC, Feb. 13.—The committees of both the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council, in their reports, tabled in their respective Houses last night, find that the accusations of bribery made by The Montreal Daily Mail, on Jan. 21 last, against J. Octave Mousseau, former member of the Assembly, and Achille Bergevin and L. P. Berard, former members of the Legislative Council, have been fully proved.

The evidence says the report of the lower House proves that Mr. Mousseau received from the American detectives, Biddinger and Maloney, the sum of $4,150, in connection with the bill to incorporate the Montreal Fair Association of Canada. "The accusation made against Hon. Achille Bergevin and Hon. Louis Philippe Berard have been justified by the evidence," says the report of the special investigating committee of the Legislative Council.

Both reports refrained from comment generally. The report of the committee of the lower House, a much lengthier document than that presented to the upper House, however, states that they failed to find that the bill in question, as passed by the Legislature, contained "provisions which are extraordinary or prejudicial to the public interest. As regards the three officials of the Government, whose names came out during the course of the enquiry, the committee of the lower House states that no "proof whatever has been made against them." These three officials were not accused by The Daily Mail in any way.

The report of the lower House committee was not unanimous. One clause of it stated that Armand Lavergne, one of the members of the committee, wished to compel Mr. Beck to disclose "the names of any advocates who may have told him that they in their safes held receipts from certain members of the Legislature showing payments to them for services rendered in promoting the passage of bills, and that although such payments appeared to be for professional services, the, were none the less acts of bribery."

There was no debate on either report in the assembly or in the council. The latter body, on motion of Hon. Mr. Chapais, accepted the report without comment. The assembly decided to wait until their report was printed, together with the printed evidence, and then discuss the matter fully. It is expected that the debate will take place to-day.

CANADIAN MAKES OFFER.

Would Give Aperture Sights To All at Bisley Meet.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes is still busy exchanging cablegrams with the British War Office with a view to reaching some amicable compromise in regard to the Bisley embroglio. It is understood that the colonel is making considerable headway in bringing the War Office round to his way of thinking

One unique suggestion has been made. A wealthy Canadian has offered to bear the expense of equipping all the British rifles used at the Bisley meet with aperature sights similar to those on the Ross rifle. Thus all competitors would be on an equal footing, so far as the aperture sight is concerned. This is in addition to the offer recently made by Col Hughes to supply Ross rifles to all competitors at Bisley.

40,000 Tons of Coal Consumed by Fire

R. round-house .The Company's loss will be about $80,000, as 40,000 tons of coal have been consumed by fire. The huge pile contained 87,000 tons. The cause of the fire was combustion of gases, which formed through lack of proper air passages being in the heap.

Complainant Was Awarded $4.50

Local Painter Sued Hotel Proprietor For Amount of Wages Due Him

In this morning's Police Court Charles Rae, a local painter, sued Mr. Montgomery, proprietor of the Montgomery House, for $4.50 wages, which he claimed was due him on some work he did for the defendant last week.

In the witness box Rae gave an account of the time he and his assistant worked. At 25c an hour it came to $10.50. Mr. Montgomery had agreed to pay him 25c an hour, and when he (Rae) told Mr. Montgomery that he was going to hire an assistant to get the work done, the defendant made no objection. Rae submitted a memorandum of the time he worked, and said that the clerk at the hotel, who was supposed to check it in the book, was drunk on the third night and made a mistake. His assistant, Roland Brock, corroborated his statement. They had only received $6 for the work.

Mr. Montgomery claimed that the painters were charging for time they spent in trying to paper a wall. They failed to do this and destroyed two rolls of paper. He paid them $6, which was all he owned them

The clerk of the hotel was in the hospital and could not come to give evidence. The magistrate held that because of this he must take the evidence of the painters, and he awarded them the $4.50.

Chas. Jones, of Smith, and Len. Douglas, of this City, were each assessed $2 for being drunk.

THIS STOMACH REMEDY REMARKABLY SUCCESSFUL

You know us—your home druggist. You know we wouldn't guarantee any remedy to relieve indigestion or dyspepsia, or money back, unless we felt the utmost confidence in that remedy. Therefore, when we offer you Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets with this proof of our faith in them, it leaves you no room for hesitation or doubt.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the fact that they contain, among other things, Bismuth and Pepsin, two ingredients endorsed by the medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of stomach ills. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check heartburn and distress, stimulate the secretion of gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich, red blood. In a short time they tend to restore the stomach to a naturally comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They also benefit the bowels.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Joseph Mantell Is To-day Strong as Ever After Serious Illness.

TORONTO, Feb. 13. — Joseph Mantell, although 105 years of age, passed through a sickness that yesterday threatened to extinguish his flame of life. To-day he was as strong and hearty as ever.

Yesterday his grand-daughter, Mrs. J. C. Edwards, and her husband became alarmed when after being out for a few minutes he sank into a state of half insensibility. It was one of "spells" which Mrs. Edwards expects will carry him off at any time. After a little while, however, he regained strength and by the afternoon was up and about again.

Mr. Mantell came to Canada 75 years ago and is probably the oldest English born Canadian in Toronto. He is the oldest (in years) member of the Masons. He formerly resided in Peterborough.

Have Leaders Agreed On A Compromise?

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 13.— Special cable.)—There are persistent rumours that the leaders have found a satisfactory basis for compromise on the Ulster question. The rank and file of the Liberals and Nationalists are openly expressing fears that their leaders will pay too heavy a price for the settlement by consent. The Unionists, sinking for a moment their impossible demand for a general election before the passage of the bill, are evidently concentrating on a demand for a temporary exclusion of Ulster. The Unionists are plucking up courage. The Morning Post in a significant note to-day says "British Liberals are not a little perturbed at the events which have marked the opening of the session. The Nationalists are increasingly alive to the extent to which Asquith has given away their case."

In many directions it is apparent that renewed attention is being given here to Canadian matters. The Graphic to-day publishes a handsome Canadian supplement dealing in detail with each province and several cities. The Dominion exhibition opens next week in Palm court at Selfridge's, special displays are staged by Ontario, Nova Scotia and Quebec.

Ladies! Look Young Darken Grey Hair

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know

Grey hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay grey! Look younger! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

A SOCIAL SERVICE CONFERENCE

Special to The Examiner:

RALEIGH,, N.C., Feb. 13.— Public health, education, morals and a wide variety of other problems relating to the welfare of the people of North Carolina are being discussed at the State Social Service Conference, which assembled in this city to-day for a three days' session. In the large and representative attendance, the prominence of the speakers and the importance of the subjects scheduled for consideration, the conference probably never has been equalled by any similar conference held in the South. Governor Craig called the gathering to order this morning and delivered the opening address. During the day the conference discussed the negro problem and the needs of the rural communities. Subsequent sessions of the conference will be devoted to the discussion of prison reform, the tuberculosis problem, city and town planning, co-operation of the churches, schools as social centres, neighbourhood improvements, and the reduction of adult illiteracy.

THE R-U-WELL CLUB

This ballad is taken from an essay quoted by the venerable poet Laurate on the day following one of the most memorable events in the history of the R. U. Well Club, composed and written by the author for the club just one week after their first great hockey match, the day being the anniversary of one of the most exciting games of hockey ever played in Peterborough.

The Ballad.

Some class to our hockey team the
R. U. Well,
And a pretty good sport is their way with the bell;
They're a very sporty crew and take them all around,
farmer on the ground.

But believe me I can tell you that no matter where they roam, They're a very entertaining crowd and can make themselves at home;
But whereever you may chance to be,
No happier sports you will ever see.
"Well."

Also the Canal Zone.

Teacher—How many zones are there, Bobbie?

Bobbie—Oh, a whole lot. There's one torrid, two temperate, two frigid, and a whole lot of postal zones.

National Cement Products Show

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 13. —Cement bungalows with cement furniture and cement kitchen utensils are on display in the Coliseum, where the annual National Cement Products Exhibition opened to-day for a ten days' engagement. An amazing variety of uses for cement and similar products is illustrated at the show. One of the exhibits that attracted most attention from the visitors to-day was a large concrete model of the Panama Canal. A cement court of honour with huge concrete statuary was another feature of the exhibition that attracted attention.

BEWARE SPANISH PRISONER.

Moss-covered Game Is Still Being Operated.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—Fake schemes and swindles come and go but the old and original Spanish swindle apparently goes on for ever.

Sir Joseph Pope, deputy head of the external affairs department, gave out to-day another circular warning from the British Ambssador at Madrid. It says the time-honoured fraud continues to be practised on the unwary by a gang of ingenious swindlers in Spain, assisted by accomplices in England. It is the old story of a Spanish prisoner dying in prison, desiring to provide for his only daughter. He possesses a large fortune, secreted somewhere, and offers to transfer it to his correspondent, if the latter will maintain and educate the child. As a guarantee of good faith, however, $500 is to be forwarded to a given address.

May Press Huerta Matter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. — A visit to the State Department yesterday by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, who is known to be disposed to close an harmonious action by the United States and Great Britain in regard to Mexico, gave rise to a report that greater pressure would be brought to bear upon Gen. Huerta soon in an effort to shake his determination to remain at the head of affairs in the Mexican capital. Officials did not discuss the report.

Thomas B. Hohler, secretary of the British legation at Mexico City, who will leave for his post shortly after spending several days in Washington, has had impressed upon him the inflexible purpose of the American administration to withhold recognition from Huerta.

HANS SCHMIDT

Roman Catholic priest, convicted of murdering Anna Aumueller, a domestic, at St. Boniface Catholic Church, was sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing some time during the week beginning March 23rd. His sentence was pronounced on the 11th of February.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES IN THE TABERNACLE

Notwithstanding the cold weather the revival meetings in Bethany Tabernacle continue to grow in interest tnd attendance. The mountaineer evangelist spoke last evening on the subject of God's testimony, concerning Enoch. He said the secret of Enoch's life was that of his choice: He chose to work with God and this was also the secret of his personal holiness. This walk gave to him a faith which resulted in his translation. He also had affectionate communion with God, whom he loved supremely. The outcome of his holy walk was that of constant and progressive obedience.

Several responded to the invitation at the close of the services to accept the God of Enoch as their God.

Mr. Compton is a very original preacher; both in expression and gesture, doubtless different from any man who has ver visited Peterborough. You should hear his message to-night, on the subject of "A Scriptural Revival." Service at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer at daybreak this morning registered 19 degrees below zero; 22 below zero had been reached during the night. To-day at noon it was 4 below, but the temperature is now gradually rising, and the present cold spell is apparently now a thing of the past. A few of the low readings in Peterborough this winter are as follows, which will show that instead of being an "open" winter as some foretold, has been of the old-fashioned variety:

There were six other days below zero to a lesser extent.

LAWRENCE IRVING "THE" ENGLISH ACTOR COMING TO TOWN

The citizens of Peterborough will have the pleasure of hearing and seeing here on Friday and Saturday of next week Laurence Irving, who is in all ways the great son of a great father, and ranks with, if he is not, the greatest actor on the British stage. His appearance in Canada, under the auspices of the British-Canadian Theatre Organization Company, of which a local branch is in Peterborough, will be an episode of an epoch in the dramatic life of the City as it will be in that of Canada

On Monday night Mr. Laurence Irving opened his all-Canadian tour at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, with a performance of "The Unwritten Law," which, socially and artistically, must be ranked as among the greatest events that have occurred for many years. It was a veritable triumph. The house was packed to suffocation, and included some of the most distinguished and brilliant people in the Dominion At the fall of each curtain the vast audience seemed to take a deep breath, and then when the full significance of what they had seen dawned upon them they burst forth into prolonged and rapturous applause. When the curtain descended upon the last act the whole house rose to its feet, and for almost a quarter of an hour continued cheering.

The fact of Mr. Irving's thus reception, tells us much, and the whole of the newspapers of the city, in their enthusiastic tribute to the greatness of Mr. Irving's acting, only endorsed the popular acclaim with which was received Irving's "The Unwritten Law," founded upon the novel, "Dostoieffski's Crime and Punishment," a tale turning upon the struggles that emanciated thirty million Russian serfs. Speaking of Irving's appearance in "The Unwritten Law," the Montreal Star says:

"Mr. Irving presented a study which held his audience in its grip, and which, in its strength, its virility, and its intellectual intensity, must be ranked as among the really great creations of the modern stage . . . I know of no such terrible scene in modern drama as that in which Bezak, the examining judge, reconstructs the crime before Raskoinikoff's eyes. It is compelling tragedy. It fascinates, it enthralls; it appals. It is hypnotic in its gripping power, in its sheer terror, its tremendous psychological significance. . . . He literally sculptures upon the flesh the emotions of the mind, the sufferings of the spirit, the agony of the soul in torment. And he does it all with subtlety, with intensity, with restraint."

Other Montreal journals write in the same strain, and there is no doubt that Mr. Irving, who is supported by a company of corresponding dramatic calibre, will present plays here next week that will be a revelation of the hitherto unknown possibilities of dramatic art embodying genius, such as in the case of Laurence Irving has descended from the great father to the great son.

MEETING OF THE CHARITY BOARD

At a meeting of the Central Charity Board which was held last evening, Mr. Shannon, representing Col. Frank's Shows United, was heard. The organization proposes exhibiting in Peterborough, for a week, in August, under the auspices of the Board. They would give the Board fifteen per cent. of the gross receipts of the show and fifty per cent. of the concession money, the Board to furnish the license, etc., grounds, electricity and the bill posting. They would guarantee the Board $1000. It was decided to take no action in regard to the matter.

"OFF DUTY" FOR THE LAST TIME

C. P. R. Telegraph Operator Dies at Completion of Trick

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 13. — Frank E. Shea, for several years agent and telegraph operator for the C. P. R. at Mission Junction, signed "off duty" for the last time the other morning. He had worked all night at the key, handling trains in and out of his big railway yards. The day man came in early to take his trick, and Shea explained the diagram to him and officially handed over the responsibility of handling many lives.

"Well, so long," said Shea as he signed the register, and entered up the time of his leaving.

The day man did not have time to reply before Shea sank to the floor. The other man ran to him and tried to help him up, but Shea had gone "off duty" for ever. He gave a gasp or two and was dead. He leaves a wife and two children. He had long been in the service of the C. P. R. and was agent at Aggassiz and Westminster Junction before being promoted to Mission. He was 46 years old and came from New Brunswick.

Revival Services Are Successful

Miss Babcock Preached an Inspiring Sermon Last Night in Free Methodist Church

Miss Babcock preached a very able sermon last night from the 27th and 28th verses of the 5th Chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke. Subject: "The Call of God."

"This call comes to every one," said the speaker, "sometime during their life. He called Matthw in a quiet simple manner apparently without telling him why he should follow him. Many are waiting for some great supernatural, irresistible power to induce them to decide to yield their hearts to God. The only people that ever feel such power are those who yield themselves to the Holy Spirit's strivings. It is very important to hear the Gospel, and a fearful thing to reject the call. The danger is, he may never call again. We should do as Matthew did, who immediately responded. It means much to follow Jesus. In order to do so we must forsake all sin. Many are making failure in the Christian life because they have not renounced all evil, they are trying to mix sin and holiness, which is as impossible as it is to mix oil and water. We must also turn to God and follow Him and go His way. When we turn to Him we turn to an infinite source and have infinite power to help us overcome temptation. Paul said: "I am not ashamed of or rather disappointed at the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation."

"We must also strive to imitate Him. He wants to teach us how to live that He may shine through us. The life of Jesus is the standard for the Christian. The easiest time to yield is when the call is first heard. The longer we postpone a difficult task, the more difficult it becomes. Many otherwise outrageous men tremble at the thought of taking their stand on the side of God and right. This lack of moral courage is the cause of spiritual ruin in many cases. Matthew placed a proper estimate on eternal things. He did not prefer the things of earth, to the heavenly. Matthew decided at once, and acted at once; he took a definite stand. If we do this it will be manifest to all with whom we have to do. This gives one a wonderful start toward heaven and is a wonderful drawing power to others."

Come to-night at 7.30 for the song service. Preaching at 8 o'clock.

FLASH GREENWICH TIME.

Greenwich time is flashed to the world now, several times each day, from the powerful wireless station on the Eiffel Tower, Paris, in an international code of signals that can be picked up by operators anywhere within the radius of 2,000 miles or 3,000 miles. Far out at sea, ships' officers catch the correct time message and correct their chronometers, and many watchmakers have receiving stations to intercept the time messages.

In London, Berlin, St. Peteraburg, and Rome amateurs set the family clocks from the dots and dashes caught by their receivers. No correction has to be made for the time consumed in the passage of the message for the wireless waves travel at a speed of 186,330 miles a second, and at the distance of 3,00 miles the pressure of the sender's key and the response of the receiver's telephone are simultaneous. The principal time messages are sent at 10 a.m., 11.30 p.m., 11.45 p.m., and midnight. Beginning at 11.50 every night, a "tap" per second is sent the three minutes until the 108th tap marks 11.53.

A more complete message is sent at 11.44.40 followed by a weather report. Beginning at 11.57, the international midnight signal is sent. Three separate calls, each lasting a minute, prepare receiving operators for the final second-fourth rush, which marks midnight at Greenwich.—Popular Mechanics.

"Mr. Grimes," said the rector as he passed through the vestry, "you had better take up the collection before the sermon this morning, as I am going to preach on the subject of economy."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

EVERYTHING READY FOR TO-NIGHT'S BIG GAME ORILLIA FANS COMING

Everything is ready for to-night's big game and, judging by the way in which the battle is being discussed everywhere there will be a crowd that will cram very inch of space in the Brock Street arena. At least 150 supporters will accompany the Orillia team on a special train and the presence of the hostile rooters will add to the excitement. The reserved seats were placed on sale yesterday afternoon, and in a short time the plan was nearly sold out. Orillia took a big block of the reserves and other out-of-town fans have telephoned for accommodation. The game will start at 8.30 o'clock sharp, and to avoid a jam the rink will be opened at 7 o'clock. Chad Thoms will handle the bell, the first local appearance of this referee, although he has officiated in the Peter' games at Cobourg Whitby and Orillia. Needless to say the ice will be hard and smooth as glass and the game should be a lightning fast exhibition.

Wiarton Drew With Riversides

Riverside and Wiarton played to a tie at the Ravina Rink in their first of home-and-home games in the second round of the O.H.A.. The game was a fast exhibition, and the large surface and the good condition of the ice was to the liking of both teams. There was little combination displayed by either team, both resorting to the one-man style of play.

The game was close from start to finish, and the crowd was certainly treated to a good exhibition. Wiarton should win at home.

CURLING

(Toronto star)

You hear a lot about Tankard curling, but if we are to take the closeness of the scores as a criterion they are not in the same class as the District Cup games. The games were played yesterday in the first and second rounds, and the total differences between the totals of the clubs was eleven shots. This is undoubtedly record curling.

In the morning Parkdale defeated Owen Sound by one shot; Orillia won from Peterborough by two shots, and Hamilton Thistles ran up the big majority of the day, five points, on Guelph Royals. The play was of a superior quality, and many thrills were provided for the gallery. Farewell and Harris, for Orillia; Taylor for Peterborough; Mitchell, for Parkdale; and Martin, for Hamilton, made some sensational shots.

The closeness of the morning games was not a circumstance to that of those in the afternoon. Kingston only secured the verdict over Hamilton Thistles after two extra ends. On the fifteenth it was all square, one Kingston rink being one up and one down. In the first extra end Kingston secured a three on one rink and Hamilton the same on the other. Hamilton came back with another three and Kingston ended the agony by securing a four. It was a great finish and no mistake.

That Orillia crew made a grandstand finish, too. Going into the sixteenth they were six down. On the seventeenth Farewell got three, and on the eighteenth Dr. Harris did likewise. The last stone of the game settled it, and Orillia just squeezed through.

There was not a preceptible margin of difference between the various representatives from the four corners of the Province. They are the best rinks that have ever come to Toronto in this competition.

The honour role for the District Curling Cup shows that Orillia has been in the final round on two previous occasions, first when Sarnia was defeated in 1907 and in 1912 when Toronto Granites won the Cup. Peterborough, who were beaten by Orillia in the first round this year, have their games on the honour roll three times. Last year Orillia was put out in the first round by Toronto Aberdeens, the eventual winners, while Kingston could not get past the preliminary canter. Aberdeens won from Lindsay in 1912 by 2 shots, the successful skips being G. W. Ormerod, and Dr. W. R. Walters. The complete honour roll is:

	Winner.	Runner-up
1907.....	Orillia	Sarnia
1908....	Peterborough.	To. Granites
1909....	Galt Gran's.	Palmerston
1910....	Peterborough.	To. Granites
1911....	Peterborough	Palmerston
1912....	To. Granites.	Orillia
1913....	To. Aberdeens.	Lindsay

LOCALS - SIX SHOTS DOWN

Three rinks of curlers from Bobcaygeon were in the city yesterday and last night they met three local rinks in games for the Fitzgerald-Bottom trophy. The resultant matches were three of the closest and most interesting that have been played this season. The rink of "Colts" that were drawn against local veterans made a remarkably good showing. Up against four local men who have twirled under the siche gas for years they lost by only one shot after a very close game that might have been anybodys, even after the last stone had crept down the ice, and over the hog line. The visitors emerged from the games 6 shots to the good.

The return game will be played at an early date in Bobcaygeon, and the locals are looking forward to a chance to turn the tables and reclaim the silverware.

The scores were:

Champions Won From Midland

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—Midland O.H. senior team lacked two essentials last night in their scheduled game with Toronto R. and A. A. at the Arena. The first and most important minus quantity was three goals with which to beat the champions. The other, which leads up to the above, was the ability to score these goals when the opportunities presented themselves. Three to one was the final result, and the champions again look as if they will be one of the finalists for the John Ross Robertson Cup.

The outstanding difference in the play of the two teams was the inability of the Midlanders to grasp chances to score, while the locals were just the opposite in this respect. On numerous occasions the Midlanders went down two and three abreast, but when they got close in on the defence they seemed to become bewildered and nine times out of ten missed the shot.

It was also the "brains" of the champions which beat the Midlanders. While they did not have so many opportunites as the Northern team, when they did have a chance to was seldom thrown away without a shot.

Meeking in centre did not play up to his best form, but he certainly handled the puck in splendid style close in on the nets. His short, snappy passing and dexterous stick handling was too much for the Midland defence men, and the little fellow was inside a number of times.

Scott, in goal, alone, was the one person who prevented Meeking from scoring more often than he did.

While the champions won, they did not display anything like the form they showed last season at this time. The speed was lacking and they checked back spasmodically. Meeking was the worst offender in this respect. The defence, Gooch and Hefferman, was certainly the stronghold of the team. Both these players rushed beautifully, and it was not an uncommon sight to see one or the other carry the puck from end to end. Gooch blocked many shots with his body, while Heffernan was a tower of strength in breaking up the Midland rushes.

HANDICAP BASEBALL

Suggestion That Would Give Weaker Clubs a Better Chance

The president of the St. Louis Browns, R. L. Hedges, is out as an advocate of handicap baseball. His plan seems to be a logical one for handicapping the leaders and preventing them from grabbing all the baseball plums in the way of prospective big league stars.

"Under the present system in the major leagues it's extremely hard for tailend clubs to edge into the first division," said Mr. Hedges. "The winning clubs make big money, and for that reason they pay big money for talent. They sometimes pay fabulous and senseless prices for promising men. The owner of a losing club would go bankrupt trying to compete against the winners, figuring that a few of the high-priced individuals would fail to deliver.

"Now, what I'm driving at is this. Take the league winner of a season with a team of comparative youngsters, but one weak link in the chain. The manager goes forth to the market and offers $10,000 for a class D league player of promise. He gets him, puts him on the bench, and in two years this player bobs up a star. This manager, who really needs, we'll say, two players for the next season, will outbid his rivals and buy ten or fifteen players. He takes many promising men who are of no use to him, who would help a second division club. The latter club has not the financial fortification to compete.

"Now my idea is to limit the league leader to twenty-five players on his reserve list. Give the team which finishes second and the team which finishes third a limit of twenty-seven players. The fourth and fifth place clubs should have the privilege of putting thirty on their reserve, while the sixth, seventh, and eighth place clubs should be privileged to retain each year thirty five players.

"This would give the losers a larger squad to pick from. It would prevent the leaders from paying reckless and insane prices. It would readjust the game, balance the league, and distribute the pennants. Now, this idea may look queer at present, but wait and see what happens."

KING OF UMPIRES

Gaffney Brought Arbitrator's Work up to Modern Pitch

While John H. Gaffney, who died at his home in Worcester recently, was known as the king of umpires, he was not the first arbitrator to be honored by that title, writes Old Sport Hough in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Honest John Kelly was the original king of umpires, although it always was a question whether he was really the best of the umpires of his time. But there was one honor no one could take from him. When he was operating, he was the boss of the field, and that was long before the umpires were clothed with the almost autocratic power they are to-day. And then, think of the mobs he had to face in those days. Compared with them the most turbulent of present-day crowds are mild and orderly. But, no matter how tough the going was, nothing seemed to bother Kelly, who, on one occasion, hopped the fence in order to get at his tormentors in the right field bleachers. Gaffney, though, was the originator of modern umpiring. He was the first man to go behind the pitcher when there was a runner on, he was always over the play, and was the first umpire the Old Sport can recall who made it a point to be both blind and deaf at times.

Will Soon Hike To The South

Down where the balmy breezes blow—and occasionally some breezes that are not so balmy—the training season for baseball players will soon begin. Along about St. Valentine's Day, when the sizzle of the steam radiator and the roar of the wood fire are still beautiful music to the ears of northerners, those who follow the diamond pastime as a means of livelihood, and those who expect to, receive missives from the club managers ordering them to hike to the southern training camp. To the footfree youth, who has yet to win his spurs in the main show, this epistle is as welcome as any valentine could be. To the veteran, who maybe has a wife, and children, and a home, just like common folks, and to whom the training camp and the barnstorming trip north are oft told tales, the managerial valentine is not an unmixed joy. It means that he is to have another chance with the club, but it also involves the thought that perhaps some ambitious youngster will come to the front and cop his job. Maybe he will recall the first time he went south for a trial with a big league club, and the veteran, grown a little stiff and a little slow and a little old, whose place he took. And with what jubilation he heard the manager tell him that he had made good! He gave scarce a thought to the old fellow who was now relegated to the bench, and who would soon go back to the minors. True, the old chap was game, and he wore a mask of indifference and he was the first to shake the hand of his successor and wish him luck. And now the youth, himself grown a wee bit old, and stiff, and stale,—maybe it is his turn now. He tells himself that he is as good as ever, that a few weeks in the sunny south will thaw out his sinews, but down deep in his heart he knows that this season, or the next, or at most the next, will see his finish, and that youth must be served. And then the veteran has a cottage in a village, or a farm in the country,—for few of the players live in the big cities whose names are emblazoned on their uniforms,—a real home, with spouse and kiddies, and it is mighty hard to leave them. He would rather sit by the fire, and smoke his pipe, and read the sporting page, and putter around the house,—or he thinks he would until the boys get together again for the southward hike. Then he realizes, with a bitter pang, that the spring will come, must come, when he will not be invited to go along—when the train will pull out of the station, and the boys will gather about improvised card tables to while away the tedium of the trip,—but that is still in the future. "Gosh, Mike, old chap, I'm glad to see you again!"

"Make haste slowly" is the motto of most of the pilots and trainers of professional baseball clubs. Strenuosity is at first discouraged, and the players, both recruits and old timers, are given only light work during the first couple of weeks of spring practice. "Playin' ketch" is likely to be the first stunt of the candidates for diamond honours. They toss the ball to each other lightly, with no more muscular effort than "kids" playing "catch." After this may come light batting practice, swatting slow balls. Medicine balls are a part of the equipment of nearly every training camp. The big ball is tossed from one to another. When Old Sol is in a favourable mood, the players are encouraged to bask in the sunshine. Being able to play on the hottest day of summer is required of every ball player, and during spring practice they are encouraged to assimilate as much sunshine as possible, which is not only good for their health, but gradually accustoms them to the rays of the luminary. Jog-trotting usually follows the period of work, and this tends to reduce those who have become too fat. The bath or shower and a thorough rubbing leaves the players ready to do full justice to a hearty luncheon of plain and nutritious grub. The same programme, mornings and afternoons, usually follows for a week, or maybe, two, with a slow but steady increase in the length of time spent in working out. By the second week the men may be swatting the ball harder, running around the diamond, and jogging a mile or two instead of a quarter or half mile. Then comes the time when the candidates and veterans take their regular positions, and what before seemed but a bunch of athletes at careless play begins to assume the form of a baseball machine. Before that time is reached, as a rule, the shrewd manager has eliminated most of his recruits as impossible. A few still have a chance. Maybe one or two have become certainties — but the manager is careful not to let them know it as long as it can be kept a secret. Meantime, the veterans have arrived, most of them looking a little too fat. The spring practice will take off most of the surplus, and the pennant season will complete the job.

ONE DAY IN BASEBALL SCHOOL

Prof. Carr: Eddie Cole, state the difference between passed balls and wild pitches?

Eddie Cole: If you're pitching and the ball goes back into the stand, letting in two men, that's a passed ball. If you're catching, it's a wild pitch.

Luke McGluke: Any fumble, muff, or wild chuck you do not make yourself.

Prof. Carr: Correct. Chester Bling, what is a base hit?

Chester Bling: If you get first, except on four balls, that's a base hit. It is also anything that the other side hits past you, excepting in Cincinatti.

Herman Reed: If the pitcher is over six feet high, the manager should say, "Old pal, the ump is giving you a rotten deal. Save up the wing for to-morrow." If the pitcher is a small man, or a kid, the manager should say, "Getoutathis, you yellow hound."

Prof. Carr: Admirably said. Hector Foote, what is a display of genius?

Hector Foote: A bonehead that gets by.

Maxey Fleischman: A thin animal with an outgrowing jaw and an orful disposition, and it lives round second base in Chicago.

Frankie Croft: I knew yesterday, teacher, but I don't know to-day, and I won't know before to-morrow.

Prof. Carr: And why so, Frankie?

Frankie Croft: Because I ain't heard since yesterday, teacher, just where Fred Merkle's ship is sailing.

Prof. Carr: Correct. Dickie Skiff, what is a magnate?

Prof. Carr: Well spoken. Benny Hack, what is the crime of society?

Benny Hack: Leaving the yegs in and the umpires out.

Patsy Sheely: The double-cross Joe Tinker got from the Reds and slipped to Brooklyn.

TROUBLE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The baseball status of Johnny Evers, successor to Frank Chance as manager of the Chicago National League club, is one of the mysteries of organized baseball to-night. Evers is inclined to believe that he is a free agent; Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs declares he is the property of the Boston Nationals, and the National League is on record as acting in the capacity of guardian to the peppery second baseman. This complicated situation developed as the result of Murphy's action in hiring Henry O'Day as manager of the Cubs before he legally released Evers from the same position.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors and the National League as a whole it was decided that Evers had not resigned, as contended by Murphy, and that his five-year contract as manager and player was valid and binding. The league further agreed to take over all rights and responsibilities under the contract, thus helping Murphy out of an embarrassing position.

The Boston club immediately entered into a contract with Murphy to trade Infielder Swteney and Pitcher Purdue for Evers, but the latter declared he would not be a party to the contract.

To further complicate matters Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federals, is speeding to this city at the order of President Gilmore of the new league to try to secure Evers for the Federals. Baseball lawyers contend that Evers is not a free agent and cannot sign any of the contracts, but Federal magnates state that they stand willing to pay big money for Evers' signature to a contract and supply much more cash if needed to fight the case through all the courts.

In the midst of all this hubbub the American League held its schedule meeting a few blocks away and completed its work with the usual despatch. The Federal League was discussed and a definite plan of action evolved against inroads on the American League will be laid before the National Commission by President Ban Johnston to-morrow.

FINDING THE NUMBER.

From Little River's Mouth Brule First Saw Lak Ontario.

Now that the relentless force of progress is overwhelming the Humber valley, near Toronto, and the landscape gardener and prosecutor of trespassers are preparing to destroy the bounty of nature's slow mutations, a special interest is imparted to the story of the river's varied past and transient present by K. M. Lizars, "In the Valley of the Humber, 1615-1913." But the stimulus of this impending fate is not necessary to sustain a keen interest, for the author has imparted a special charm to every feature. Careful research in a multitude of sources is not revealed by masses of dry detail, but shows through facile descriptions, citations and entertaining narratives. The geologist who reads the records of slow succeeding eras of ice and subtropical warmth is freely drawn upon. Prof. Coleman and others who have studied the geology of the Toronto district are cited as authorities, and there is no sacrifice either of careful scientific accuracy or of the entertaining arrangement of conclusions and speculations.

There is the most carefully-weighed scientific opinion regarding the aspect of adjacent areas when uncovered by the slow recession of the ice cap, when the mammoth tramped the rich herbage by the shore of the ancient lake, and during the geologically recent times when the river found its present course and excavated its winding channel and beautiful but doomed valley.

Indian tribes furnish solemn and impressive pages of the Humber's history, and their story is entertainingly blended with that of European aggression and conquest since Brule first discovered the river three hundred years ago. Long since the date of the skull with the arrowhead there were salmon at the mouth of the river, and when the mills at Lambton were young Indians would shoot the dam on their way down to spear, and in the swamps nearby there were numerous picnic parties. For many years in the nineteenth century baskets were sold in Lambton, and the swamps of the Lower Humber furnished part of the material for making. Credit Indians came constantly, entered where they chose and took what they chose and peaceably departed. They had the right to enter any swamp, and not longer than eighteen years ago a large party of them exercised it.

The date of the discovery of the Humber as the pathway to the Great Lake is not only of respectable antiquity, but it is worthy of finding a place in the list of great events of its time. "Brule," says Miss Lizars, "arrived in the valley of the St. Lawrence the next year after the English first gained a foothold in North America, and he started upon his journey with the savages which resulted in the first expedition ever made westward of the Great River of Canada, and in the discovery of Lake Huron, ten years before the landing of the Plymouth Pilgrims; and six years after Hudson first saw the river that bears his name Brule stood on the beach at the mouth of the Humber and saw Lake Ontario—'the first civilized man to gaze out upon that broad expanse of waters.'"

The missionary spirit inspired the early explorers of this vast unknown, and while the message which impelled them to give up their lives may broaden with the advances of the age, their heroism and fortitude will endure among the most inspiring records of human devotion.—Toronto Globe.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

Saturday may present narrow and irregular fluctuations in the general stock market, and may probably stand over until Monday. On declines good stocks should be bought on weak spots for turns. Professional operators who are bearish on the stock market and who are concentrating against the stocks of eastern lines, are using it as a disturbing factor more than anything else. Reports up to this writing indicate that pressure will be put on in N.P., N.Y.C., B.O., L.V. and the floor element will sell them on rallies.

Special advices show absorption of a scale down character in G.Q., U.P., N. and W., St. Paul and Union Pacific.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE

An elegant cup, intended as a challenge cup, to be presented by the Mercantile Hockey League to the team winning the trophy for three successive years, is now in the window of Mr. Ernest Warne's Jewellery store, on George Street. This cup, which is to be known as the Meharry-Nelson cup, reflects, we consider, considerable credit on the manufacturer, as well as on those entrusted with the selection of the design.

Knew Her Temper.

A woman whose husband was killed in a railroad accident consulted a lawyer and brought suit against the company, but when the case came up for trial it was always postponed. Naturally the widow was becoming more or less agitated, and calling on her lawyer she spoke scathingly of courts and matters judiciary.

On the day following the case came up again and right eloquently the widow's attorney argued against a further adjournment.

"I am very sorry, Mr. Smith," said the judge, "but your opponent, Mr. Jones, has shown good cause for adjournment. The case, therefore, will go over till the next term."

"Very well, your honour," returned the widow's attorney, "but in connection with the matter, might I ask a favour of the Court?"

"Certainly, Mr. Smith," was the gracious reply of the judge. "What can the Court do for you?"

"The widow is down in my office," smilingly answered the attorney. "I would thank your honour to go and tell her that you have adjourned the case."

Efforts To Form Liberal Cabinet Cause Strain In Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 14.—The constitutional struggle is growing sharper. King Gustave, persisting in his endeavor to secure a Liberal Cabinet, yesterday invited Baron Hammarskjold, former Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs, and a member of The Hague Court of Arbitration to form a new Ministry. Although Baron Hammarskjold advised King Gustave to resort to the Conservatives for the selection of a Cabinet, his Majesty requested him to reconsider his refusal and attempt to form a Ministry.

The members of the Liberal party in both chambers of Parliament yesterday unanimously issued a forceful manifesto against King Gustave's personal politics, exhorting the entire nation to fight for constitutional liberty.

The Ontario Fire Prevention Association and other associations, including the Boards of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, have drafted a bill for the appartment of a Provincial fire marshal and the amelioration of the very serious situation in Ontario.

The Ontario Legislature will consider the measure at the coming session.

The clerks shall act in other municipalities. Subject to regulations, the deputies and others shall report to the fire marshal.

The fire marshal shall investigate the causes, origin, and circumstances of every fire occurring in Ontario, and it shall be determined, where possible, whether such fire had been due to carelessness or design.

To Call on Police.

Should it be necessary for purposes of examination, a peace officer shall accompany him.

When combustible material be found, or where conditions are dangerous to the safety of the building or premises, he may order such remedy as he deems wise If his order is ignored, a penalty of not less than $10, and not more than $50, may be imposed.

He shall keep a record of fires, summon witnesses and examine them under the Act, and prosecute any person whom he believes to have been guilty of arson.

Another clause empowers him to withhold for 60 days the payment of insurance moneys if he thinks it advisable in the public interest, pending an enqury.

Report to Legislature.

He shall report to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council any contravention of any enactment passed by the Legislature with respect to the prevention of fires, prevention of injury to persons attending public entertainments, the inspection of steam boilers, the construction and maintenance of fire escapes, and the means of adequacy of exits from public buildings.

Th assistants shall report to the fire marshal, but this Act shall not confer on the fire marshal any powers, nor shall it require from him the performance of any duties, provided for by the by-law passed by any local municipality under the authority of the Municipal Act.

For the purpose of providing a remuneration fund for the fire marshal or other officers, the fire insurance people shall pay to the Provincial Secretary an amount not exceeding one-third of one per cent. of their gross premiums.

Remarkable Escape From Drowning

SARNIA, Feb. 14.—County Constable Joseph Kennedy of Port Lambton had a remarkable escape from drowning. He started to drive across the river on the ice but missed the way, and his horse and cutter plunged into an open air hole in the ice. He tried to drag himself out, but the ice crumpled, and at ten below zero, it was only a few minutes before his sleeves froze fast and he was unable to move.

He called for help. Pat Menton and Ernest Roberts tried to get him, but the ice commenced to crack. Menton pulled off his overcoat and ventured close while Roberts held him. He threw one end of his coat to Kennedy who had strength enough to hold on while he was dragged to safety.

Great Waterways Union Decides on Prompt Action.

WANTS CHANNEL ENLARGED

Delegation Will Be Sent to the Federal Government to Ask That Facilities For Transportation and Power Production Along the Lakes Be Increased—Cities Affected Will Be Enlisted.

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 14.—The executive of the Great Waterways Union of Canada at its meeting here yesterday afternoon discussed the proposed international negotiations for the development of a deep ocean waterway over the entire route from the upper lakes to the sea. The United States being deeply interested in such development, the meeting decided that the time was most opportune for action, especially with a view to a more adequate development of Hydro power in the Niagara and St. Lawrence zones.

Forcible comment was made on the fact that the water available at Niagara under present treaties is practically now all apportioned among the different power companies, and that, by the end of the year the Hydro-Electric Commission will be using eighty per cent. of its available supply. Aside from an increased supply under new arrangements, the extension of the Hydro-Electric Commission's service to new municipalities, and for farmers and radial railways would be impossible, and the municipalities at present supplied from Niagara would be forced largely to go back to steam or to a dus service. In addition to the greatly expanding need in the Niagara zone it is realized that the power possibilities in connection with the enlargement along the St. Lawrence river would convert that section also into a great electric manufacturing district.

The meeting decided to arrange for a general deputation to go to Ottawa from districts affected. Besides the public bodies invited, it is believed many private citizens who are deeply interested will accompany the deputation.

A resolution was passed instructing the secretary to invite the various municipal councils and boards of trade both in the districts on Ontario contiguous to the present waterway from Montreal to the upper lakes, and in the prairie provinces, to accompany a deputation to Ottawa early in April to urge upon the Government the need of an immediate enlargement of the entire waterway from the upper lakes to Montreal.

Extricated by Ladders.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14. — Fifty guests and employes at the Victoria Hotel, Windsor and James streets had a narrow escape when fire broke out on the third storey early yesterday morning. The guests, scantily attired, managed to grope their way to the stairs. Three employes were trapped in a room on the top floor and had to be extricated by firemen, who clambered up the fire escapes. It was 20 below zero.

Bertillon Is Dead.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The death occurred yesterday of Alphonse Bertillon, creator of the system of criminal identification, which made his name known throughout the world. He was in his 61st year.

M. Bertillon was a istinguished anthropologist and was the author of many works on ethnography, anthroponotry and criminal photography.

Far Northern Claims Assigned.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. — The Ungava Miners and Traders, Limited, have been assigned by order-in-council thirty mining claims situated on Clark, Curran and Armstrong Islands, in Hudson Bay. These form part of the Nestapoka group on the eastern shore of the bay, in what was formerly Ungava, but the islands did not become part of the Province of Quebec when the northern territory was recently included in that province. Work to the value of about $40,000 has already been done on these island claims.

Avoiding Train; Killed by Another.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 14. —Getting out of the way of an eastbound train, Mrs. George Everingham stepped in front of the Chicago M.C.R. westbound train yesterday and was instantly killed. She was thirty years of age and leaves a husband and three children. Just a year ago her brother was run down by a train and killed at the same place, a quarter of a mile west of the Montrose bridge.

Beck Will Stay.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Hon. Adam Beck was in Ottawa yesterday. He saw the Premier and other leading Parliamentarians. There was nothing significant about his visit he said. It was merely a friendly call, and definitely denied that he had any intention of giving up the Hydro-Electric work in Ontario.

Tara Resident Dead.

TARA, Feb. 14.—One of the most prominent and widely known residents of this district, W. A. Geroiamy is dead here, aged 82. He was among those who were most closely identified with the growth and improvement of this town.

London Paper Deplores Evidences of "Corruption In Canada."

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Under the heading of "Corruption in Canada" to-day's Daily News contains some pungent remarks on two items of news "which must be disturbing to friends of Canada. The first is the confirmation by the Quebec Legislature committee of the truth of the charges of corruption brought against several members of the Quebec Legislature, the second is the report of the Canadian Parliamentary commission which shows that £8,000,000 has been wasted in connection with the building of the National Transcontinental Railroad.

"Confirmation has already been secured regarding the first. The commission enquiring into the second do not think there has been any actual dishonesty, but there must have been very culpable negligence to bring about waste on so enormous a scale. If these two affairs stood alone there would be sufficient ground for Canadians to face the need of setting their house in order. Unfortunately there is reason to believe that they are symptomatic of extensive laxity in administration and corruption. It is no matter of to-day nor of tenure of office by one party rather than another. Canada is a land of enormous natural resources, which are being exploited in great haste and great recklessness, and the future will pay a heavy price for it all."

May Be Deported.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 14.—Immigration officials here put up to their superiors in Washington yesterday the question of whether Louise McElwaine Goto, American wife of a Japanese, should be deported as an undesirable alien to Japan, a land she never has seen. The girl and Manzo Goto, whom she met in Omaha, were married on the high seas, off San Diego, some months ago. Under the law she takes the nationality of her husband. The girl and Goto were married on a launch hired especially to enable them to avoid the California law prohibiting matrimony between Caucasians and Mongolians.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

A half an hour of this was sufficient to work Bissell up into a furious rage, and, in something the same temper, he sent for Juliet an hour before dinner.

Now, a man who is subjected to choleric outbursts should never send for anything but food an hour before dinner, for the reason that a very trivial thing looks, at that time, big enough to wreck the nation. Bissell, however, failed to recollect this simple truth, and greeted his daughter with smouldering eyes, that gradually softened, however, the longer he looked at her.

"There is somethin' I want to ask yuh, Prairie Bell," he began. "Yuh won't mind?"

"No, dear," she answered. "What is it?"

"This sheepman Larkin—is it true yuh been courtin' with him while I been away?"

"I've been riding with him a good deal, and I've seen him every day, if that is what you mean. You trust me to be sensible, don't you, father?"

"Yes, Julie, o' course I do; but I'm just thinkin' of yerself—and of me. Dunno what people'd say if they knowed ol' Bissell's daughter was traipsin' around with a sheepman that stands in with the rustlers. An' you—I allow it'd break my heart if yuh ever got fond of that rascal. He's a bad lot."

"I cant' agree with you in any of those things," said the girl, with just the right mixture of determination and affection in her voice. "To anyone who is fair, it is no disgrace to be a sheepman; Mr. Larkin is not in with the rustlers, as I believe he outlined to you, nor is he a rascal in any way. Lastly, I don't care what people say about whom I ride with. Mr. Larkin is a gentleman, and that is all I require."

During this speech, which held the middle ground between daring and prudence, independence, and acquiescence, civility and impertinence, Bissell's jaw dropped and his eyes opened. He had rarely, if ever, known his daughter to make such an explicit refutal of his inferences. His brow darkened.

"Yuh never stuck up fer a man like that in yore life, Julie," he accused her severely. "That Larkin is a bad one. Mebbe yuh don't know it, but he'll have ter answer for everything in his life. O' course, you can't understand these things, but I'm just tellin' yuh. Now, I'm plumb sorry to have to do it, but I want yuh to tell me yuh won't go out with him any more."

"I don't think you should ask me that, father," said the girl quietly. "I am old enough to choose my own associates. I have known Mr. Larkin for years, where you have only known him for days. I love you too much to disgrace you or mother, daddy dear; but you must not ask me to act like a fifteen-year-old schoolgirl."

To Bissell, after dinner, this talk would have served its intended purpose—that of presenting reasonably the reverse side of the argument. Now, however, it merely stirred him up. He looked sharply at his daughter with his small, piercing eyes.

"Do you defy me?" he thundered, amazed at the girl's temerity. "All I do is try to make up ways of makin' yuh happy, an' now yuh insist on havin' this scoundrel make love to yuh, whether I want it or not. Answer me this, Julie, are you in love with him?"

"I've never met another man I cared as much for," she returned with calm frankness, looking at him with big, unafraid brown eyes.

"Great heavens!" cried Bissell, leaping out of his chair and raising his clenched fists above his head. "That I should come to this- Julie, do yuh know what yore sayin'? Do yuh know what yore doin' "

"Yes, I do; and do you want to know the reason for it?"

"Yes."

"Because I think the things that have been done to Mr. Larkin are contemptible and mean." There was no placidity in those brown eyes now. They flashed fire. Her face had grown pale, and she, too, had risen to her feet. "I'm a cowman's daughter, but still I can be reasonable. Our range is free range, and he has a perfect right to walk his sheep north if he wants to. And even if he hadn't, there is no excuse for the stampede that took place the other night.

"And last of all, you have no right to keep Mr. Larkin here against his will so that he does not know what is happening to the rest of his flocks. I consider the whole thing a hideous outrage. But that isn't all. You have talked to me this afternoon in a suspicious manner that you have no right to use toward me. I am not a child, and shall think and act for myself."

"What do you mean by that? That you will help this scoundrel "

"Yes, if I think it is the right thing to do."

Bissell started back as though someone had struck him. Then he seemed to lose his strength and to shrivel up, consumed by the flame of his bitterness and disappointent. At the sight, the girl's whole heart melted toward the unhappy man, and she longed to throw her arms around im and plead for forgiveness. But the same strain that had made her father what he was, in his hard environment, was dominant in her, and she stood her ground.

For a minute Bissell looked at her out of dully hurt eyes. Then he motioned toward the door.

"Go in," he said gently; "I don't want to see yuh."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.

"More sheep they come," said the man.

"Yes; it is Rubino with the third flock."

Sims cast a practised eye over the sides of the swelling hills, where already two thousand animals, the second consignment were feeding. It was now a week since he had met Bud Larkin after the stampede, and he was worried over the non-appearance of his chief. Here, in the hills of the southern hook of the Big Horn Mountains, he had fed te second flock up one valley and down the next, waiting for Larkin's arrival or some word from him.

Hurrying south after that midnight meeting, he had reached his destination just in time to check the advance of the second two thousand that had come the night before. Knowing the hard march north, but ignorant of the conditions now prevailing on the Bar T range, he had hesitated to expose more of Larkin's animals to ruin.

The arrival of the third flock complicated matters in the extreme, since the feeding ground became constantly further away from the original rendezvous.

He looked in the direction indicated by the herder and saw the cloud of dust betokened the advance of the new flock. Soon the tinkle of the bells and the blethering of the animals themselves reached him, and he started leisurely back to meet Rubino.

He found the sheep in good physical shape, for they had been travelling at a natural pace, a condition not always easily brought about, and totally dependent on the skill of the herder. If the dogs or men follow constantly behind the animals, they, feeling that they are being constantly urged, will go faster and faster, neglecting to crop, and so starve on their feet in the midst of abundant feed. For this reason herders often walk slowly ahead of their flock, holding them back.

"Two days behind, and coming slowly.

"And the last?"

"Three days behind them, but farther to the east."

Sims whistled. He realized that in five days, if nothing were done, he would have eight thousand sheep on his hands, scattered over the hills in every direction and subject to heavy loss both by wild animals and straying.

With the aplomb of a general disposing his forces, Sims indicated the rising hill on which Rubino should bed his flock down, and watched critically as they went through this evolution.

Sheep are the most unresponsive to human affection of any domesticated animal. Never, in all the thousands of years of shepherding, have they come to recognize man as an integer. They still cling to the flock life. Even when attacked by wild animals at night they do not seek the shepherd, but stand and bawl to the valiant (?) rams to beat off the enemy. On the march, the dogs do the actual herding, so that the "muttons" do not look to man for their orders.

The only occasion that they appeal to a human being is when their bodies crave salt. Then they run to him with a peculiar guttural cry, and, having been supplied, forget the herder immediately. Some people have tried to prove that this trait predicates a recognition of the human being as such, but it seems far more likely that they regard him with the same indifference as a giver that they do the water-hole which quenches their thirst.

Without intelligence, or the direct appreciation of man, they are entirely unattractive, ranking far below the dog, horse, or even cow. Consequently but few men in the sheep business have any affection for them. Of these few, Hard-winter Sims was probably the leader. Something closely akin to a maternal obligation was constantly at work in him, and the one thing that brought instant response was the cry of distress of a lamb or ewe.

Now, as Rubino's flock dotted itself over the hillside in the sunset, Sims watched what was to him the most beautiful thing in the world. The sounds were several—the mothering mutter of the ewes, the sharp bleat of some lamb skipping for dinner, the plaintive cries of the "grannies"—wethers who, through some perverted maternal instinct, seek to mother some stray lamb as their own—and the deeper, contented throating of the rams.

The dogs, panting and thirsty with the long day's march, saw that their charges were finally settled, except for the few lone sentinels against the cobalt sky. Then they trotted with lolling tongues to the little stream that trickled down the valley and waded in to drink. After that they sought out their masters and sat beside them with pricked ears, wondering why no preparations for supper were going forward.

To the herders after the long trail the luxury of a cook waggon was appreciated. Only the first and last detachments carried one, and Rubino's men had cooked their meals over tiny fires made in the barren places, as the herdsmen have done since time immemorial.

The cook, a sullen man at best, grumbled audibly at the increase of his duties. When before he had cooked for six men, now he must cook and clean up for twelve. All things considered, it was a "helluva" note, he declared, until Sims, overhearing his remarks, booted him a couple of times around the cook waggon, so that he much preferred the arduous duties of his calling.

"If yuh could only make every man love his job by contrast with somethin' else a lot worse, what a peaceful world this would be," thought Sims. "Now, sheep-herdin' ain't so plumb gentle yuh could call it a vacation, but when I think of cows an' a round-up I shore do bless them old blackfaces for bein' alive."

Finally the long-drawn yell of the cook gave notice that the meal was ready and all hands fell to with a will. They had hardly got started, however, when there came a sound of galloping feet from the north that brought them all upstanding and reaching for their weapons.

Over a nearby hill swept a body of perhaps fifty horsemen, each with a rifle across his saddle and a revolver at hip. They were typical plainsmen, and as the last radiance of the sun lighted them up, Sims could see that they wore the regular broad-brimmed Stetsons of the cattlemen.

"Put down yore guns, boys," said Sims after a moment's though. "Let's get out o' this peaceable if we can."

The men put away their weapons and waited in silence. The horsemen swept up at the tireless trot of the plains until they recognized the tall, gaunt figure of the chief herdsmen. Then, with a yell, they galloped into camp, drew rein abruptly, and dismounted.

"Glory be, boys!" he yelled, going forward to meet the horsemen. "Rustle around there, cookee," he called back over his shoulder, "yuh got company for supper."

The riders after their long journey were only too glad to see a permanent camp, and dismounted with grunts of pleasure and relief. They had come a distance of nearly two hundred and fifty miles in four days, and their horses were no longer disposed to pitche when their riders got upon them in the morning. The party was composed of all the available men from Larkin's ranch and others from the neighbouring places.

In these mene the hatred of sowmen and their ways was even more intense than vice versa, this being a result no doubt, of the manifold insults they had suffered, and the fact that, as a rule, cowboys far outnumber sheep-herders and run them off the country at will. The call to arms taken north by Miguel had met with instant and enthusiastic response, and these men had come south to wipe out in one grand melee their past disgraces.

During supper Sims told of Larkin's offer of five dollars a day, and the riders nodded approval; it was the customary hire of fighting men in the range wars.

Four Hale Octogenarians.

Four brothers, all over eighty, and known as the Common quartette, reside in Brant County, Ont. The family came to Canada about 1830, and settled near Hamilton, residing there for about ten years, and then moving to Brantford. After a short stay in that city they took up their residence at Mount Pleasant. The eldest of the family, Alfred, was born in Kent County, near London, Eng., in 1828, and is at present living at Plattsville. The other three were born near Hamilton, Richard, born in 1830, resides at Mount Pleasant. The next, William, born in 1832, is living in the village of Washington. The youngest, George, born 1834, is now a resident of Brantford.

80,000 Musk Melon Plants.

Western Ontario fruit men are taking much interest in an experiment that is now being conducted at Leamington, by which it is expected that home-grown muskmelons will be offered on the Canadian market before, or at any rate, as soon as the arrival of the Southern product next season. Thirty thousand muskmelon plants have been placed under glass in the Leamington district, and a great yield is anticipated. Thus far the plants are being kept in a satisfactory condition.

Newsy Gleanings From British Isles

"Three Lloyd Georges"

In the course of a prosecution at Tipton a defendant was stated to have had "three Lloyd Georges" of whiskey. A solicitor said that the measure was the smallest served.

House Burned Down at a "Wake"

While a "wake" was being held at Doolish, Ballybofey, Ireland, the curtains took fire from the candles, and the flames reaching straw that hung from a loft overhead, the house was burned to the ground.

New Oil Fuel Station

The Admiralty, in view of the increasing use of oil fuel in the British navy, contemplate the establishment of an oil fuel station at Blackness, a seaport village three and a half miles east of Bo'ness, Scotland.

Mutiny Veteran Dead

Edward Dickerson, an Indian Mutiny veteran, died at Hove, aged eighty-nine. He enlisted in the 6th Warwickshire Regiment in 1846, and went to the Kaffir War in 1853, afterwards going to India, where he was present at Cawnpore massacre. He left the army in 1867.

Cattle Burned to Death

By a fire which broke out late at night at the farm of Newton of Skene, about eight miles from Aberdeen, thirty-four cattle, including a valuable pure bred sire, were burned to death, and others were saved with the greatest difficulty.

Dumbarton's Biggest Ship

Messrs. Denny and Brothers launched from Leven Shipyard, Dumbarton, the steamer Hororata, for the New Zealand Shipping Company. She is the largest vessel ever built in Dumbarton, although her registered tonnage is not so great as several vessels built previously. Her length is 510 feet and breadth 64 feet.

Ancient Human Skeleton

While James Murdock, a quarryman, was removing some debris from underneath a ledge of rock at the entrance to Alva Glen, Scotland, he came upon a neatly built up wall, and on demolishing it he discovered a human skeleton about five feet in length. The remains evidently belong to a far back age.

Bound and Drowned

The West Bromwich police recovered from the canal the bodies of a young couple whose hands were tied together by a silk scarf. They were Harry Davis, twenty-one, a carter, and his sweetheart, Lizzie Martin, nineteen, a domestic servant, of Birmingham. The silk scarf with which their hands were tied was one which Davis was wearing when last seen alive.

Penny Fine and Penny Costs

When the Carrickbeg, Ireland, magistrates fined a man 2 cents and 2 cents costs for failing to have a light on his cart, the clerk pointed out that the costs could not be made less than 24 cents, and Mr. Grubb, who presided, said the Bench were agreed that 2 cents costs would be sufficient, and if Dublin Castle found fault with the decision they would take the responsibility.

Life For Her Brother

A story of a sister's devotion was told in Birmingham Coroner's Court when an inquest was held on Lizzie Nugent, a girl of thirteen, who was run down by a taxi-cab. She and her little brother, aged three, were on opposite sides of the road, and the boy started to cross the street to his sister. She saw a taxi-cab approaching and rushed across to save him. The driver in trying to avoid the boy ran into the girl.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

WOULD COUGH SO HARD
Would Turn Black In The Face.

A cough cold is one of the most dangerous kind. It leaves the throat or lungs, and sometimes both, affected if not taken care of immediately.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, containing as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree.

Mrs. C. J. Selig, Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a dreadful, hard cough. At night time he would cough so hard he would turn black in the face, and at times he would cough nearly an hour before he would stop. I tried different cough syrups, but they did him no good. The little fellow was wasting away, as he could not eat or sleep, the cough troubled him so. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it did him so much good I got another. Now I am only too glad to be able to write this to tell how thankful I am, and to tell every mother to use nothing else."

Be sure you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. See the trade mark; the three pine trees.

a man named Purcell and his wife, living between Ballingarry and Mullinahone, Ireland, the clothes of one of their children, a girl aged five, who had been left in charge of a nine-year-old brother, took fire, and before the flames could be extinguished she had received such severe injuries that she died in a few hours. On the same day an elder brother, aged sixteen, received such severe burns from the accidental overturning of a pot of boiling porridge that he nearly died.

Prehistoric River Found

Excavations for the sea wall being constructed by the Cumberland County Council at Allonby, a little watering-place on the Solway Firth, revealed the mouth of a long-lost river. It is believed to have dried up hundreds, and perhaps thousands of years ago.

From the depths of the strata, the character of the banks uncovered, the tree trunks dug up, and the general appearance, it is evident that the mouth of a deep river, with steep banks lined with trees, formerly existed. An inland upheaval doubtless took place by which the springs were cut off and found other rivers to take their waters.

CASH IN A CROCODILE

Sportsman Found Twenty-five Sovereigns in its Stomach

A Natal (South Africa) reader of "Rod and Gun" sends the following clipping with reference to the finding of twenty-five sovereigns inside a crocodile.

"Three Johannesburg sportsmen, Messrs. Godfrey De Villiers, S. S. Schleyer, and F. Hind, while hunting for water buck recently on the banks of the Komati River in Swaziland shot a crocodile and on opening it found to their amazement twenty-five sovereigns, in addition to eight heels of deceased bush buck, a quantity of stiff hair, a number of stones, etc. Three of the sovereigns were Kruger coins, and the remainder were of the Queen Victoria design. The latest date of any one of them was 1902, and therefore it was permissible for the hunters to assume that they had been inside the crocodile for at least ten years. The theory was further borne out by the fact that the crawling treasure trove was an old male of fully twelve feet in length, while the surest guide of all was the fact that the sovereigns were considerably worn, the milling on the edges having completely disappeared. It is surmised by experts that the coins were unaffected by gastric juices, but that the stones alongside which they were found must have rubbed the edges away in the course of years.

"The manager of the Standard Bank, Johannesburg, who examined the coins, stated that the "rubbing off" which they had been subjected to had reduced their value to about 16 shillings each. However, the firer of the first shot, Mr. De Villiers, was made some pretty good offers for the coins. One of the coins was presented to the owner of the land upon which the animal was shot.

"Possibly some one who was walking along the banks or through the river was attacked by the 'croc' and eaten. It may have been some unfortunate native who was making his way home having garnered the coin by labor on the Rand, or it may have been a white man with money in his belt who was hauled off his horse while crossing the stream.

RIVAL TO KOH-I-NOOR

Diamond Digger Found Stone of Immense Value

A great diamond of the first calibre weighing 178½ carats, and about the same size as the Koh-i-noor, was taken to England recently by Mr. H. Bowker, who found it in the dry bed of the Vaal River, in Cape Colony, just as he and his partner were about to throw up their claim and seek for a more lucrative diggings. In its rough state the gem looks not unlike a piece of barley sugar, with polished indentations and rounded off corners. When held to the light it shows a clear, translucent color.

Mr. Bowker made a tour of the leading jewellers in London, showing them the stone with the view to business. The experts treated the diamond with considerable deference, but were not to be drawn into an offer for it or any estimate of its value.

"A fine, clear stone," said one. "An undoubted amber," said another. But no one would think of purchasing it. "We could hardly make an offer," said a great firm to the owner; "we must leave that to you." One dealer spoke of Amsterdam, and a fifth of Paris. "Rather too much for us," frankly said another.

"This would suit a great connoisseur—someone who could appreciate the fine amber tint," was a further reply. "Now, if this had been a white stone," suggested a jeweller of renown. "Ordinary customers like a white stone; it would be saleable at once." Other suggestions were to find an Indian rajah with lakhs of rupees in his treasury, or a millionaire with prompt cash. Diamonds resembling the color of amber have been sold for over $1,000 per carat.

KING GUSTAV AND QUEEN VICTORIA OF SWEDEN
both strong believers in votes for women. The Queen is said to have converted King Gustav to her view, although at one time he was strongly opposed to the participation of women in public affairs.

A FREAK OF NATURE

While cutting up an ash tree, 8 feet in circumference, at Embleton Sawmill, Cumberland, the sawyers observed a dark object in the centre of the trunk. It was found to be a sparrow's nest containing the feathers and skeleton of a dead bird and four eggs. The egg-shells were exceedingly well preserved, but in the attempt to extricate them some were broken, and it was found that their contents had been entirely absorbed. It is assumed that the bird built its nest in the hollow of the tree and died while sitting on the eggs, the hole becoming sealed up as the tree grew. The nest had probably been built a century ago, the tree being over a hundred years old.

WHAT SHE MARRIED AND

WHAT HE MARRIED

As Usual.

Church usher (on "Church-going Sunday")—Where would you like to sit, sir?

Consultation.

"Did the doctor pronounce you sound as a dollar?"

"Yes; and sent me bill for five."

Something Wrong.

"Are you and papa doin' to stay at home dis evening?" asked the child of its mother.

"Yes, dear," her mother replied.

Cured.

Neeley—I thought Farley was a socialist.

Fiedler—He was; but his grandmother left him a twenty-thousand-dollar estate, with instructions to share it equally with every other member of his party.

Just So.

"Why do you write so many letters to the newspapers, old man? Do you suppose anybody wants to see your views in print?"

"Well, it's better than talking to yourself."

The Biter Bitten.

Harry—Did he try to insure the book agent?

Garry—Yes; and he sold him a set of books.

Theory.

Mrs. Goodsole—Didn't you learn to be a good citizen in the reform school?

Everett Wrest—Yes'm, I learnt it theoretically; but I ain't had no practice.

No Fight in Him.

Lawyer—I think I can get you a divorce, madam, for cruel and inhuman treatment; but do you think your husband will fight the suit?

Woman—Fight! Why, the little shrimp dasn't even come into a room where I am!

Sure Protection.

Half-Way Relief

Little Laura, who insists on getting up with her father and mother early in the morning, was complaining because her feet were cold.

"Drink a nice cup of cocoa," suggested her mother, "and that will make you warm all over."

Laura sipped in silence for a moment, then she protested.

"But amma ldi'm niwco e-

Ample Protection.

Tommy Shimmerpate, suspected of having falsified, was being reproved by his mother, who said,

"I do hope, my son, that when you grow up to manhood, you will never never tell a barefaced lie."

"Indeed, I will not!" declared the youngster. "I intend to raise whiskers."

Times Have Changed.

"Youth comes but once," sighed grandmother.

"That might have been true when you were a girl," said the little lady of the house; "but nowadays there are many youths, and they come often."

It May Have Been Something Else.

"I see that Brinkerton has at last quit smoking. His doctor told him more than a year ago that it was bad for him, and his wife has been trying for a long time to persuade him to give it up. Evidently he has at last been willing to listen to reason."

"I don't know whether it can properly be called listening to reason or not. His pretty stenographer complained that cigar smoke hurt her throat."

An Alternative

Hunkey—Did you find the Boston girl cold?

Dory—Yes; so I hugged the stove.

That's Different.

Father: "It's deeds, young man, not words, that count."

Son: "Did you ever send a cablegram?"

All in the Spelling.

"A little bare, my dear," replied the truthful George.

Faith.

"What is the best song that Miss Smythe sings?"

"There are several that I have not heard, aren't there?"

"Yes."

"Then it must be one of them."

Down in the Mouth.

Jack: "You ought to see him tickle the ivories!"

Stone: "Some pianist, you bet!"

Jack: "Pianist nothing! He is a dentist."

It Was Ever Thus.

Raff: "Me."

Trying to Agree.

"You looked very foolish when you proposed to me."

"Well, Henrietta," replied Mr. Meekton, "maybe I was."

The Horse for Him.

A Scottish farmer of a miserly disposition bought a horse at a fair. On the way home he thought a drink of water would refresh it, so he got a pail of water; but the animal would not take it. When no got home, he offered it a feed of corn; but to his surprise it would not touch that, either.

"Weel," he muttered to himself, "if only I was sure ye were a guid worker, ye're the verra horse for me."

Wife: "Do you remember, Tom, how we used to meet each other here at this statue before we were married?"

Husband: "Yes; there's another fool waiting now."

Sufficient.

Agnes—What did he call it?

Mary—I don't remember. I caught the disease, but not the name.

HIS OBJECT IN LIFE

Reporter—To what do you consider, sir, that you owe your great age?

Centenarian—To smokin', young man. I'm collectin' cigar coupons to get a piano, an' by heck! I'll do it 'fore I die.

Too Noisy.

"Look at the fate of the muckracker," said the the author of "Sister Carrie." "He has lost his popularity and one cannot but feel pleased at his disappearance, for his outcries did more harm than good. I am sure that he wishes now that he had been milder in his denunciation. He can sympathize with the dentist's wife.

"Awakening with a bad headache the morning after a G. A. R. banquet to celebrate Lincoln's birthday, a suburban dentist mused, not unpleasantly, on his last evening's spree. But suddenly his wife appeared and advancing to his bedside, shouted hysterically:

"You wretch! what will the neighbors say at your coming home last night?"

"But my dear, nobody saw me," the dentist protested.

"Nobody saw you! What if nobody did see you? You know well enough they all heard the way I carried on when you got back."

No Star, No Mercy.

Little Everett was a member of the Band of Mercy Society, and was proud of the membership. He wore his badge, a small star, as if it were a policeman's insignia, and was often heard reproving other boys and girls for cruel treatment of dogs and cats.

One morning a woman of the neighborhood heard a commotion outside Everett's home, and, going to the window, was surprised to find Everett in the act of tormenting the cat.

"Why Everett," she called, "what are you doing to the poor cat? I thought you belonged to the Band of Mercy Society."

Mother's Busy Day.

The monolog artist was moving his audience to tears.

"Dear old mother!" he was saying. "I will never forget how she used to rock all of us children to sleep. There were nineteen of us, and by the time she had us rocked to sleep, the alarm clock rang and she had to get dad's breakfast."

Fair Ones: "Will your dog bite us?"

The Lady (to the aeroplane demonstrator): I wish you wouldn't try to sell an airship to my husband.

The Salesman: And why not, madam?

"Because he isn't to be trusted with it."

A Clever Device.

It was the first time Dorothy had seen a water-cart.

"Oh, mamma!" she exclaimed, with wide-open eyes, "just see what that man's got on his wagon to keep the boys from riding on behind."

"Before my marriage I told her all my past life. Don't you think I showed a wonderful courage?"

The Difference.

Bacon—This paper says a man worth ten million dollars is no happier than a man worth nine million dollars. Money does not always bring happiness.

Egbert—But the man with the ten million dollars must be happier, for he does not have to worry where that extra million dollars is coming from.

Nothing Exclusive.

"So you are opposed to grand opera at popular prices?"

"Yes. Next they'll be having terrapin at popular prices and orchids at bargain rates. And then what interest will a rich man have in life?"

Foe of the Short Cut.

"Where did the phrase, 'The longest way 'round is the shortest way home,' originate?"

Professional Habit.

Redd—Does the doctor charge for consultations?

Greene—Oh, yes; I asked him how much he was paying for gasoline now, and he sent me a bill for two dollars.

Bill Rendered.

Dutton—You should pay more attention to your personal appearance, old chap. Remember that the clothes make the man.

De Broke—Yes; but for me the man refuses to make any more clothes.

The Reigning Fad.

"How long must I wait for this prescription?"

"About thirty minutes," answered the druggist; "but you can occupy your time pleasantly. Here is a coupon which entitles you to admission to our moving-picture show."

Another Meaning.

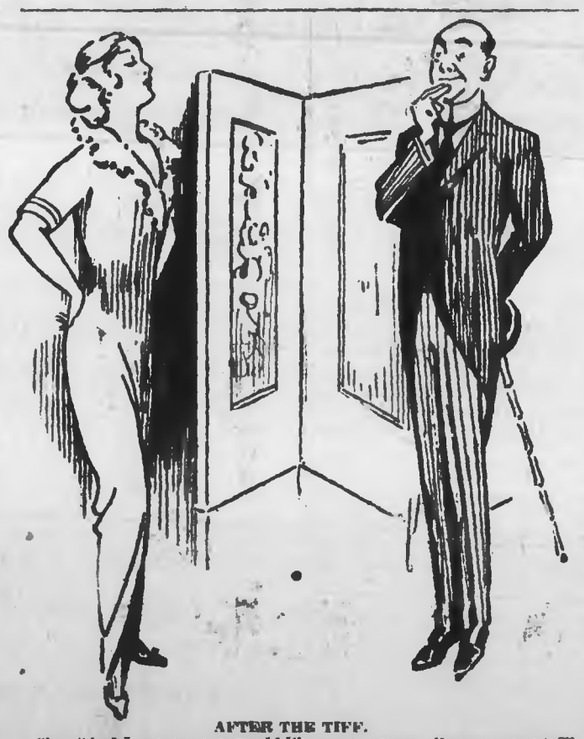
"After all," said Kwoter, "it's a true saying that 'He laughs best who laughs last.'"

"Not at all," replied Wise. "The really true saying is, 'He laughs best whose laugh lasts.'"

Obvious.

Miss Caustic—Your friend Smythe, brags that he is a self-made man. You never hear a self-made woman boasting about it.

Mr. Critic—No. They like every one to think it's natural.



AFTER THE TIFF.

She: "And I suppose you would like me to return all your presents?"

Editorial Person: "Not at all, my dear; only the letters; there's some jolly good stuff in them I can use again."

Quick Thinking.

Briggs: "Say, can you lend me five or ten—"

Braggs: "No—"

Briggs: minutes? I think I can show you how to make some money.

Braggs: trouble at all. You can have twenty if you want."

As the Jury Saw It.

Some time ago a young man was walking thru the suburbs with a beautiful girl, when he suddenly paused, threw his arms about her and impulsively kissed her on the sweetsome lips. Real peevish got the pretty one. Hastily backing away from the impetuous youth, she called a cop and had him arrested.

At the subsequent trial the young man made no defense, and, after hearing the girl's story, the jury retired to deliberate. Ten minutes later they filed back into the courtroom and asked the privilege of questioning the plaintiff. The judge granted the request.

"When that young ma[illegible]issed you miss," queried the fore[illegible]n impressively, "were you wea[illegible] that sau[illegible] little hat co[illegible]ed down over your left eye?"

"Yes, sir," was the pron[illegible]ply of the wondering plaintiff.

"To put it all in a [illegible]miss," continued the forem[illegible] you dressed like you are [illegible]and looking just the same?"

"Why, yes, sir," answered the girl, with increasing perplexity. "I believe that I was."

"Then, your honor," said the foreman, turning to the judge, "we acquit the defendant on the ground of emotional in[illegible]anity."

Sympathy.

He was middle-aged and untraveled. For forty-five years he had lived in the country. At last he made a trip to [illegible]

There for the first time in his life, he saw a schoolgirl go thro her gymnastic exercises for the amusement of the little ones at home. After gazing at her with looks of interest and compassion for some time he asked a boy near if she had fits.

"No," the boy replied. "Them's gymnastics."

"Ah, how sad!" said the man. "How long's she had 'em?"

When Winters Were Cold.

"Hoh!" contemptuously ejaculated Uncle Oracle Onken, during the recent spell of low temperature. "You young fellows don't know anything about cold weather. Why I remember the winter of eighteen hundred and so forth, when it was so cold that if you flung a dipper of b'lilin' water out o' doors it cracked like a gun. Yes, sir, and a live coal would freeze solid in five minutes. Worse than that, your conversation actually froze before it could be heard.

"I knew a stutterin' man who talked chopped ice, and a feller who drawled so that his remarks froze in his throat and had to be extracted with a corkscrew. You had to heat your watch every now and then, or it would tick itself full of particles of ice and stop runnin'. Us boys used to have a great joke. When visitors came, we would slip up and put a lot of frozen coyote growls in the fire-place, and when they thawed out they'd yell like demons, and we'd have a good laugh at the visitors' surprise. Aw, yes! it was sorter cold that winter!"

"Do you believe in long engagements?"

"Of course. The longer a man is engaged the less time he has to be married!"

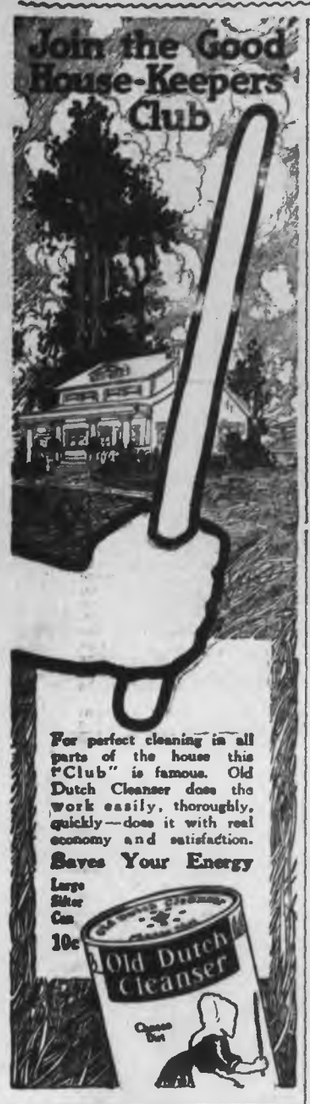
A PAGE OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN



Most men fancy they are looking for a wife when they are really looking for a mother.

A widow is a fascinating being, with a flavour of maturity, the spice of experience, the piquancy of novelty, the tang of practised coquetry and the halo of one man's approval.

Actions may speak louder than words, but they are not half so incriminating in a breach-of-promise suit.

DAME FASHION'S DECREES

New York, Feb. 14.—When a woman walked up and down in the promenade behind the boxes at the opera between the acts of a new piece, wearing the gown described below, there was a gasp of either admiration or astonishment.

It is not always easy to distinguish between the two when they are caused by clothes. You can judge for yourself what gave the reason for that gasp. It was those pleated fins at the ankles. They, at least, are novel. We have not seen them before, and whether or not they are the forerunners of a new fashion, time will tell.

They were made of white tulle, doubled, and finished with a picot edge. They were inserted in the slash at each side, which gave the wearer a chance to walk. In other days they would have exposed the ankles as the owner danced or moved about, but to-day, the well-dressed woman does not show her ankles as she did, because she learned how to adapt the novelties of the movement to her uses.

For instance, she wears one of the many kinds of garterettes or trouserettes that the shops offer instead of petticoats, such as the Persian bloomers of chiffon that are gathered into the legs below the knees to the ankles, or the ruffles that are pleated to a pair of garters of silk elastic.

Vegetables For The Winter Table

Most of the vegetables which are easily procured in winter, as beets, carrots, artichokes, turnips, and potatoes, are chiefly valuable for their potash salts, and some of them should therefore form a part of each day's dietary. Peas, beans, and lentils contain so much cellulose that hey may take the place of flesh food when the dried vegetables are the only ones obtainable. But nowadays our markets are supplied with fresh imported vegetables throughout the year. Although these can be bought occasionally, they are usually so expensive or so tasteless when out of season that it is a better plan often to keep to the regular winter vegetables or to serve canned or dried vegetables in attractive ways. To stimulate the appetite, fresh lettuce, tomatoes, or celery should often appear on the table, served separately or combined in salads.

Dried vegetables must be soaked in cold water several hours before cooking. Canned vegetables, emptied at once from the tin after being opened, should stand one hour that they may be re-oxygenated. If canned beans, peas, or asparagus are used, they should be put into a strainer, drained, and placed under running cold water. Mushrooms, which contain considerable nutriment, should often be found on the table. The French canned variety or that known as "campestris," are usually to be found on the market.

Vegetables should be washed in cold water, and cooked until soft in boiling salted water. Their colour is better kept by cooking them in an uncovered vessel. Time for cooking varies according to freshness or age. Add salt to peas and beans the last half-hour of cooking, and if very old potatoes are used, add the salt when they are nearly ready to serve.

Fried Celery, Tomato Sauce

Wash and scrape celery, and cut in three-inch pieces. Dip in batter made by mixing one-half cup bread flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, a few grains pepper, one-third cup milk, and one well-beaten egg together. Fry in deep fat, and drain on brown paper. Serve with tomato sauce. This sauce, which should be kept on hand, is made by cooking a slice of onion with one-half can tomatoes for fifteen minutes. Rub through a strainer. Rub together three tablespoons butter, three tablespons flour, and add one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Cook this second mixture before adding the tomato. If the tomatoes are very acid, add a few grains of soda. In order to retain the red colour of the tomatoes, brown the butter and flour together before adding the tomato liquid.

Beets with Sour Sauce.

Wash beets, and cook in boiling salted water until soft. Drain, and reserve one-half cup water in which beets were cooked. Plunge into cold water, rub off skins and cut into slices. Reheat in sour sauce. For the sauce, melt two tablespoons butter, add two tablespoons flour, and pour on the beet water. Add one-fourth cup, each, of vinegar and cream, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspono salt, and a few grains of pepper.

Fried Artichokes.

Sprinkle boiled artichokes cut in quarters with salt, pepper, and finely chopped parsley. Dip in batter made by mixing one cup bread flour with one-half teaspoon salt and few grains pepper, and adding two-thirds cup milk gradually, and two eggs well beaten. Fry the artichokes and batter in deep fat, and drain. In preparing artichokes, trim off tops of leaves closely.

Carrots and Peas

Wash, scrape, and cut young carrots in small cubes or fancy shapes; cook until soft in boiling salted water or stock. Drain, add an equal quantity of cooked green peas, and season with butter, salt, and pepper.

Stuffed Artichokes.

Prepare and boil artichokes, removing them from the water when slightly underdone. Fill with chicken forcemeat, and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven, basting twice with thin white sauce. Remove to serving dish and pour around thin white sauce. To prepare the forcemeat cook one-half cup fine stale breadcrumbs and one-half cup milk to a paste, add two tablespoons butter, white of one egg beaten stiff, and salt, a few grains cayenne, and a slight grating of nutmeg. Then add two-thirds cup breast of chicken pounded and forced through a puree strainer.

The white sauce is made of two tablespoons melted butter, to which is added one and one-half tablespoons flour mixed with one-fourth teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Pour on gradually one cup scalded milk. Stir until well mixed, then beat until smooth and glossy.

Chestnut Puree.

French and Italian chestnuts are often served in place of vegetables. For chestnut puree remove the shells from chestnuts and cook until soft in boiling salted water. Drain, mash, moisten with scalded milk, season with salt and pepper, and beat until light. Chestnuts are often boiled, riced and piled lightly in centre of dish, then surrounded by meat.

x x x x

Scalloped Onions.

Cut boiled onions in quarters. Put in a buttered baking dish, cover with white sauce, sprinkle with buttered cracker crumbs, and place on centre grate in oven to brown crumbs.

French Fried Onions.

Peel onions, cut in one-fourth inch slices, and separate into rings. Dip in milk, drain, and dip in flour. Fry in deep fat, drain on brown paper, and sprinkle with salt.

A man may "dare to do right," but he would never dare to acknowledge the fact to his bachelor friends.

Nowadays when a girl marries for love alone she has to spend the rest of her life explaining the phenomenon.

The most tragic figure in the eternal triangle is not the girl a man OUGHT to have married and didn't, but the girl he ought NOT to have married and did.

NEW HAIR DRESSING

Behold, the forehead shows again in the fashionable coiffure! It has been completely hidden for so long that it has almost been forgotten. It seems odd to see eyes looking out under a clear expanse of brow instead of a fluffy mass of hair. But this is a sight that greets us in the new coiffure.

For the rest, the ears are still hidden, although they seem to be emerging slowly from their hairy covering, says the New York Times.

Perhaps the matter of covering the ears is more easily accomplished — that is to say, more easily gracefully accomplished, for it is an easy enough matter simply to pull the hair over the ears — when the hair is off the forehead than when the hair is over the forehead. For the one line that we have been warned against, since it became the fashion to cover the ears, is the drooping, curving line from the middle of the forehead down over the ears. The line is not graceful, and is becoming to very few faces.

With the hair pulled back from the forehead it becomes impossible to draw the hair down in a long curve from the middle of the forehead to the ear. The long line must be broken. In fact, the curving line of hair that covers the ear now begins on the temples.

To arrange the hair in this new manner, draw it all gently back from the face, but draw it back more tightly from the forehead than from the sides of the head. Do not pull it tight back from the forehead, but do not puff it. Loosen it over the ears. It can be parted slightly over one temple if the parting makes it fluffier and more graceful.

For the French twist that goes with this coiffure the hair is drawn back to the nape of the neck and there rolled into a tight twist, reaching from the nape of the neck to the crown of the head. On top of the head the hair is puffed into a Psyche knot or a loose puff of some sort, and this is secured with combs or pins, or a jewelled band. The whole effect is one of neatness. There is no straggling hair on the neck, and even about the ears the hair must be neat.

Of course the high Psyche knot is an impossibility under a low-crowned hat. The knot would bulge the crown out of shape and the crown would flatten the knot or puff. Hence the new coiffure is infinitely more suited to evening than to day wear.

In the daytime, especially under a hat, the hair must still be arranged flatly, either wound about the head or else knotted neatly at the back or sides of the head.

CRIPPLING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

Cannot Be Cured by Liniments —Must be Reached Through the Blood

Thousands of men and women suffer severely from rheumatism. Cruel, crippling pains in the muscles and joints make every movement a torture. Many people think rheumatism is due to cold or wet weather and they try to cure themselves by rubbing liniments on the painful parts. This is a great mistake—the rheumatic poson is in the blood, and liniments and rubbing cannot give more than the most temporary relief. If you are a victim of rheumatism or lumbago you can only rid yourself of it by making your blood rich and pure, for only in this way can the poisons of rheumatism be driven from the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more cases of rheumatism than any other disease except anaemia, just because they make the rich, red blood that goes right to the root and cause of rheumatism. You cannot be well when your blood is impure, therefore, begin curing your rheumatism to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following are the particulars of one of the many thousands of cures to the credit of this health-giving medicine.

Mr. Jeremie Nadou, St. Jerome, Que., says: "A few years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. The pains in my back, arms and legs were terrible. I treated wth several doctors but they did not help me, and as time went on I was unable to work, and began to think that I would be a cripple for life. While in this trying condition a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try this remedy, and I got a supply of the Pills. I had taken the Pills for several weeks before any improvement was noticed, but once signs of relief came the improvement from that time on was rapid, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until every vestige of the trouble disappeared. No one but a similar sufferer can imagine the gratitude I feel for this relief from pain, and because I have since enjoyed perfect health I urge other rheumatic sufferers to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. .....

Of all the things that can be made with a glassful of jelly, jelly roll is probably the favorite. Here is a recipe for it. Make a cake from a cantul of sugar and a quarter of a cupful of butter worked to a cream, two well beaten egg yolks, half a cupful of milk, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with a cupful and a half of flour and half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of vanilla, and the writes of two eggs beaten stiff. Add the ingredients in the order named. Pour this cake into a long baking tin, lined with well-buttered paper to the depth of a quarter of an inch, and bake in a moderate oven until it is a light brown. Turn it out on buttered or wax paper, and, while it is still warm, spread it with any sort of jelly. Roll it carefully and hold the roll together with a wire skewer or two until it is set

In cooking meat, the idea is to retain the nourishment and flavour. The flavour and juices depend as much on the method of cooking as upon the quality of the meat. Boiling water or strong, dry heat will retain flavour, inclosing the meat in a crust which will not permit the juices to flow out.

A simple and easy way to iron sheets is to first fold the two hems together right side out, then fold the sheet across the centre forming a square

Some New Blouses

The Paris designers always place much stress on the little things, the "accessories." A frill here, a bow there, something new in a girdle and you have the very latest not in blouses.

White satin is in vogue for afternoon blouses. There is a new use of a dark brown shade of tulle or mousseline de sole. In one blouse of white satin there is an unusual note of brown tulle. It forms the shirred sleeves that come from the cuirass bodice. A frill of tulle finishes the top of the lowcut neck. A side fastening of the blouse gives a slanting line, [illegible] of panne velvet of the same shade of brown defines the waist line. Cuffs of velvet finish the sleeves.

Ecru tulle is used for a blouse, that shows an odd peplum of tulle which falls over the velvet belt. Sleeves are half length and have the fullness gathered in by black velvet that is run through slots in the lace and tied at the outer side in bows. At the neck line there is a band of velvet which gathers the fullness of a blouse and leaves a ruffle that is a modification of the regular Medici collar.

A smart combination of velvet and sheer white linen is shown in an unusual blouse. The velvet is made on simple lines, and the linen forms the vest and the high collar, that is relieved by a line of hemstitching. At the front there is a cravat of velvet ribbon. The cuffs are flaring and finished with hemstitching at the top edges. This velvet model is shown also in tapestry blue, terra cotta and brown.

White crepe de chine is used for a blouse which suggests a military smartness in the high collar and the peplum. Black tulle passes through straps of crepe de chine and the ends are tied at the back in a smart bow. The sleeves have long shoulder lines emphasized by stitching that runs from the neck to the cuff. Turned-back cuffs are edged with pleatings of tulle. There is a noticeable fullness at the back over the narrow belt. Revers in front, continue the military effect of this type of the jacket blouse.

A waistcoat feature is seen on a blouse model in ivory-white velvet, and which has a velvet girdle of yellow and blue. The top is defined with blue velvet ribbon, and a band on each sleeve finishes the cuff. There is a high collar of satin that rolls back from the neck from a vest effect, that is suggested in the satin. Under-sleeves are of sheer linen, showing a considerable fullness, that falls over fitted cuffs.

"ORANGE LILY SAVED MY LIFE"

These words or expressions having the same meaning are contained in hundreds of the letters I have received during the past year. Many were from women who had suffered agonies from falling of womb; others from women who had escaped dangerous surgical operations, as the tumors and ulcers had been removed by the action of Orange Lily; and others who had suffered from suppressed menstruation, leucorrhoea, painful periods, etc. For all these and the other troubles known in general as Women's Disorders, Orange Lily furnishes a positive scientific, never-failing cure. It is applied direct to the suffering organs, and its operation is certain, and beneficial. As a trial actually proves its merit, I hereby offer to send, absolutely free, a box worth 25c., sufficient for ten days' treatment, to every suffering woman who will write for it. Enclose 2 stamps. Cards For Juliet.

A charming custom among tourists at Verona is that of leaving their visiting cards at the reputed tomb of Juliet. This act, however, must be taken as a pretty compliment to the immortal love story rather than as an offering in memoriam, for it is unlikely that travelers have not learned that the tomb is in reality one of those pious fictions so dear to the sentimental and that even Shakespeare's tragedy itself is generally held to have no historical basis. A writer in the Graphic of London says, "The so called tomb, of red Veronese marble, in the gardens of the Orphanage, was formerly a washing trough." Another writer is no less severe. "There is plenty to see in Verona," he says, "the cities of northern Italy, without wasting time, money and emotion in looking at frauds." But the custom remains and will remain as long as there are tourists.

Neglect of the Scalp.

Inheritance has something to do with baldness. Men in a family usually have a disposition to get bald at about the same age. Certain scalp diseases cause baldness, but the biggest factor in baldness is neglect. The scalp is exceedingly dirty in the average run of men and boys. If any other six inches of skin were kept as dirty as the scalp it would be considered a disgrace. There is no reason why boys should not be taught to wash the hair with soap and water every day, then dry and brush well. As soon as the boy gets old enough to wash his ears and to keep his face clean down to the collar line he should also keep his scalp clean. If the hair after washing is too dry a little grease can be used. Following this plan there should be no premature baldness. Generally the horse is out before the stable door is locked.—Chicago Tribune.

Could only Walk From Chair to Bed

What thousands of people are crippled by lumbago and rheumatism arising from derangement of the kidneys. Many, very many, have obtained relief and cure by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Others continue to suffer, not knowing the efficiency of this extraordinary prescription of the famous Receipt Book author.

Mr. Mosher.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, South Augusta, Granville Co., Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I had Rheumatism so bad I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any man. I cannot speak too highly of so excellent a medicine."

This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister of Brockville, Ont.

There is proof like this in almost every town and village in this broad Dominion. There is no doubting the exceptional value of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a means of regulating the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby removing from the body the poisonous impurities which cause pain, suffering and helplessness. A FEW "STOPS"

Stop talking—learn to speak only as you and your friends will somehow profit thereby.

Stop worrying—when you can handle the present as well as God will handle the future, you will laugh at your worries.

Stop wishing—a wish is confession of weakness. Want what you want hard enough to get it, or else feel superior to the need.

Stop criticising—only an ass wastes energy in braying.

Stop hesitating—it is the plunger who goes to the bottom of things. And whether gold or mud is at the bottom, the man who has found it rests.

Stop imitating—a real ruby is worth more than an artificial diamond.

Stop idling—either work or play or sleep or travel; in short, make even your rest-period a thing of ambition, volition, system.

Stop hurrying—when you teach your brain to outrun your body, your body will stay quiet.

Lose yourself in your work. Come early and stay late. Use every spare moment in developing methods, first to work better, and then faster. If there is a man higher up in the same business, devote an evening a week to studying how he got there.

Analyze your average day, and find how many hours a week you waste.

LOCKS AT THE SAULT

Marvellous Canal Machinery to be Seen in Canada

We can see about the same kind of machinery at the Sault Ste. Marie locks, which connect Superior with the lower lakes as we would if we went to see the Panama canal. These locks are wonderful and quite a contrast to the small lock first built at this point and the little tramway which carried logs around the rapids in the St. Mary River before any canal was dug.

Statistics are often dull, but, as a matter of fact, in the few months that these canals are open in the summer more freight passes through than through the Suez Canal. It is a fine sight to see the immense freighters, sometimes four in a lock, slowly rise or sink to the desired level, and watch the passengers crowd to the bow of the boat to experience the sensation of going through some of the most wonderful locks in the world.

Lake captains boast of this fact that though the Great Lakes are immense bodies of water they can navigate their boats into harbor without the need of a pilot—something ocean captains always require. Usually these men have worked up from common sailors and are familiar with all the moods and tenses of the great inland seas—bodies of water that astound foreigners, they are so vast and look so much like the ocean.

Japanese Thrift

In Japan examples of thriftiness are amazing. On account of the rapidly growing population the people cannot afford to waste the value of a straw. Even the seaweed and octopus serve for food. Hillsides that would be given up in Canada as absolutely untillable have been converted into rice fields in forty irrigated terraces rising above each other on a single slope and made permane by walls of masonry. If there is no water, it can be carried to the topmost terrace of the farmers, and if the hillside is rocky, even soil itself may be taken from some distant deposit to the terrace.

HINTS IN DAIRYING

How You May Increase Profits From the Dairy

Weed out the unprofitable cows.

Feed economically.

Care for the milk produced in the way that it should be cared for.

The question is not "What is the average production of the herd?" but "Is each cow in the herd a profit-maker?"

It is important to know what it costs to feed a cow, but it is also worth while knowing how much is left in your pocket after the feed is paid for.

In caring for milk, cleanliness and cold are the two great essentials.

Milk may become contaminated in many ways, and anything that we do to keep dust and dirt out of the milk-pail means milk of better flavor and better keeping qualities.

Keep the separator and its surroundings clean.

Set the separator to take a cream so rich that one gallon will make from 3 to 3½ pounds of butter.

Do not add sweet cream to the ripened cream the day you are going to churn.

Choose the temperature that will bring the butter in nice, firm granules in from 20 to 30 minutes.

Butter should be salted to suit the consumer, and this salt should be evenly distributed and thoroughly dissolved.

Asking Him to Read the Future.

"I shall call upon a fortune teller this morning," said Mr. Blubb.

"Going to try to learn something about the future?" asked Mr. Waggles.

"Yes. I am going to ask him when he expects to pay the arrears of rent for that cottage of mine he is occupying as a school of astrology and institute for psychical research."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

An Old Puzzle.

An excellent, if an old, puzzle is:

How can a window having a height equal to its width be made twice as large without increasing its height or width?

Impossible! Oh, no! In the first instance it is shaped like a diamond; then it is changed to a square.

Your Silver Teapot.

When the inside of a silver teapot starts to tarnish the following idea is very good to make it look like new: Put a large piece of washing soda into the teapot and fill with boiling water. Then boil it for one hour over a spirit lamp and you will find it will become as bright inside as out, and the soda will not injure the silver in any way.

His Chief Objection.

Turning to the newspaper reporter, who was his passenger, the aviator exclaimed:

"It's all off: the propeller is broken, and we are doomed to fall 6,000 feet!"

Doctor Ought to Know.

Two Irishmen weer washing windows on the tenth floor of a London building, and one of them lost his footing and fell to the pavement below. His frightened companion ran downthe stairs and had just reached the unfortunate mans side as the doctor said:

"I guess the poor fellow is dead."

At that the injured man opened his eyes and said:

"Shure, and Oi'm not dead."

"Keep quiet, said the other Irishman, "the doctor knows best."

THREE MILES IN THREE WAYS

Mr. F. Allen Tomkins, secretary of the Thanet Hunt, offered a wager of $50 that he could cover three miles in twenty minutes, walking one mile, running another, and riding the third on horseback. He had not prepared himself for the event by any special training.

The wager was accepted by Mr. Robert Hodgman, a Ramsgate sportsman, and Mr. Tomkins performed the feat in 18 minutes 40 2-5 seconds, having 1 minute 19 2-5 seconds to spare.

Hundreds of people lined the track along the main road through Stelling Minnis, near Canterbury, and opinions as to the result seemed evenly divided. Mr. Tomkins, who is thirty-three years of age, appeared in running costume and boots. Electing to run first, he covered the mile in 6 minutes 30 seconds. Walking the second mile, he made the fine time of 9 minutes 30 seconds. Then, unassisted, he mounted a chestnut cob and galloped the remaining stage in 2 minutes 40 2-5 seconds.

EX-SHAH IN BERLIN

Living as a Persian Merchant Under an Assumed Name

Mohammed Ali, ex-Shah of Persia, who was deposed and expelled in 1909, is living in Berlin, under the name of Kasan Mach Nudross, and posing as a merchant.

About a year ago a Persian, accompanied by his wife, two children, a small retinue of servants, and a number of other Persians, came from Odessa and leased a private dwelling in Meirotto street. The stranger, who passed himself off as a Persian merchant in bad health, went under treatment by Dr. Cohn and Professor Kiemperer, two specialists. After a few months' treatment he requested his physicians to address him as "Majesty," and, according to the Berlin "Gazette" it developed that the alleged merchant is the ex-Shah.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Weak and Dizzy Spells.
Heart Would Beat Something Awful.

Those feelings of weakness, those dizzy spells which come over people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves. One dizzy spell may pass off, but eventually they will come frequently, and at the same time more serious.

Those who are wise will start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills before their case becomes hopeless, for they have no equal for restoring the heart to its usual strength, and making the nerves firm and steady.

Mrs. Len. Kinney, Moose Mountain, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with weak and dizzy spells, and my heart would beat something awful. I got so I had those spells every day. I got so I would try one medicine, and then another, but nothing did me any good until I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I can safely say they did me more good than anything I ever took, for I feel like a very different woman. My friends often ask me what I have been taking, and I always say 'Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.' I tell all my friends who say their heart troubles them, to take your pills."

WONDERFUL JEWELS

A Glance at Those of London's Lord Mayor

It has been decided by a court of law that a gold chain is not necessary to add dignity to a Mayor. The corporation of a certain town some years since resolved to ornament their Mayor with the usual symbol of authority and voted the sum of $1,000 out of the rates to pay for the gold chain. The Court held that the chain not being necessary, the money could not be allowed out of the rates. The gold chains of mayors are, of course, corporation property, and the Mayor ceases, as soon as he retires, to have any property in it. The gold chains and jewels are among the most wonderful ornaments in the world, being composed of pure gold and adorned with an enormous number of diamonds. Their value has been estimated at not less than $600,000. Every Lord Mayor, before he is elected, is called upon to enter into a bond for their safe custody during his term of office, and before he resigns the insignia at the close of his mayoralty they are most carefully examined by special jewelers in order to see that during the year's wear the diamonds have not been loosened in their holdings, and that his successor may wear them without anxiety. No wonder that when the Lord Mayor is wearing all the insignia of his proud position he is a special object of attention by a special police guard.

RADIUM EMITS INVISIBLE RAYS

A Gram is Worth a Fortune—is Usually Separated From Pitchblend

Many persons are asking what radium really is, the general opinion being that it is a substance of extreme brilliancy and continually giving off vast amounts of heat to say nothing of sundry electric shocks and mysterious deaths every time it is approached in any other than the duly prescribed form.

However the general public have had so little opportunity to become familiar with it so that it is no wonder that the true facts concerning the mysterious substance have become stretched.

Radium gives off a certain amount of heat and there are certain experimenters who claim that there is a very feeble light emitted under certain conditions, but its great value is the invisible ray which comes from it, and by means of this invisible ray all the experiments and curative results so far attained have been performed.

Radium is combined with bromine in the form of radium bromide and in this condition is sold for about $75 per milligram, or the one thousandth part of a gram, a gram being about the twenty-ninth part of an ounce.

The great source of radium so far has been a substance called pitchblend. Tons of this matter must be treated and sifted before the costly radium is separated. Other sources have been discovered and worked to some extent, but as there are very many other radio active substances found with the radium the refining is more difficult than with pitchblend. It might be interesting to know that the incandescent gas mantles, so freely used now, are highly radio active and if one is placed over a few coins or jewelry which are in turn resting on a photographic plate in a light-tight box, and the entire combination put aside for about a week, the plate may be developed and the images of the coins will be on the plate. The invisible rays have acted as light and this is perhaps the best way to understand the powers of radium. Of course radium is very much more active than the thorium on the mantle, but the mystery comes along when we consider that these rays apparently never stop.

The following are among the instructions issued to soldiers on furlough in connection with the War Office scheme to turn every man in the army into a recruiting sergeant: "If you meet a man who wants to enlist in the army or Special Reserve, fill in one of the enclosed postcards, address and post it to the recruiting officer. You will then receive the recruiting reward if the man is passed into the service as a result of your communication.

"A reward varying from $1.20 to 36 cents is paid for each recruit finally approved, provided he does not already belong to the Special Reserve."

SPIRITS BURNED MONEY

At Least This Irishman Was Willing to Give Them Credit For It

That superstition of the mediæval type still prevails in the British Isles was made evident during police court proceedings at Buncrana, Donegal. A young woman named Winifred McCarron was committed for trial, charged with the theft of $1,500, the property of Michael McFaul of Clonmany.

Police-Inspector Lowndes, who prosecuted, said the money had been withdrawn from a bank for the purpose of purchasing a small holding for Michael, who placed it in a drawer of the dressing table in his bedroom in the house of his brother Patrick, with whom the accused had been a domestic servant for two years.

Later, a fire was discovered in Michael's bedroom, and when it was extinguished with some difficulty it was found that Michael's clothes, which had been in the wardrobe, were destroyed, while there were also traces of the fire in the dressing table drawer, where the bank notes had been placed. On examination, it was found that the drawer contained a small heap of ashes, such as would remain after paper money had been burned.

The members of the McFaul family accepted the supposed loss with some complacency, which could only be explained by the idea apparently entertained by them of spiritual intervention—that there were ghosts, and that the loss of the money was to be taken as a warning directed against the matrimonial arrangements into which Michael was about to enter.

Several days afterwards the accused visited Londonderry City, and, through the medium of another person, endeavored, although unsuccessfully, to get three $100 notes changed at the Central Post Office. She was discharged from her situation. McFaul, in giving evidence, said there were fourteen $100 notes in the bundle. The drawer itself was not burned, or even scorched. He thought that some ill-luck was coming on him, and he left home the following day.

CANADA IS QUICKER

Big Order For Dredges Is Placed in the Dominion.

BUSY YEAR IN PROSPECT

Toronto Shipbuilding Firm Can Guarantee Quicker Delivery of Hug Dredges Required for Toronto Harbor Development and British Firms Lose Order—Other Work Under Way.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—Two dredges to cost $500,000 have been ordered for the work of deepening Toronto harbor. With a capacity of eighteen thousand cubic yards per day each, shipbuilders declare they will be the finest and strongest ever constructed. They are to be ready for operation by July 1st of this year.

The contract for the two dredge hulls has been placed by the Canadian Stewart Co., who will do the harbor work, with the Polson Iron Works & Shipbuilding Co., along with another contract for a large steel derrick scow to cost $40,000. It is expected that the dredge hulls will be launched by June 1st.

It was the original intention to place the orders for the equipment in question with a British firm, but it was found that quicker delivery could be obtained from the Toronto shipbuilders.

The dredges now on order will do the bulk of the work of reclaiming over six hundred acres of marsh lands in Ashbridge's Bay district, which has been undertaken by the Harbor Board. They are to be equipped with pumps which will deliver the material dredged from the bottom of Toronto Bay to a point from one to one and a half miles distant.

Six dump scows which are being built for the Quebec Harbor Commission will be ready for the water before the end of this month, and the ice in the harbor will be thawed by steam pipes for the launching if "Old Sol" does not remove it earlier than usual.

Two steel steam lighters for Hudson Bay are to leave Toronto about June 1st.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if you eat meat regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Thirteenth Is Unlucky Day

Yesterday Was an Evil Day Among the Persians—A Lynching Bee

Friday, the 13th. Lucky day. Away with myths and superstitions, forget the glooms and the jinxes waiting around the corner, with sharpened laws. It may be true that on the last Friday, the 13th, thirteen hundred miners went on strike in the Wilkesbarre collieries and that a mob lynched Bennett Simmons, a Southern negro, but that is no reason for saying that you are going to fall down stairs and break a nose, or that you are going to step on nice, snow-covered strip of ice and so find your way to the hospital.

Friday, the thirteenth, some say, rarely fails to "make bad." But it is also said that there is a charm against such evils. A short hair, it is explained, from the back of a policeman's head, when tied with a bit of brightly coloured ribbon and worn as a watch charm, will ward off all the occult influence of that fateful day.

Paris Believes in it.

It is said that even Queen Victoria was quite superstitious about the fatality of Friday the 13th, but in this age, even though the water-pipe bursts in the basement or the snow piles high on the front steps, don't blame the day and the number. Gay Parisians may be excused for listening to this myth, but not Canadians. Paris, for instance, refuses to conduct marriages on such a day, nor will those light-hearted citizens start a journey. In fact, so firm is the belief in myths that it is stated that on one Friday the 13th, the street railways of Paris and the steam lines of that country suffered a loss of nearly 40,000 francs.

Only a Sixth Subscribed.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The response to the appeal made by the British committee last October for a public subscription of $300,000 to enable it to carry out the British program in connection with the Anglo-American peace centenary, thus far has been only $50,000, and the Duke of Teck, president of the committee yesterday issued an urgent request for the subscription of the $250,000 still needed.

Of the sum required, $75,000 is to be used for the restoration of and furnishing an endowment for Sulgrave Manor, in Northamptonshire, the ancestral home of the family of George Washington, which recently was purchased by the British committee for $42,000.

Ice Jam Feared at Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 14.—An ice jam in the lower Niagara River, similar to that of 1909, which did thousands of dollars' damage, is feared to-day. The greatest ice bridge of the winter extends from the outlet of the Niagara Falls Power Co.'s tunnel to the foot of horseshoe falls, and the surface of the river is a solid mass of ice between the ice bridge and the head of the whirlpool rapids and between Lewiston and Youngstown. Conditions in the upper river are unchanged to-day, but a few meagre streams of water are passing over the American falls.

That proposed New York skyscraper 901 feet high would outsoar the Woolworth building, but would still be topped by the Eiffel tower in Paris While going skyward why not go for a world record and be done with it temporarily at least?

He's Back to Work Again, After Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., Feb. 13. — (Special.)—Mr. D. A. Froncare, a well known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again, and he says without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Froncare says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuralgia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them.'

Quebec Conservatives Urge Further Probe In Fair Bill Case.

QUEBEC, Feb. 14.—The two legislative chambers of the province last night discussed the reports of their committee finding J. Octave Monsseau, Louis Phillippe Berard and Achille Bergevin guilty of corruption in accepting bribes.

In the Legislative Council no action is indicated in yesterday's speeches, but in the Legislative Assembly the proceedings were more dramatic. Hon. Mr. Taschereau, chairman of the investigating committee urged the adoption of the committee's report and asked the House to leave it at that. Mousseau having resigned his seat, he submitted there was no need to take further action.

Messrs. Bernier and Jean Prevost submitted an amendment to the report asking that the whole matter be referred back to a committee with instructions that enquiry be held to ascertain if any part of the money which Mousseau had received, had been paid or promised to any members of the Assembly. It was further asked that the strictest probe should be made into the statement of Edward Beck that he had received information that Montreal lawyers held in their safes receipts from lawyer legislators for money paid ostensibly as legal fees, but which really were bribes for supporting private legislation passed through the Legislature.

TO GUARD LEGATION.

British Flagship Lands Machine Guns to Ship to Mexico City.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 14.—A party of British bluejackets landed two machine guns from the British flagship Suffolk late Thursday night and placed them on board a car on the Mexican Railway, consigned to the British Legation in Mexico City. With the guns was sent a great quantity of ammunition. It is assumed here that the guns and ammunition are intended for the defence of the British Legation in case of an uprising in the Federal capital.

I Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will Be Sufficient to Prove its Value in Your Disease

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing conquers kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism. I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me Understand, I will not send you a valueless "sample, proof or test treatment," nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, as it is not a "cure-all," and I give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles. If you notice one or more of these symptoms you need this medicine, and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have give your age, and your name and address. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynett, 346 Franklin Building, Toronto, Ont. You promise me nothing; you pay me nothing for it. All I ask so there shall be no mistake, is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished. It stops rheumatic aches and pains immediately. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscles no longer ache and crooked joints quickly straighten out. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so that you soon feel healthier and stronger, sleep better and eat better and have energy throughout the day. It does all this and yet contains nothing injurious and is absolutely vouched for according to law.

Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes each day for a few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair-minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will relieve HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

who will send medicine free of charge to those who need it.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of instructions and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promises. Show an inclination to get well and write me, and I will gladly send you a supply free.

These are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Nervousness, loss of flesh.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Weak, watery blood.

Radical Peer Wants Enquiry Into "Distribution of Honors."

LONDON, Feb. 14.—It is expected that revelations of an exciting character will be made in the House of Lords next week when Lord Selbourne raises the discussion "Concerning contributions to party funds and distributions of honors."

Lord Charnwood, Radical peer, will propose that, in view of persistent allegations implying that contributions to party funds have been the consideration to Ministers who recommend names to the King for honors, the House would welcome an assurance from the Government that such allegations are untrue and that, in view of actual or possible abuses of party funds in regard to the manner in which they are employed, the House urges the immediate appointment of a royal commission to inquire by what amendments of corrupt practice acts such abuses may most effectively be restrained.

Eczema Only Skin Deep

A few skin troubles originate in the blood. But very few. Dr. Evans, ex-Commissioner of Health, and a famous writer on medical subjects, says:

"We shall begin to make headway with skin diseases when we learn two things; first, that skin disease does not come from impure blood; second, that so-called blood purifiers have no such action."

The skin can be cleared up, and the almost intolerable itching and burning stopped, by local treatment, applied directly to the parts affected.

Make up your mind to start now and give yourself a smooth, velvet complexion.

You can do it with the aid of the wonderful D.D.D. Prescription, a cooling, refreshing lotion—not a salve or grease. It soothes your tender skin, opens the pores, drives out the old impurities and gives you a skin like a baby—smooth and clear.

You don't risk a cent. Don't suffer another day. Call at our store to-day. Ask also about D.D.D. Soap—best for tender skin.

THE MINISTER OF MILITIA OPENED NORWOOD'S SPACIOUS NEW ARMOURY

Col. Sam Hughes Brought a Dash of Colour, Smiles, Glad Hand and Fine-Looking Officers to Asphodel's Village.

GIVEN FINE RECEPTION

Let the armouries provide supervised amusement for the youth.

I am in favour of peace, but I do not feel that the millenium is close at hand.

The home is losing its grasp. Street training is not healthy.

The best guarantee of peace is to have all the people prepared ot stand up for their country.

We want to train the boys to shoot, and to shoot straight.

The seas no longer divide. the British Empire. They unite it.

The soldier never caused a war. He is the poor beggar that has to turn out to put it down.—Colonel, the Honourable Sam Hughes at Norwood.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 13.—Colonel, the Honourable Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, completed the forging of another link in the chain of armouries with which he has bound the Dominion, when he formally opened on Friday afternoon Norwood's splendid new drill hall.

The village made an effort to prepare a setting befitting the visit of the distinguished militarists, for the Minister was accompanied by Col. Fiset, D.S.O., P.A.M.C., Deputy Minister of Militia, Col. V. A. S. Williams, A.D.C., Adjutant-General, Lt.-Col. C. F. Winter, Military Secretary to the Minister, Col. Clegg, Col. Miller, and Major Mills, of Peterborough. A few of the stores were decorated, and here and there a Union Jack defied the February wind.

A Fine Procession.

The zero weather did not deter the citizens from offering a hearty welcome at the station when the C.P.R. noon train dropped the Minister's special car an hour and a quarter late. The 40th Regimental Band from Campbellford waded into a flashy march, the High School cadets formed into line, behind them came the visitors in the best equipages in the village, and the rear guard extended into quite a long line of representatives of the Council, Board of Trade, local militia and ordinary ratepayers. It was a decidedly commendable procession that wound its way over the hill, down through the village to the Exhibition grounds where the new Armoury replaces the Fair building.

Complimented Cadets.

Colonel Hughes apparently overlooks nothing, and his claims of interest in the youth of the country was demonstrated by a little incident before entering the building. The Cadets, you would not have recognized them as such in their ordinary overcoats, were drawn up in line near the door. The Minister stopped before them and congratulated them and the band upon their fine showing. To the boys he said he was pleased with their manly appearance and hoped they would persevere in their drills. "But it is too cold to talk out here; let us go inside," he concluded.

The Colonel's blue-grey great coat was a novelty to the school children to whom a half-holiday had been granted for the occasion. This garment and the dress regimentals must have had an appeal for more than the small boy. Maybe it instilled in a few of them the hope that they, too, some day might be so privileged.

The Armoury, possibl the most spacious building in Norwood, was crowded to the rear wall. The interior was decorated with banners and bunting, and a balcony extending along the second floor at one end, in front of the officers' quarters.

Addresses Read.

Mr. J. B. Pearce, the local postmaster, was chairman, and in addition to the officers mentioned above there were Lt.-Col. Bigdall, of the 40th Regiment, Mr. Sexsmith and others.

The Campbellford Band opened the proceedings with a well rendered number, although they broke down on the first attempt after covering about a dozen bars. "Let's try that again," whispered Bandmaster Dickenson, and the result was a well-rendered selection.

Reeve B. W. Squire on behalf of the citizens read an address of welcome and appreciation to Col. Hughes, and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, of the local Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, presented a similar euologium.

There is a proposal to take a contingent of Ontario Scouts through every Province of the Dominion, for mutual advantage, and to increase the fraternity feeling between the Scouts of the various Provinces.

By reason of numerous absentees through illness and the abstention from voting of seven O'Brienites, who are resolved to take no part in the proceedings of Parliament until William O'Brien is re-elected, the Government's majority of 98 last session, by which the Home Rule bill was carried, was reduced to 78 on February 11th.

The value of the personal property is $513198.98, consisting of mortgages and insurance. The list of his shares in the capital stock of companies and not included in the will amount to $1,305,000.

CHILDREN ARE BADLY INJURED WHILE COASTING

Harold Gollop Had Leg Broken While Sleigh-riding on School Hill and Two Companions Were Hurt

HIT DELIVERY RIG

Harold Gollop, a local boy, and two girls were painfully injured yesterday afternoon while sleigh-riding on the Murray Street hill, in front of the Central school. The former sustained a broken leg, one of the girls had her nose broken, and the other received a deep cut in the forehead.

The accident occurred about half-past four yesterday afternoon. The three young people were sleigh-riding on Murray Street hill, and were approaching College Street, when R. Denne's delivery rig drove from in front of the Court House and turned on to Murray Street. When the driver saw the sleigh it was too late to turn aside, and going at terrific speed the "bobs" collided with the delivery rig. The sleighs were broken, and the three passengers were thrown against the rig.

Harold Gollop, who is the son of Mr. R. P. Gollop, proprietor of the Snowden House, was taen to the hotel in the delivery sleigh, and his injuries were attended to by Dr. Cameron. The girls were taken to Dr. Halliday's residence, where he dressed their injuries.

To-day all three are doing as nicely as could be expected, but will have to spend the next few days in their respective homes.

Big Bill At Royal Theatre

There is big bill on at the Royal Theatre next week. Tanhouser's great $500,000 feature film "The Star of Bethlehem" will be [illegible] during the first two days and this wonderful picture should be seen by every one. Nothing finer in the picture line has ever been seen here. In addition there are some great vaudeville novelties. The Simpson trio will present a high-class musical act, and Harry Rich, comedian, and Miss Joy, a singer of note, complete an excellent bill.

Stony Lake Cottagers' Association Will Ask Commissioners to Act in Their Behalf

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

On Monday evening, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, the local members of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association will meet to decide on some concerted action in connection with improving summer train service to the lakes, and having the fishing regulations amended.

One of the principal matters that will be discussed will be in regard to asking the Dominion Railway Commission to make the Grand Trunk Railway run their tracks down to the wharf at Lakefield. There is a very heavy traffic to the Lakes via the G.T.R. through Lakefield, and it is the opinion of the cottagers that the present conditions which force hem to have their entire parapher nalia carted a distance of two or three hundred yards from the station to the wharf should be remedied. As one of them said to the Examiner to-day: "It is an additional expense, an infernal nuisance and results in a deplorable loss of time. The trains leaving Lakefield for this City are delayed because of the large amount of baggage that has to be transported from the boat to the train, and the boats leaving the village for the north are likewise kept waiting while the carters make two or three trips from the station to the wharf." In the opinion of the cottagers the tracks should be built right down to the wharf, so that the baggage can be taken directly off the train and onto the steamer. This would facilitate transportation, reduce travelling expenses and save time. It could, they claim, be accomplished with but little expense to the railway.

Fishing Regulations.

Another matter of importance will be to consider the advisability of having the fishing laws changed so that the close season will last until the first of July, instead of ending on the 15th of June, as at present. The cottagers say that they have found that the fish are still in spawn at the fifteenth of June, and are consequently very hungry. The result is that a large number are caught in that condition. This should not be allowed, and the move is to ask the Government o have the open season commence hereafter on the first of July.

In the interest of the food supply and preservation of the fish for sport, the cottagers are prepared to go further and ask the Government to establish a hatchery at Buckhorn. Under proper management they claim that the whole chain of lakes could be thoroughly stocked from this one hatchery. It is anticipated that there will be a large attendance at the meeting on Monday night.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Oke, 540 Reid street, desire to express their sincere thanks for many kindnesses and expressions of sympathy in their recent bereavement.

SUDDEN DEATH OF FATHER OF LOCAL MAN

Mr. H. V. Fralick Passes Away in Union Station, Toronto—Succumbed to Heart Failure

WELL KNOWN HERE

Owing, partly to the cold, and partly to the fact tha he had been walking too fast, and overdoing himself, for a man with a weak heart, Mr. H. V. Fralick of Napanee died very suddenly at the Union Station, Toronto, Thursday afternoon, about 3 o'clock. Mr. Fralick, who was a commercial traveller, had been staying at the Palmer House, Toronto, where he was very well known and a frequent guest. He had left the hotel yesterday and was gong west. Mr. Bateman, Assistant Depot Master, saw Mr. Fralick sitting at the bottom of the stairs at "track six," a little after 2 o'clock, apparently in a condition of great exhaustion. With the aid of a postman Mr. Bateman took Mr. Fralick to the waiting room, where he and Constable Holmes did their best to bring Mr. Fralick around. The latter revived sufficiently to say that he had overdone himself, but refused to have a doctor. Suddenly he became unconscious and died almost immediately. Dr. Riordan was summoned, but life was extinct. On inquiry at the Palmer House, the information was elicited that Mr. Fralick had had an attack of the heart while on Bay Street, two days ago, and had to be assisted to the hotel by two men. He was subject to sudden bad attacks.

The above is taken from the Toronto Globe of Friday, and refers to the father of C. Herbert Fralick, 186 Edinburgh Street, Peterborough. He was an active member of Grac Methodist Church, having built up the Sunday School Department. He was in his 73rd year and leaves a widow and one son; also wo brohers and four sisters, living.

The funeral will take place on Sunday from his late residence, Bridge Street, Napanee, to Grace Church at 2.30.

BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL HAS BEEN COMPLETED

J. A. M. Aikins, K.C., M.P.—of Winnipeg, Convenor of Organization Committee of proposed Dominion Bar Association, and likely to be first President of the new organization.

Mr. H. J. McCannan Puts Through Sale of Big Block to Mr. Baker Who Will Build 25 Houses This Season.

AN 800 FEET FRONTAGE

One of the biggest real estate deals in vacant property completed here for some time was put through this week by Mr. H. J. McCannan, the local real estate dealer, who turned over for the Chamberlain Estate to Mr. Harry Baker, proprietor of the Peterborough Planing Mill Company, the property at the corner of Patterson Street and Monaghan Road. This block has a fronage of some 800 feet on Patterson Street and 204 feet on Monaghan Road.

Mr. Baker proposes to erect this season twenty-five modern, brick houses, suitable for residences for working men. They will be up-to-date in every particular. As proprietor of the Peterborough planing mill Mr. Baker has a splendid opportunity to erect houses at a minimum price. He has two saw mills busy preparing the lumber which is already being delivered on the ground.

Mr. McCannan, who put through the deal, has been very active in real estate operations, completing thirteen sales in January and a number already this month.

Aroused The Ire Of The English People

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 14.—(Special Cable)—Much interest and some resentment has been aroused by the statement of Lord Claud Hamilton, chairman of the Great Eastern Railway, that he was unable to find a young Englishman capable of managing that line and had to send to the United States for a new general-manager. The morning papers declare that actually there are many fewer Americans in control of English business than Englishmen holding high administrative posts in New York. The Daily Mail declares that for a great railway with an immense staff to announce that no Englishman is suitable for the post is a slur on its own methods rather than a compliment to the United States. The district served by the Great Eastern is worse served than any other part of England. Its chairman's speech may be said to be typical of its management.

PETERBOROUGH MAN BEREAVED

Mother of Mr. Berwood Emery Dies in Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 13. — Mrs. Isabella J. Emery, aged 46, wife of John Emery, of 10 Arlington street, Rochester, and mother of Berwood Emery, of Peterborough, Ont., who expired Wednesday night following a brief illness in Rochester General Hospital, will be buried Saturday morning in Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester. Besides her husband, and her son in Peterborough, the deceased leaves two brothers and two sisters.

IN MEMORIAM.

WHEN EAST MEETS WEST

Mr. Lawrence Irving, as Dr. Takeramo, in "Typhoon," that wonderful play of East and West, which enthralled London for over 250 nights. His impersonation of this role was pronounced by over 90 per cent. of the most distinguished actors and actor managers in England, as far and away the greatest individual performance for many years. He will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday next, and those who can appreciate the highest in dramatic art should not miss this opportunity of seeing England's greatest actor.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS SITE.

It has been announced that the site for new public buildings for Peterborough are to be placed quite outside the business district—on the property at the south west corner of George and Dalhousie Streets. We have not yet learned what influenced the selection by the government, nor so far, how it is regarded by those who will be affected by so decided a displacement of the business section, with almost universally the post office buildings as a centre. Those to be so affected are our merchants and business men. If they feel themselves to be adversely affected by the change of site, their claim to consideration should be regarded in connection with all other interests; and the question of site dealt with on its merits. It is only the people of Peterborough that are to be considered in the matter. The Government's convenience and preference do not count. New public buildings are to be erected for the use of the public of Peterborough, with the money of the public, not the money of the Government. The convenience of the public should be the governing factor in determining the question of site.

LABOUR SET ASIDE.

The Conservative party, that is, the official part of it, never has had a very soft side of the heart towards labour. Since confederation the Conservatives have been in power—in the Dominion twenty-five years, and in [illegible] Ontario, about thirteen years—and in all that time have not passed a single act of legislation specifically in the interest of labour, except the act creating Labour Day. All the effective legislation in the interests of the working people on the statute books of either the Dominion or of the Province of Ontario have been put there by Liberal Governments. The Ontario Government has been trifling with the legislation intended to provide adequate compnsation to working men and their families for injuries sustained in the course of their work. A bill to this end is due this session, but judging by past experience, there is no certainty of its being passed this session. At Ottawa Mr. Verville, the only labour representative in Parliament, introduced a bill to provide for the adoption of the eight-hour day in all Government contracts. The principle of the bill might be a legitimate subject of debate, but the Government will not even allow discussion of a measure which labour considers as desirable in the interests of working men. The Government is so hostile or indifferent, or so anxious to avoid declaring itself that Mr. Verville's bill has been strangled by technicality, by over strict interpretation of the rules of the House. So Mr. Verville's bill, in the inerest of labour, is strangled, and even a pulmoter cannot bring it to life this session. One wouldn't catch the Government "turning down" a request of the Manufacturers' Association, even if legislation to give it effect drove a coach and six through the rules of the House. Blessed are the laubour interests that expect nothing from the Conservative party; for, verily they shall not be disappointed.

DREAM OF UTOPIA.

A great deal is made of the employment of electricity in facilitating farming operations and of the effect of such employment, in so improng conditions as to make farm life more attractive and thus tend to keep the people on the land and prevent the exodus from the farm to the city or town. There is no doubt that electricity, applied to farming operations, can do much to make farming easier, more attractive if not more profitable. But how much of this claim for the boon of electric farming is mere academic rhodomontade, mere oratorical gush? Have the claimants for the regenerative effects of electricity, applied to the farm, ever considered the practicability of it? Have they ever thought of how many out of the hundreds of thousands of farms in Ontario are in reach, or can be brought within practicable reach, of electricity without an expense that would be absolutely prohibitory? And who of those that can be reached by electricity at reasonable cost, are in a position to purchase the equipment? Have they ever thought of what the work on a farm means? Have they reflected that using electricity to drive the cream separator, work the churn, the washing machine, the chop grinder and the thresher does not quite cover what has to be done on the farm? Electricity cannot be practically used for ploughing, harrowing, sowing, reaping, feeding and watering the stock, cleaning stables, hoeing corn, digging potatoes, and the thousand and one forms of labour that enter into the year's work on the farm. Electricity on the farm would be a great thing—for a few. But its general use, its general extension to include the majority, or even a thousandth part, of the farms of the province is a practicable impossibility, a fantastic dream of a bucolic Utopia. Farming methods are improving every year; but they will never improve to the point where work—and hard work, real bone work—can be dispensed with. The curse of Adam—earning bread by the sweat of the brow—will rest upon farmers and all of us to the end of time.

KNUCKLING UNDER.

The Nationalists are still on top at Ottawa—what they say goes. Hon. Louis Coderre, the Nationalist Secretary of State has had his way. The Conservative members, from Ontario especially, demanded that a post like that of King's Printer (made vacant by the death of Mr. Parmelee) that has for many years been filled by an English-speaking Protestant, should not go to a French Roman Catholic, and a Nationalist at that—one of a party whose boast is that they have "no use for England and the English"; whose love for the flag that flapped Borden into power in Ontaro, is expressed by the plaint that they had "had to shoot holes through the flag to breathe the air of liberty." Hon. Mr. Coderre, one of the Nationalist members of Mr. Borden's cabinet, insisted that Mr. J. de L. Tache of St. Hyacinthe, a relative of Archbishop Tache, be appointed King's Printer, and Controller of Stationery, at a salary of $5,000 a year, as will be done today. Of course there was a great deal of opposition to the appointment. The loyal and British members of the government fought against this second great surrender to the Nationalists, but the government had to submit with the best possible grace, and it was apparently not a difficult thing to do. It was only following a precedent. If Mr. Borden, to gain and retain power, sacrificed the principle of a Canadian navy to the Nationalism and gave three of its members, three of the best portfolios in the cabinet of a British dominion, the surrender of a little office like that of His Majesty's Printer, even though such an appointment were gall and wormwood to the bulk of Mr. Borden's followers in Ontario, was a comparatively easy thing. On the merits of the matter, French Canadians and Roman Catholics have a right to a fair share of the offices of emolument in the gift of the Crown; but the imperialistic jingoes, the flag wavers, the Franco-phobes of Ontaro wouldn't admit that, a few years ago. It was, they claimed and clamoured, a national shame and a disgrace to these good Ontario Protestant extremists to have even so good and great a French Canadian as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of a "British and Protestant Dominion." In their eyes under Sir Wilfrid Laurier it was high treason to the King—especially King William — to appoint a French Canadian Roman Catholic to an office of emolument, worth over $500 a year. Now, these same Franco-phobes eat humble pie, knuckle under to "French domination," for the sake of keeping power—keeping their party in office. If Laurier had appointed a relative of Archbishop Tache to the office of King's Printer, these same meck, no surrenderers, would have had Canada grovelling under the "heel of their hierarchy," etc. ,etc., and there would have been a big row at least. However, it isn't "our funeral"—it's altogether too funny for a funeral.

THE MINISTER OF MILITIA, ETC.

The Minister's Reply.

After acknowledging the gracious sentiments that had been conveyed to him in the addresses, Col. Hughes said he was glad to see Bandmaster Dickenson of Campbellford. "It must have been 70 or 80 years since we were together in camps. When the band began to play I thought of Baron Munchausen's horn. The story relates that when the Baron in his journey reached the northern climes his cornet which he used to play refused to produce the music as of old. The extreme cold froze the notes, and in disgust the Baron threw the instrument on the deck of his ship. Months afterwards when he was returning south and had reached a warmer zone, the cornet began playing the tunes which the Baron had played in it, but which the cold had made fast. I thought the band would have something of a similar experience, but their playing was very good."

Objects of the Minister.

"The first object in the erection of the armoury was to provide a home for the local company, the 40th Regiment, Northumberland. The second is that it shall afford an opportunity for the education of the youth of the district. I want the caretaker to be a man of the best standing, that the boys will be impressed by associating with him, and the girls also in their calisthenics and drills. I want the community to feel that they have a friend in their midst and that the boys and girls are safe here."

Col. Hughes emphasized the necessity of sound bodies as the groundwork for strong minds. Gymnasium apparatus will be installed and there will be adequate provision for vigorous exercise for the young people. The object is to look to the physical training, and indirectly to the mental training.

With careful attention to these points, there should be a better moral tone. The children could then be handed over to the clergy, and if they con't make better men and women of them, there must be something wrong with the spiritual system.

Home Is Losing Its Grasp.

The looseness of home life is one of the tendencies of the present day. After supper, the children in the average home put on their hats and go out on the streets. They forget almost that they have a home. The training of the street is not healthy. The young people can come here at night. They will be given controlled and supervised amusements.

Encouragement to Cadets.

The fighting Colonel referred to the advantage of the boys belonging to the Cadet Corps. "Have you a shooting gallery here?" he asked.

"No sir, we have not," one of the men replied.

"Well, we will give you one. This was one of the first armouries tendered for, although it is not the first one opened. I would rather have one hundred young men who can shoot straight, than one thousand who are untrained. We want to train the boys to shoot and to shoot straight.

In Favour of Peace.

"I am much in favour of peace. War was never caused by the soldier. It is usually the so-called statesmen, the politician, the capitalist, labour organizations, or even creeds, that have caused the wars. The soldier is the poor beggar who has to turn out and put down the war. I am in favour of universal peace, but I do not feel that the millenium has come. During the past year, the atrocities in the Balkans, at Nanaimo, and other places, could have been no worse than the deeds of the savages. I am not yet impressed with the belief that the stronger nation will not take advantage of the weaker. The best guarantee of peace is to have the people ready to stand up for their country. Let it be known that Canada can turn out 1,500,000 men each capable of hitting a man at 800, 1,000 or more yards, and the armies of the world could not be induced to invade Canada. It is the cheapest form of peace.

"The seas no longer divide the British Empire, they unite it. Let this idea of the training of our youth be carried out in the colonies and throughout the British Isles, and the full strength of the British Empire will soon become an accepted fact."

Handed Over the Keys.

The Minister of Militia then handed over the keys of the Armoury to Lt.-Col. Birdsall. "I trust that under your command," he said, "the 40th Regiment will ber aised to a high standard of efficiency, and when you part from here that you will qualify for Brigadier of the district."

Other Speakers.

Mr. Sexsmith, Col. Miller, Col. Fiset, Col. Williams, Col. Winter and Col. Clegg made short speeches appropriate to the occasion. Col. Fiset, one of the heroes of Paardeburg, displayed what appeared to be a French accent that had a peculiarly pleasing sound. He was pleased to witness the evidences of endearment shown towards the Minister of Militia. Col. Fiset has not only the bearing of a soldier as has the Minister, but it might be remarked that he was not overlooked when good looks were being handed out. Col. Fiset is quite a handsome man, with a distinguished bearing. In fact Col. Hughes might be said to have considered this point in selecting his staff, if it was really he who selected them. However, apart from this aside, Col. Miller and Col. Clegg, of Peterborough, made neat speeches referring in the main to the points touched upon by the Minister.

An engagement in Toronto necessitated the departure of officers in the afternoon. They took their leave and the programme was continued. Col. Clegg, Col. Miller, Major Mills and J. H. McClellan were the guests of Col. Hughes in his private car on the trip to and from Norwood.

FRENCH ARMY CRIPPLED.

Measles, Scarlatina and Cerebro Spinal Meningitis Fill Hospitals.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—More than 250,000 soldiers of the French army were on the sick list during the month of January, according to figures made public in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by Deputy Edouard Lachaud, who interpellated the French Minister of War on the subject.

Deputy Lachaud said that a few weeks ago out of a total strength of 717,416 men in the French army, 194,052 were sick in the barrack rooms, 44,192 were confined in the barrack infirmaries and 21,570 in station hospitals, so that at one time or another during the month more than a third of the soldiers belonging to the army were ill. Fortunatsly, he said, the cases were generally light, and only 280 deaths had occurred.

Figures given by the War Department yesterday show that in the 203 garrisons a total of 6,335 soldiers are suffering from measles, scarlatina or cerebro spinal meningitis.

Eighty-five deaths from these diseases have occurred in the army since the beginning of January, according to the official returns.

Many other cases of sickness from different causes are reported, the victims being mostly young men doing the first year of their military services under the three-year system.

The sitting of the Chamber was marked by spirited debate, in the course of which numerous attacks on the Government were made.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

(BY F. M. DELA FOSSE)

Humour—Part Two.

Scientists tell us that there are three characteristics that distinguish man from he brute, viz.: insanity, intemperance and the faculty of laughter. Man certainly has no need to be proud of the two former, but he may well be of the latter and of the factors that produce it, for in wit and humour he possesses two of the most powerful agencies for good, or evil that human nature can boast. Wit is a faculty that runs the whole gamut of human emotions, for in its milder forms it lends a charm to social intercourse and literary recreation, whilst in its fiercer and more aggressive moods it is powerful enough to make tyrants quake and shake the very foundations of the Empire. This is not a far-fetched assertion, for history shows us that Voltaire's sparkling epigrams did more to undermine the institutions of Europe than all its philosophers and logicians put together. If Voltaire had known where to stop and not carried his irony into the realms of religious belief it is conceivable that he would to-day be hailed as a world-benefactor. As it is, he is looked upon as one of the worst forces for evil that the 18th century produced. The "little wasp of Twickenham," as Pope was not inaptly stigmatized, was, on the other hand, largely an agent for good; for he did more than all the denunciations of the pulpit to raise a revolt against the vices of the time. All the fashionable world was afraid of him and it was not altogther without reason that he wrote those daring words:

"I own I'm proud—I must be proud to see Men not afraid of God, afraid of me"—

Another instance nearer to our own day is furnished by Thackeray's "Book of Snobs". Its appearance caused many heart-searchings, and men who had formerly considered it the very height of gentility and good breeding to squander their means on selfish pleasures, leaving their creditors to shift for themselves, began to take a different view of their responsibilities. It would not be hard to multiply instances to show in how great measure the exercise of wit has helped to dispel existing abuses. How far the allied talents are forces in life and literature can be seen from the varied terms that are found in their nomenclature. Irony, satire, ridicule, facetiousness, farce, comedy, Attic salt, drollery, repartee buffoonery, badinage, banter, retort, quip, quiddity, merriment, joke, etc. One could really rack one's brains for some time and still discover phrases and words to fit one or other of these phases of thought or speech that are grouped under the general titles of wit and humour.

It is from humour, I think, that we derive our greatest enjoyment, for we are a merciful race, in our fun-loving, and much as we may enjoy reading the caustic witticisms of the great men of the past or present, it is always with a feeling of more genuine pleasure that we turn to something really humanising and agreeable. For there is this great difference between these two laughter-producing factors. Wit can be pitiless! Humour never. Wit scintillates like the frosty particles on the window pane. Humour belongs entirely to the land of sunshine, and is always genial, always kindly, always inspiriting. Misanthropes and cynics who have little love for their fellow men cannot be humourists, however largely they may be endowed with wit. Such were Ben Jonson, Pope, Butler, Voltaire and Swift. On the other hand Aristophanes, the ancient Greek dramatist, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Addison, Sterne, Scott, Burns, Cervantes, and Goldsmith bubble over with humour as also does Dickens, whose writings show scarcely a spark of wit. Pope could be cruel and venomous to his best friends and the consequence was that he often felt the lash of their tongues in return. Hgarth, however, was one whom he feared the worst, for his power of caricaturing was great and his clever delineations of the poet often caused him to writhe in unspeakable anguish.

Many persons have a habit of confusing the terms and applying them indiscrimately to any piece of literature or any saying that produces laughter. As a matter of fact, although they sometimes insensibly overlap, the extremes that bound their domains are very far removed the one from the other. Th genius of Voltarie was very far removed, for instance, from the genius of Theodore Hook, yet both had the same gift of savage retort, and the same facility of improvisation. Voltaire, however, could never have stooped to the paltry joke-making and mischievous pranks of Hook, nor could Hook have reached to the philosophic heights of Voltaire. Count D'Orsay was a wit, so was Samuel Rogers. Both were of the mordant type, and both received their reward in the shape of numerous, merciless retorts from their friends. Rogers' cadaverous countenance proved a grand target for their shafts, and they did not scruple to make merriment at his expense even when they had their legs under his mahogany. On one occasion, D'Orsay having got the better of an antagonist in a verbal encounter, his victim turned on him and said: "Look here, D'Orsay Providence dispenses its favours pretty equally. It has endowed you with a fairly glib tongue, but it has blessed me with a very limber leg; now, I give you fair warning that if you use your tongue I'm going to use my leg." The case of Lord Rochester will occur to anyone as an instance of another being who didn't count the cost so long as he could make his jest. The well-known lines that he wrote on Charles II. are said to have cost him that monarch's friendship:

Whose word no man relies on;
He never said a foolish thing,
And never did a wise one.

Reference has been made to several types of wit and humour, and this article will close with a few specimens of a class that, whilst they give very distorted accounts of certain historical personages, cannot be beaten for sheer ingenuiousness. They are known as schoolboy "howlers," and probably every schoolmaster, in the course of his career, has come across similar specimens.

"Latimer was a martyr who was tied to a stake and said to Ridley: Cheer up, brother Ridley, you'll soon be dead."

"Milton married a young girl who ran back to her parents, so he wrote a sonnet on Divorce."

"Prince William was drowned in a butt of Malmsey wine; he never laughed again."

"The saddest thing King John did was to lose his crown in the laundry"

"O. A man has X miles to travel; he goes A mile by train, B miles by boat, and C miles he walks; the rest he cylcles. How far does he cycle?

"If the air contains more than 100 per cent of carbolic acid it is very injurious to health"

PASTEURIZED MILK NOT STERLIZED MILK

The Difference Explained by Mr. G. A. Gillespie

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The milk question still seems to be one of the important questions of the day, and I am pleased to see it so, as it brings out thought, and should develop much needed education on the subject. Mr. Breyfogle of the De Laval Company wrote a very instructive letter on the subject of clarification and pasteurization of milk, a few days ago, and explained very fully the process and the need of same. In last Saturday's Examiner there was printed a long letter by Dr. Mond, an English Scientist, on sterilized milk, a copy of which some one was good enough to send to me, asking that I please answer same in the paper—"if you dare."

In the first place I wish to point out that sterilizing and pasteurizing milk are entirely different. Sterilizing is heating to a boiling point, 212 degrees. Pasteurizing is heating to 140 degrees (not nearly to boiling), holding for a short time at that temperature, then cooling quickly to 40 degrees and holding at that temperature until delivered.

I quite agree with Dr. Mond that sterilized milk is not a good food for old or young, and dangerous to use, but I do not know of anyone advocating sterilized milk for sale in Peterborough or any other place. I also agree with Dr. Mond's argument that milk in its natural state, from healthy cows, placed in sterilized bottles or cans air tight, and kept at a temperature of 40 degrees, is a safe food without pasteurisation—so long as delivered to the customer without being exposed to the air, because as he states, all bacteria come from the air to which the milk is exposed.

Milk, if it can be drawn from the cow into a sterilized bottle is sterile, ie., free from any bacteria or life, and if kept air tight will remain sweet for all time, temperature having no effect on it—but as soon as exposed to air bacteria, good and bad, are deposited in the milk, and these germs multiply very rapidly, especially at a high temperature. Dr. Mond admits this and says if tubercular germs get in the milk they must do so from the respiratory organs—not direct from the cow. He also says that from 20 to 25 p.c. of the cows in England suffer from tuberculosis; this, I believe, would also apply around Peterborough if the tubercular tests were used, so that while the letter of Dr. Mond on sterilized milk does not speak of pasteurized milk, it must be evident to any thinking man, that if cattle or human beings are consumptives there must be tubercular germs in the air, and if milk is exposed to that air they cannot escape getting into the milk, and medical authorities of to-day, who have made a study of the question, say that pasteurizing, properly done, (heating milk to a temperature of 140 degrees) will kill any tubercular, typhoid or injurious germs—and NOT destroy any of the food value of the milk. After pasteurizing the milk should be sealed in air tight bottles or cans and so delivered to the customers.

Quoting from an address of Dr. T. Torrance, Veterinary Director General, Ottawa, given at the E. O. D. A. Convention in 1912, he says:

The disease is more infectious among cattle than is ordinarily supposed, especially dairy cattle, and points out that the danger is increased many times by the man in the milk business purchasing cows to keep up his supply of milk, unless he has the animals tested. Also that the young animals, calves and hogs, drinking the skim milk spreads the disease. He also states that the milk from a tubercular cow is extremely dangerous not only in feeding calves and swine, but for human infants. The percentage of cattle slaughtered at the Public Abattoirs in Canada for three years showed 3.24 p.c. tubercular, and of these, 13.81 was so badly effected that they were condemned to the tank as unfit for food. Hogs killed at the Public Abattoirs show as high as 20 p.c. tubercular in some of the dairy sections. Peterborough section, I am pleased to note, only showed 4.73 p.c. The Dr. concludes his address by advocating that all whey and skim milk be pasteurized before fed to young calves. If it is necessary in the case of animals is it not a thousand times more so in the case of human beings.

I do not agree with some of our Board of Health that bottled milk is a fad. We have these facts before us that we have an increase in tubercular cattle, hogs and human beings. Our Health Association are asking for money to build a hospital for treatment of tuberculosis, and I think it is our duty as citizens of Peterborough to do our part to prevent the disease. It will require the co-operation of our Board of Health, Medical Health Officer, Sanitary Inspector, City Council, Health Association, and all engaged in the milk supply of the City. Let us have the best that can be had. Human life is worth more than dollars and cents. Many little graves now filled in the cemetery, if the truth were known, could be directly traced to bad milk supply. Many doctors' bills to the same source. For myself, I prefer to spend a few pennies monthly extra for safe milk and do not care if it is put up by a municipal plant or a private company.

G. A. GILLESPIE.

A GROWING CONCERN

Another Building to Go Up for the Peterboro' Pure Milk Co., Creamery, Ice Cream and Butter Industry

Mr. George A. Gillespie has just closed a deal for the purchase of the property immediately south of the Peterborough Creamery, on Aylmer Street. This property embraces the brick dwelling and the forty-feet frontage on Aylmer Street, on which the building stands. It is the intention to erect on these premises a new building as an auxiliary to the Peterborough Creamery for the use of the Peterborough Pure Milk Co., which has now grown to such importance as to require a separate building of its own. The new addition will be annexed to the present Creamery building, and will also furnish increased accommodation for the clarifying and pasteurizing plant as well as more complete quarters for a business office etc. The erection of this new building is to be proceeded with at once, as soon as the plans are prepared, as the necessity for more complete equipment for the Peterborough Pure Milk Company is urgently demonstrated. It must be gratifying to Mr. Gillespie to know that his efforts in the direction of providing sanitary milk for the public has met with such encouraging success, and that the growth of the demand for his dairy production is becoming unprecedented.

In this connection it might also be mentioned that Mr. Gillespie has just purchased three pure-bred Holstein cows at the recent stock sale of Mr. J. H. Macklin, Port Hope. These cows are to be added to his growing dairy herd on his stock farm, in Smith.

ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT MADE BY THE C. P. R.

An excellent guide to the natural wealth of Eastern and Western Canada is afforded by the exhibit of the Land Branch of the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian Pacific Railways which has just been formally opened in the Windsor station building, at Montreal. The exhibit, of which Mr. E. J. Martin is in charge, consists of samples of grain, fruit, wood, game and fish as well as many other features of interest as well to the prospective settler as to the student of Canada.

A large part of the exhibit was shown at Chicago and other parts of the United States, but is now completely installed in Montreal, where the collection will be on view to the public until portion of it is taken to the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco next year. Among the models, which are of particular interest, is one of the C.P.R. demonstration farms at Strathmore, where instruction is given to the farmers. A relief map of the irrigation area is also of value, the plan for the improvement of the land being clearly shown. The area is over three times as large as any other on the continent, extending from Medicine Hat on the east to Calgary on the west. The western section has already been sold, this comprising about 1,000,000 acres, while the remainder, about 2,000,000 acres, will be placed on the market shortly. The amount sold to each settler varies from 80 acres to two sections, one-twentieth of the price being paid in cash. The company also lends the farmer a sum of $2,000 for improvements on the 20-year policy, and after he has been on the land 12 months another $1,000 for the purchase of stock.

One of the exhibits shows the evolution of a loaf of bread, the various stages from the virgin prairie to the wheat and flour and finally the bread being given. Tobacco leaf and the finished cigars from British Columbia are also shown, the tobacco being grown in Kelowna.

Attention is also devoted to the resources of Eastern Canada, a very fine exhibit of fish and minerals being shown, while many of the big game specimens in the centre of the room are also common to the east. Of the fish, which are attractively mounted in a case at the end of the hall, are specimens of trout, bass, pickerel and pike. Among the minerals shown are copper, iron, silver and lead. There are also very fine pieces of ornamental limestone and black marble. The wealth of the east in asbestos is demonstrated by a number of excellent samples.

The Western Canada mineral exhibit includes zinc, gold and silver and silver and lead. There is coal from Alberta, including many kinds from the soft to the anthracite. Alberta is also represented by an excellent exhibit of grains, including wheat, oats, barley, flax and rye. One of the cases shows a sample of Premost flax, which won the first prize in competition against the world at the Dry Farming Congress at Lethbridge. The yield was 28 bushels to the acre. There is also a large exhibit of alfalfa, which is regarded as the coming crop of Alberta. The alfalfa shown is the second crop in the one season.

The big game exhibit, which occupies the central portion of the hall, consists of fine specimens of moose, deer, black and grizzly bear, wolves and caribou. One moose head has a spread of 74 inches across the horns.

Among other specimens of the natural resources of the Dominion shown is a sample of oil from Calgary. There is also a tank of natural gas from Medicine Hat, which gas is supplied to the residents of the western town at the unusually low rate of 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

MORE COLD WEATHER IS ON ITS WAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—Don't be misled by to-day's comparatively balmy weather to putting your furs away for summer. At the observatory here it is stated that to-night will see all Ontario in the grip of zero weather, to last for over Sunday anyway.

Rumour Is Not Confirmed

Report States That Hydro Commission May Purchase Seymour Power Company

Rumour has it that the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario will conduct an investigation preliminary to the purchase of the whole Seymour power system. Mr. W. H. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, states that no intimation of the contemplated action, on the part of the Commission, has yet been received. A report contained in a morning contemporary, said to have originated from the Federal member for West Peterborough, suggests that the purchase will be completed in about two months.

COMPLAINANT FAILED TO PRESS CHARGE

And Must Pay Costs of the Case or Spend Ten Days in Gaol

John Jones and Robert Bennett, o Orillia, must be fans who never miss an opportunity. Anyway when they came to this City with the hockey team last night, they yielded to the alluring influence of the local bar-rooms, and as a result, they missed the special train for the north last night. They were arrested for being drunk, and both admitted their guilt in the Police Court this morning.

"Did Orillia win last night?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes," answered the Chief.

"Then they'll be willing to pay," said the Court, and assessed them $2 each.

S. F. Redmond, of Otonabee, accused a cattle dealer from Montreal of assaulting him. Mr. Redmond did not appear in Court this morning to press the charge, so the case was dismissed with costs. If Redmond does not come through with $2.60 for the costs of the case soon, he will spend the next ten days in the County Jail, nursing the swollen optic he is in possession of as a result of the encounter yesterday afternoon.

GREAT INTEREST IN ENGLISH BYE ELECTION

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 14.—(Special Cable.)—Among the recent ministerial changes Right Hon. H. L. Samuel's and Masterman's appointments have aroused great interest, in their bye election. The Unionists are making big effort to defeat Masterman in Bethnal Green, where his former majority was only 184. Bethnal Green is an extremely poor district with a large Jewish population. It takes little interest in Home Rule, the main issue of the election being the Insurance Act. The Poplar election to replace Eydney Buxton on his departure for Africa promises abundant entertainment. Poplar is traditionally the most rowdy London district, largely dockside labourers with a strong Independent Labour party. A Liberal victory here is considered assured, they having big former majority and a strong candidate, while the real trouble comes from the Socialists, not the Unionists. Jack Jones, the Labour-Socialist candidate, is very popular locally. Suffragettes will play a large part, this being the home of Sylvia Pankhurst's army. The Liberals are putting up a good fight in South Bucks, where the polling is on Wednesday next, but do not expect a victory, the Unionist strength being overwhelming. The Miners' Federation has decided not to approve Keir Hardie as a Labour candidate in his constituency at the next election. This makes his Parliamentary position almost hopeless.

HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL ST. VALENTINE'S EVE PARTY

Given by the Church Women's Association of St. John's

Notwithstanding the many counter attractions billed for last night, inter-alia the Belmont Minstrels, the great hockey match at Brock Street Rink, to say nothing of various St. Valentine functions, between one hundred and fifty and two hundred persons accepted the invitation of the St. John's Church Women's Association to a Saint Valentine's party, which was a preeminently successful function.

St. John's C.W.A. will give a party
And send you an invitation hearty,
The date is fixed for Friday eve
Begin at eight, at ten to leave.
Please come and enjoy yourself with the rest,
The coffee and cakes will be of the best.

The school house had been beautifully decorated with flags by Mr. Turner. Little tables decorated with hearts with an accompaniment of four chairs each were dotted about, at first blush somewhat suggestive of a progressive euchre party. Anyway the formal appearance of things had been removed and a genial hearty welcome was afforded the guests by the ladies giving the party. Some little time was passed in social intercourse, after which a part of a musical programme was presented. The Misses Gladman, in their usual well known talented style, opened with a pianoforte duet.

Song—Mrs. Perrin.
Violin solo—Mrs. Boyd.
Interlude.
Song—Miss Quartermaine.
Song—Mrs. Perrin.
Accompanists Miss Margaret Flowers and Mr. R. J. Devey.

Mrs. Meldrum was convenor of the musical portion of the proceedings.

All the numbers were well rendered and deservedly heartily applauded.

During the interlude the game of musical chairs was introduced, a large number of those present joining in the proceedings.

After the conclusion of the musical programme, dainty, elegant refreshments were served round at the various tables.

Following the consumption of these good things, a few appropriate remarks were made by the Rector in proposing a vote of thanks to the ladies providing the feast, which remarks it is needless to say, were heartily endorsed by the guests. The national anthem, "God Save the King," was sung by all present, and somewhere around half past ten the enjoyable evening came to an end.

Mrs. Brewer and Mrs. Fawcett are respectively the secretary and treasurer of the St. John's Woman's Association, a society doing good work for St. John's Church and Parish. The members wisely believe in looking after the welfare of the Church at home, as contrasted with all efforts being devoted to foreign missions; and the result of their self denying work may be seen in various directions in connection with St. John's Anglican Church.

The Treasurer of the Labrador Medical Mission wishes to thank the daily papers for their hearty co-operation in publishing items of interest in connection with the work, as well as in receiving and acknowledging contributions to the funds of the Mission. To those who so generously responded to the annual appeal we also extend our hearty thanks. Many who formerly contributed having failed to do so this year, the amount received is less than usual.

The Treasurer has received and forwarded to the General Treasurer, Ottawa, $123. Of this amount $50 is for the support of the Peterborough Cot, St. Anthony Hospital.

Any further contributions sent for this most deserving Mission will be gladly received and forwarded by the Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. James Wood, Box 990, Peterborough.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

Well, it was Friday the 13th; how could we expect to win?

The way the mercury descended this week, one might have thought it was going clear through to China.

The bills said: "Nearing the championship—Peterborough vs. Orillia." The neighbors jumped at the Peterborough end of it, and what it cost a few of them is not included in the High Cost of Living.

Very cold on Sunday—and the team out of the running. We should worry like a tree and get trimmed.

Ald. Johnston called attention some time ago to sledding on hills on much travelled thoroughfares. It has been said that some of the youngsters on Murray street skimmed from the top of the hill to Aylmer street, crossing Water and George streets.

You have to hand it to the Belmont Minstrels.

Mr. Grover Halpin did not play in the local district games and escaped the easy-going methods fostered by too much pie.

The pretty sentiment of St. Valentine's Day does not escape the tawdry stuff that passes as humour, with the result that the real spirit of the day is clouded and the edge of finer ideals dulled; and all for gain!

If Col. Sam. Hughes hopes to attain the objects of his string of armouries he should send out "follow up" letters to the people. Otherwise they are apt to forget the aim of his ambitions.

If green and yellow backs are barnacled with germs there are millions of bacilli Peterboroeuses in Orillia today.

That crowd deserved at least a win. But the north country has the knack of turning out good hockey players.

The Front Lacing "Frolaset Corset" Stands For Comfort, Style and Good Health

Besides Being of Much Greater Convenience Than The Back Lacing Method, Now So Commonly Used.

HAVE YOU NOTICED how carefully a gardener ties the climbing Jasmine to the porch or trellis work?

Have you seen the care he takes not to tie the guiding string too tightly? For, if he did, then the natural juices could not reach the upper part of the vine, and withering and decay would surely follow.

And applying the same principle to the human figure, is it any wonder that scores of women are seeing the folly of wearing a Corset that can only guide the figure by binding it.

A Corset that binds hampers one's breathing, greatly weakens the muscles nature provides for the support of the body, and consequently, plays havoc with health.

Therefore the exceptional merit of the Frolaset Corset, which is fitted to the figure, and which guides the form into graceful lines, without any binding or restriction whatever.

While being front laced, it is convenience itself to the wearer, for every woman knows that the best results are to be obtained from one's corset, by loosening the laces to remove it, and re-adjusting them, when the corset is next worn.

The Frolaset is made of white coutil in medium low bust and long skirt, and is trimmed with silk embroidery. The boning is skillfully placed, and the corset being designed upon the modish and natural lines, it offers in sizes of 19 to 30; the ideal method of corsetry. Price $4.25. —Main Floor Left

Many New Things In Fancy Work

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—With trains stalled and street car system completely tied up by a snowfall of ten inches, with a howling gale lashing the Atlantic coast, vessels reported in distress at many points, and seventeen are dead here, the entire eastern States is to-day in the grip of the worst blizard in years. This is the same storm which passed through Ontario yesterday.

DIED AS RESULT OF A FALL ON ICY PAVEMENT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 14.—Theodore Haywood, aged 50, one of the best known oil men in the district, died in the hospital last evening as a result of falling on a slippery walk while going home.

A MONOPOLY IN MONTREAL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 14—The Montreal Mail which brought out legislature graft charges is out editorially this morning with a warning that Montreal must practice eternal vigilance against its enemies within. It says: "The English speaking people of Montreal cannot pick up an afternoon newspaper which is not controlled by the same man and the same interest. They are in short at the mercy of a monopoly which must sooner or later demonstrate the why and wherefore of its existence."

POSITION OF SUFFRAGETTES

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 14.— The future of the suffragette movement is still uncertain, despite Chrystabel Pankhursts denial of the intention to abandon militant methods. One philanthropic worker, Mrs. Muckirdy, who has been denouncing militancy, has had her house burned and received letters threatening her with kidnapping her babies unless she desists. There is no evidence that suffragettes were responible for burning the house.

IS FROZEN TO DEATH

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 14. — Relatives here have received word that Miss Muriel McKelvie, aged 17, formerly of Ethel, Ont., was caught in a blizzard at Holmfield, Man., a couple of days ago, and froze to death. Her little brother with whom she was coming home from school had both feet and knees frozen, and was found unconscious. The girl was found dead by her father, who started out to look for the children.

NIECE OF A LOCAL LADY

Has Recently Published a Book of Poems

The British Weekly of Jan. 15th has the following, which refers to a niece of a Peterborough lady, Mrs. Waddell:

"The late Rev. Hugh Waddell was missionary first under the Irish Presbyterian Assembly in China, and then under the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland for twenty-seven years in Japan, where he did noble pioneer work. His younger daughter, Miss Helen Waddell, M.A., a distinguished graduate of Queen's University, Belfast, where she holds a studentship in Modern Literature, has now entered the fields of authorship with a volume of poems published by Messrs. Constable and Co., under the title of "Lyrics from the Chinese." They purport to be modern renderings of actual Chinese poems, mainly erotic, and dating from very early times—some of them so old as the twelfth century, B.C."

THE NEW MINISTER

What enthusiasm and perseverance will accomplish will be demonstrated to the audiences who greet the debut of "The New Minister" Monday evening in Knox Church Lecture Hall. Practices are more or less monotonous, but realizing that they had something just a little better than has heretofore been attempted along the line in amateur circles, enthusiasm each member of this company of young people to determine that this event would establish a precedent. This was fully demonstrated at the dress rehearsal held last evening, and the public are assured of a real treat. Twelve tuneful musical numbers including full choruses, enliven the sketch and help clear the many tangled complications into which the New Minister unwittingly falls.

The advance sale of tickets assures the management of capacity audiences, and arrangements are already being made in case it is found necessary to repeat the performance a third time to protect all ticket holders.

ELECTION IN ONTARIO IN COMING FALL

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—There is a well founded rumour here to-day that the Ontario government is preparing the redistribution bill to be put through at the coming session with a view to a general election this fall, under the nominal leadership of Sir Jas. Whitney before he finally retires from the active premiership.

BILL WAS DROPPED

Hon. Mr. Hazen's Measure Lacked Certain Essentials --Cattle Embargo Debated

OTTAWA, Feb. 14—Hon. Mr. Hazen's Government bill respecting shipping, under which it was proposed to adopt the conventions determined by the International Maritime Conference at Brussels in 1910 in regard to salvage from collisions in all Canadian coast waters, came to a sudden halt yesterday.

Mr. J. H. Sinclair, Liberal member for Guysboro, directed attention to the fact that the Government bill repealed all clauses which regulate liability for collisions on the Great Lakes as well as upon coast waters, while it provided for the new regulation on coast waters only. The adoption of the Government bill in its present form would have left navigation on the Great Lakes without any regulations. Hon. Mr. Hazen withdrew the measure.

E. N. Lewis, M. P. for West Huron, has given notice of a resolution which he will move, having for its object the restriction of immigration to the producing classes, or those who purpose engaging as domestic help, and that natives south of 44 degrees of east longitude in Europe, and from Turkey and Asia, shall be, as far as practicable, barred from Canada.

Upon an item for the salaries of inspectors of live stock exported from Canadian seaports, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux took occasion to chide the Government for not having the British embargo on Canadian cattle removed. He declared it was not a sanitary measure, but protection pure and simple.

The reason assigned for the embargo by the British Government constituted a gross libel upon Canadian cattle.

Mr. Sinclair (Guysboro), said that Britain should give Canadian cattle the same treatment that was extended to them by the United States.

Hon. J. D. Hazen said the subject was not under his jurisdiction, but rather belonged to the customs department.

Mr. Hazen: "About 6,500 head, including sheep and horses."

Dr. Clark said the figures were no doubt right for 1912. But he submitted that all export of live stock to England had ceased since the passage of the Underwood tariff law by the United States. "Not a split hoof," he said, "went from Canada to England last November, but during that month, 75,000 cattle, unpatriotic cattle, went to the United States."

Continuing, Dr. Clark said that the British embargo on Canadian cattle was now mere waste paper, but at the same time he believed that the embargo had been placed on our cattle in good faith, although he did not doubt that the influence of the Irish members with the Liberal Government had not been without effect in having the embargo retained.

At the evening session the House considered the private bill authorizing the Canadian Pacific to build certain branch roads from its Calgary and Edmonton line. This bill, it will be remembered, was amended by the railway committee, at the instance of R. B. Bennett, Calgary, and W. F. Maclean, South York, so as to require construction to be commenced within one year and the lines to be completed within three years.

Col. Currie (North Simcoe) opposed the amendment, but in order to give the matter further discussion the bill stood over until Monday next. The bill respecting the Central Canada Railway Co. also went over, but a large grist of bills reported from the railway committee without amendment were then given a third reading and passed.

Another private bill passed last evening amends the charter of Queen's University at Kingston by striking out the clause in the act of 1912 which makes the Provincial Minister of Education ex-officio a member of the board of governors. Major Sam Sharp, as chairman of the committee on miscellaneous private bills, explained that the change in the law was made at the request of Hon. Dr. Pyne.

BIG SCRAMBLE FOR THE BIG LONDON JOB

There are some developments in the campaign which is going on for the Canadian High Commissionership.

The Government has about decided to raise the salary from ten thousand dollars a year to thirty thousand dollars and to make an expense allowance. As soon as the new High Commissioner is given a peerage the compensation will be increased.

With a handsome stipend and so much honour attached to the position, a good many influential people are putting pressure on the administration.

Hon. W. J. Hanna dropped in from Toronto.

Sir Hugh Graham is said to be about to launch a new morning paper in Ottawa, where he can speak to the administration more intimately than with either of his Montreal papers.

Mr. Hanna is hunting the place for the Hon. Adam Beck, whom he does not like, but whom he would like to send into gilded exile that a stumbling block may be removed from the path to the Ontario premiership.

Sir Richard McBride has rather been lost sight of.

Many believe that Premier Borden will put Lord Mount Stephen in to keep the place warm until he can make arrangements to drop the Canadian Premiership and become Canada's representative at London.—Ottawa Free Press.

Participating vs. Non-Participating LIFE ASSURANCE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a prominent Merchant on George St. took out a 10 pay 15 year Endowment Policy No. 68979, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a Non-Par Policy his Premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

Participating Results		Non-Par Results
$2637.75	Total Cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total premiums paid	1725.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00

Now this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, Call at or 'Phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

The above Policy-holder thinks he had a splendid result. Don't you?

C. P. R. HELPING TO IMPROVE AGRICULTURE

The C.P.R. is co-operating with Macdonald College in the desire of the latter to improve the status of agriculture in the province Meetings have been arranged at Shawville, Lachute, Huntingdon, Cowansville, Waterloo and Cookshire. The meetings will give an opportunity for free discussion in respect to the important question in which the C.P.R. is deeply interested —how to improve soil management and production. Every farmer in the neighbourhood will have an opportunity to discuss and unfold his own and his neighbours' problems with a view to find ultimate solutions. Many farmers and farmers' sons have not the time to take a regular course, lasting two years or more; but at this slack time of the year it is expected that many will lavail themselves of the opportunity of taking short courses in stock raising, poultry, horticulture and kindred matters.

The course in live stock, dairy cattle and sheep will form the principal attraction. One particular feature is the idea and attempt to get at the younger generation. Special provision is made accordingly at the various points for talks on the creation of school gardens—gardens in which the young people will have a special ownership, with free seeds and prizes for certain kinds and qualities of growth. The C.P.R. is interested in helping this movement along, as it is in line with the work which it has done and is doing in the Northwest—work which includes betterment in every relation of farm life. This is probably enlightened selfishness, for the better and more intelligent and intensive farming means to the company better business in every way and a degree of efficiency which will, in time, give the country a new and influential character for its farming perfection.

Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, has issued a call to working women throughout the country to assemble in Washington next Saturday to call on President Wilson at the White House and present a "Working Woman's Demand for the Ballot."

RINGWORM ON FACE IN SCALY SPOTS

Around Mouth and Chin. Spread All Over Face in Big Disfiguring Blotches. Burning and Itchy. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Ringworm Disappeared.

Burnt Church, N. B.—"For about four years I was troubled with ringworm on my face. It first [illegible] in little scaly spots around my mouth and chin which would last for about a week, then would disappear and in two or three weeks' time would appear again. As the little scales or scabs came off it would get like a cracked sore which was always increasing in size and eating into the flesh. It was always getting worse until it had spread all over my face in big disfiguring blotches which did not disappear at all. They would have a burning itchy sortness. The ringworm disfigured my face very much for the time being and was always very irritating.

"I tried all the known household remedies I could think of besides some recommended cure without any effect. A friend told me of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. The first application afforded relief. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and warm water as directed, then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In a week's time the ringworm had entirely disappeared." (Signed) Miss Marjorie E. Morrison, May 26, 1913.

Share Alike The Responsibility

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please allow me to make a few remarks on the much discussed subject of a police-woman. I have read a number of different persons' ideas and only two of those discussions appeal to me. Those are Mr. Dumble's remarks, and where a mother says "What we want are good mothers like France." And if I may add good fathers. A good father can do more perhaps in guarding the welfare of both girls and boys, but most fathers imagine that it is all a mother's duty to look after the children, and all they have to do is to support them, particularly the girls. Now that, to my knowledge, is wrong. A father should go hand in hand in bringing up a family, and he will do so if he is a man according to God's heart, and has the salvation of his soul and the salvation of his children's souls at heart, and not be like so many fathers who make home only a boarding house, and take no other interest in it. No doubt a mother is with the children more, and if she is the right kind of mother she will do her part. But sometimes mothers are over-burdened. She is left house and home, children and all to look fter, and if the meals and everything are not just as the husband thinks they should be — then God help mother! not much wonder she becomes discouraged. Father goes to the hotel or to the poolroom or down street, and the children can go to the devil for all he knows about them.

Now fathers share with mothers in regards to girls and boys as well. Guard your daughters; you should guard your daughter's virtue as you would your own life; you are a man, and you know more of the wrong-doing of men, than your innocent daughter. You know more than her mother does, of the danger of street walking, going to parks and dances, out at all hours of the night, alone walking, or driving with young men. Fathers know the snares that are laid for those bold or sometimes ignorant girls that will go unaccompanied either to dances, or driving, or walking alone in lonely places. You may say they are old enough to take care of themselves You are wrong, or give some other excuse. Now both fathers and mothers, those children that God entrusted to you, you are responsible for, and by them you are supposed to save your soul. No excuse should be taken. Talk to your girls. Make them understand that it is through love of them and for their soul's salvation, and for the sake of their good name, that they must obey you. Then if it is necessary use restriction.

A word to girls. Mind your place. It does not become you to step one inch out of your place. Be advised, obey your father and mother. They are appointed to direct you by God. Don't be bold; don't flirt, for if you do you lose all respect of men for you. They don't think well of you—you give them a low idea of you. They think when you are bold enough to ask their company, by flirting, you will do worse. Bold dress, bold actions, make men hold women in disrespect. Be always accompanied by your sister, by a lady friend, or by mother, don't go out alone, live up to the laws of decent society. If the young girls of Peterborough would live better lives, and place more value on their virtues of purity and modesty, we should have no need of a police-woman.

Now, it is true there are many respectable young women whom men have spoken to and accosted on the street, and insulted most shamefully through no fault of theirs. This is a city, and no worse than others. I am a girl myself, and perhaps not always can have company. I prefer to flee with the light. Servant girls should get in the afternoon an hour or two to go to the library or elsewhere.

Now how much one woman can do? I canot understand. She would have no chance of reforming the character of a man, and just as little chance in reforming a wayward girl, for they would expose themselves to danger, and one woman could not be in all parts of the city at once. If I were accosted on the street what would I do?—stand and scream for the police-woman. I in the north side of the city, and she in the south or on George street? God knows what would happen me before she could give me assistance. I could have my head cut off and tacked on again, and the villian be far away. Now, my idea is fathers and mothers wake up to your responsibility. Guard boys as well as girls, for the sin of impurity is just as big a sin, and will down them just as well as it will down a girl. Their souls are just as dear to God. Girls don't be bold. Boys respect the other boy's sister just as you would your own.

Enough Said.

East City.

ARE EXCHANGING THEIR SOLOISTS

Ministers of the different denominations frequently change pulpits with ont another, but one does not hear so often of soloists of the churches doing so.

On Sunday morning Mrs. I. H. Renwick, soloist of George Street Methodist Church, is singing at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and Miss Dorothy Allan, soloist of that Church, is singing at George Street Church. This is as it should be, and should help to create a feeling of comradeship between the different choirs, and there is room for this.

"You don't mean to say that young Smith is married," exclaimed Mrs Twickembury. "Why he's nothing but a stripling!"

Streets That Are Seldom Heard Of---The Assessment

A perusal of the assessment roll reveals some names of many streets that are seldom heard of. One of these is Hope street, which is practically owned by two people, namely, Mrs. B. Lynch and J. R. McDonald. Then there is Kent street. The assessable value of the buildings on the entire street is $1,150. Three people can lay claim to this street, namely, J. Lasheur, H. Williams and A. Lasheur. Other streets that are seldom heard of outside of the assessment roll, are Lynch street, Maple street, and Ash street.

Bishop O'Brien is credited with being a tenant at 227 Wescott. Since, however, the returns were made by the assessor, the tenancy has been transferred to the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, the former having taken up his residence at the Palace, since assuming the Bishopric.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE PETES ARE OUT OF THE RUNNING ORILLIA WON LAST NIGHT BY 7 TO 4

System and Back-checking of the Invaders Too Much for the Homesters and They Were Beaten Right at Home.

BIG CROWD SAW GAME

Peterborough's representatives in the O. H. A. race were eliminatd last night when Orillia's fast, capable team came down from the north and not only held the lead set up on Tuesday night but added to it, skating off the ice winners of the game by 7 to 4, and the round by 15 to 8. The better team goes on into the next round, no alibi stuff can alter that fact. The Orillians have just as much speed as the Petes, a better system of attack and defensively their forward line outplayed the homesters' line, for they checked back all the way and covered the rink as they came back. The Petes, on the other hand, could not, or did not, come back all the time.

At that the homesters did not get any of the breaks in last night's battle. They had more of the puck than the invaders and throughout had probably two shots to 1, but several times after the Petes had vainly bombarded Corbould for five minutes, Orillia would slip down and score an easy goal. Three of the Orillia counters were fluky, while the Petts, shoot as they might, had simply no luck at all in their marksmanship.

The biggest, noisiest crowd of the season filled the Brock Street Rink for the game and the excitement was at fever heat during most of the game. When the Petes opened out by scoring the first goal in four minutes and then proceeded to bombard Corobould from every angle the crowd went wild and the noise was something to remember. Orillia had one hundred and fifty supporters in the rink and they added to the hilarity of the occasion.

Although the Petes had more of the play in the first half than had Orillia, the Purple and White were 3 to 1 ahead at half-time. One goal barely slid by Janes on a rush by Carter and another was on a long drive from the boards, which the goaler misjudged and of the kind he usually smothers. The homesters opened the second half with a burst of speed that carried them in for two goals, tying the score and their chances for the game, at least, looked bright, even if Ross did put Orillia ahead shortly after. For fifteen minutes the figures remained the same, then Carter settled the issue with a rush for a score, and the Petes slowed up.

Both teams played better hockey than in Orillia and the game was faster all the way. It was clean, too, in spite of the rapid going.

Corbould played a beautiful game in the nets for Orillia. He was almost unbeatable and his work in the early stages had much to do with the victory of the Northerners. He was bombarded at all ranges and had he weakened and allowed a couple of the drives to beat him there might have been a different story. Harvie and Perryman are as effective if not particularly brilliant defence pair, while the forward line were all good. Jupp was the speediest of the quartette and a tireless backchecker, but he was no more effective on the attack than the others. Ross and Carter both worked in well and shot nicely, and Draper, the junior, on right wing, lthough handicapped by being on his wrong side, showed speed and good stick-handling ability.

The Petes played five men up on the line in an effort to pull down the lead, but could not make the grade. The brightest feature from a Peterborough standpoint, was the work of Halpin, the junior Captain, who showed speed and aggressiveness that won the crowd. He was by far the lightest and smallest player on the ice, but he kept buzzing around the Orillia nets like a bee, getting two of the Petes' counters, and carrying the rubber down for a third goal. The Orillia defence handed him a rough passage in the second half, but could not keep him out. Park never let up trying and, he was going all the way, doing some nice stick-handling and rushing. Kelly had a battle royal with Jupp, the Orillia speeder and the local boy played fine hockey. Bradshaw got a bump on his knee early in the game that was a handicap to him, but he stayed on the job and did some fine checking. Denison was a marked man, and although he uncovered some beautiful stick-handling, the Purple and White team refused to let him get inside and he was checked all the way down the rink. Bond worked hard, as usual, and did some effective checking. Janes, in goal, had a busy night and some of his stops bordered on the miraculous.

The teams:

Peterborough		Orillia
	Goal
Janes		Corbould
	Defence
Denison		Harvie
Bond		Perryman
	Rover
Halpin (Park)		Carter
	Centre
Park (Halpin)		Ross
	Right Wing
Bradshaw		Jupp
Kelly		Draper

There was a roar from the crowd that shook the shingles off the roof when Referee Toms sent the teams away a few minutes after the advertised hour. The pace was terrific from the go in. Both teams were on edge and both tried to get the jump Peterborough had the advantage in the opening moment, and only good goal-keeping by Corbould saved goals right off the reel. He turned aside several beauties from Kelly and Park and robbed Halpin of a counter by a quick jump to the other side of the net. Orillia came down several times, but were forced to shoot from well out, and Janes easily blocked the heaves. The Petes opened the scoring when Halpin rammed one through in a scrimmage after four minutes' hard playing.

The blue and white, encouraged by the auspicious opening, came strong, and for five minutes Corbould was the busiest man on the ice. The Petes were driving them at him from all angles, and with Halpin buzzing in on top of him from the rebounds he had to work overtime. He beat every shot, however, and it was Orillia who found the twine after all this bombardment, Draper getting away for a nice rush and batting the rubber past Janes from close in.

Then the purple and white came back with another counter in two minutes and the chances of the Petes to wind the round began to go a-glimmering. Ross got the goal on a pass from Carter and Orillia led by 2 to 1.

Peterborough returned to the attack, and with Denison up with the forwards and Halpin leading the advance guard, they hummed around Orillia nets, but Corbould had the door closed in their faces and they simply could not beat him, try as they might. Harvie drew a penalty for tripping bond. Then Jupp slipped down the wing, and although the Petes had him smothered along the boards, he cut loose with a long shot that got away from Janes, and the northerners were ahead 3 goals to 1.

The figures remained the same until half time, although both teams had a number of openings, Janes and Corbould being too good for the attack. Just before the rest period Bradshaw drew a penalty for dumping Jupp.

When the second half opened, Halpin was found at centre for the homesters, while Park went to rover, the change being made because of the manner in which the junior captain was working around th nets. The Petes showed lots of pep in the first few minutes of the half and sailed into the northerners at a dizzy clip, tying up the score in short order. Corbould stopped several hard shots right off the reel. Then Halpin, checking back on an Orillia rush, secured the rubber, wheeled and came down, with Park along side of him. He pulled the Orilla defence out and then slid the puckover to Parker, who drove a beauty past Corbould.

The Petes were going fast at this period, and Corbould stopped half a dozen shots in quick succession. Finally the puck drifted out to Denison, who took plenty of time and shot dead on. Corbould blocked the drive, but before he could clear, Halpin was in on him and slammed the rubber into the net, tying the score.

It remained sewed up only for a short time, Ross putting Orillia in the lead again by scooping one through from a face-off in front of the Peterborough nets. Then the teams settled down to a desperate battle. Both were tiring a little after the fierce pace of the first forty minutes and for a long period the play was even, both goalkeepers having a lot of work to do. The Petes piled five men on the attack and Corbould saved repeatedly. Finally from the midst of the assault Carter broke away clean and swept down, with only Bond and Janes to beat. He circled Bond and pulling Janes out slipped the rubber into the nets and Orillia were two goals to the good.

The next counter was a lucky one, but it settled the chances of the Petes annexing the game. Draper scooped one from near centre that Janes never saw until it landed in the nets. The score perceptibly disheartened the Petes and Harvie found little trouble in worrying through and scoring on a neat rush.

The summary:—

1 Peterborough, Halpin, 4 mins.
2 Orillia, Draper, 10 mins.

Forecast Of To-day's Winners

Eighty Soccer Games Will Be Played in the Old Country To-day

A full list of league games is scheduled in the Old Country to-day, which will be a rather welcome feature after the weak cup ties of the past few weeks. A battle royal will be fought at Blackburn, where the two Lancashire rivals, the "Rovers," and "Hyde Roaders," are due to clash. On form the "Rovers" should win, but the Manchester team are improving weekly, and are certain to give the league leaders a run for the points. Liverpool will battle with the Wanderers at Bolton.

The doughty "Spurs" have a long journey ahead of them. They are scheduled to meet Bradford City in the Yorshire town. The "Pensioners" will entertain the "Geordies" from Newcastle in their Southern home, and by the way the Northern team have been playing this past few weeks the victory should go to them.

The "Villans" will stack up against the "Blades" at Sheffield.

A Selection.

The teams we select to win are: Blackburn, Bolton W., Bradford C., Newcastle, Everton, Manchester U., Oldham A., Aston Villa, Sunderland Middlesboro, Barnsley, Fulham, Hull City, Leicester Fosse, Notts County Bury, Leeds City, Lincoln C., Bradford, Woolwich A., Crystal P., Reading, West Ham U., Plymouth A. Swindon T., Watford, Gillingham, Portsmouth, Southend U.

Pitnted leather is expected to appear in the shape of waistcoats and half belts.

A BIG GAME IN MERCANTILE LEAGUE MONDAY

The Mercantile League game on Monday night between the C.G.E. est and Tool Room teams should be a battle royal. A win for the Test gives them the championship while if the Tool Room wins, the Bankers, Test and Tool Rooms teams should be for the championship.

OSHAWA HAS LEAD OF THREE ON FRONTENACS

OSHAWA, Feb. 13.—The Kingston Frontenacs and Oshawa O.H.A. junior teams, rivals for the past four years in junior semi-finals, played the first of their home-and-home games here to-night before a packed house. It was generally conceded that the home team would win, but the easterners held the Oshawa boys down to a closer score than was expected. It was by far the best game of hockey witnessed here this season, and in fact the first game in which the local team were ever called upon to exert themselves to win.

Both teams are evenly matched, but the Oshawa seven are much the heavier, and their strong defence kept the Frontenacs from getting in very often, although the two Millan boys, the stars of the visitors' team, showed speed that surprised the locals. Comparatively few penalties were inflicted and, although the checking was hard and fierce, no accidents happened.

Kingston netted the first goal after about ten minutes' play, and in the first half showed more brilliant play than the home team. The half-time score was one all. In the second half Ottawa's weight and heavy checking told on the Frontenacs, who were only able to secure another goal, while Oshawa netted four making the final score 5 to 3 in favour of Oshawa. The home team played an excellent game all through, having worked in the best combination work they have yet shown.

Tickets Go On Sale To-day For Benefit Game

The benefit game for Charley Ray will be played at Brock St. Rink a week from to-night, and the tickets will go on sale this afternoon. A strong committee has the affair in hand and a substantial sum should be raised. There has already been a good demand for tickets. The first to buy one was Manager James Murphy, of the Ontario Professional team who was in town yesterday and who declared he wanted to be in on the proposition as soon as he heard of the game. The general admission tickets which will be sold for 25c will not be sold in advance. The reserved seats will be sold at $1.00 each, with a 50c charge for the west side of the rink. A grand crowd should be on hand.

CENTRAL SCHOOL TEAM DEFEATED KING GEORGE

A fast game of hockey was played on the Brock Street Rink from 11 to 12 o'clock this morning, in which the Central School team white-washed the King George seven 4-0. The game was hard-fought all the way, both sevens playing some fast hockey. Rutherford, Frost and Hunter scored the goals for the Central team, the latter getting two.

The teams were:

Lindsay Collegiate Win By 4 To 0

In an interesting game of hockey at Brock Street rink at noon to-day the Lindsay Collegiate Institute defeated the Peterborough Collegiate by 4 goals to 0. All the Lindsay counters were scored in the first period, neither team finding the nets after half time. The visitors have a heavy, speedy team, with Williamson in goal and Carew at rover starring. For the locals, Knapman, Stevenson and Long were the best. Maurice Park was a satisfactory referee. The teams were:

Lindsay C.I		Peterborough C.I.
	Goal
Williamson		Clarke
	Defence
Weeks		Long
A. Carewe		Peever
	Rover
C. Carewe		Knapman
	Centre
McElroy		Stratton
	R. Wing
Jordan		Stevenson
	R. Wing
Coombes		Smyth

HOCKEY

The Queen Alexandra School team failed to win for the first time this season when the West Ward School aggregation tied them 0-0. Both goal minders were on form. Robson starring. The game was played in the Brock Street Rink.

"TYPHOON"

The Great Play Which Mr. Lawrence Irving Will Present Here Next Week

Perhaps the great phenomena of world politics during the later half of the 19th century has been the rise within a few decades of Japan to the rank of a first class power. We had always been acustomed to talk of the balance of power in Europe, but our statesmen have now eagerly and anxiously to direct their attention to the balance of power in Asia—in fact, one might enlarge the phrase and say to the balance of power in the world.

This is the portentous event from which Mr. Melchior Lengyel has drawn the inspiration for "Typhoon." He has gone straight to the conflict which such a sudden transformation was bound to create between the old native Japanese civilization and the newly acquired one.

The dramatist, in contrasting the Japanese almost tribal sense of solidarity, which seems to European minds almost to obliterate personal rights, and to eschew individual sentient, with the ever increasingly individualistic trend of European policy, has held the scales perfectly eeven, and as a true dramatist has laid the problem before the spectator whilst leaving him to draw his own conclusion.

As regards the fundamental difference of outlook upon life between the Japanese and the Europeans an interesting statement is to be found in a pamphlet entitled "Some of the Contributions of Feudal Japan to the New Japan," by A. Asakawa, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Japanese Civilization at Yale University. He says: "I also have witnessed cases of abrupt termination of friendship between Japanese and foreigners, to the complete amazement of the latter, when the former had silently and too long endured what seemed to them the selfish and mean insistence by their foreign friends on their feelings and interests though the offence had been unintentional on heir part and in no way touched the personal interests of the Japanese."

Such is the background of "Typhoon." Its foreground of plot, as one might call it, deals with the story of a highly gifted young Japanese who gets entangled with a luridly depraved type of French demi-mondaine. In a moment of frenzy, a typhoon of sudden, overpowering rage, he strangles her. His fellow countrymen, confronted with this, to us, terrible action, only think of the necessity of rescuing their gifted compatriot from the clutches of the law, so that his great labours for the furtherance of Nippon's future omnipotence may not be interrupted. It is shown with what consummate skill they league together to hood-wink justice. But remorse has entered their great man's soul and he finally by a typical Japanese action solves the heartache of conflicting ideals.

Laurence Irving and Mabel Hackney will commence their all-Canadian tour in February under the auspices of the British Canadian Theatre Organization Society.

Jimmy Murphy, manager of the Ontario professional team, and one of the most famous hockey coaches in Canada, was an interesting spectator at last night's game. He was getting a line on Fred Denison, who was recommended to him as a possible prospect by Father Staunton of Ottawa Mr. Murphy was greatly impressed with the work of Grover Halpin, and complimented the youngster highly. "He is the most peppery player on your team remarked the visiting coach.

THE 'OVERLAND" 1914 MODEL AUTOMOBILE

Some of the Whys and Wherefores That Popularize This Thoroughbred Car

Mr. R. E. Wilson of the Peterborough Machine Co., 226 George Street, has just returned from a visit to the interesting monster plant of the Willys-Overland Motor Car Company of Toledo, Ohio. This Company announce that they will turn out 50,000 cars this year; and Mr. Wilson, who has been appointed their agent for the Peterborough district, was anxious to get a grasp of some of the great manufacturing economics, which such an enormous production effects.

They operate 40 large steam hammers with a combined striking power of 6,800,000 pounds or 3,400 tons. Over a dozen monster presses and ten Ajax forging machines. Two 5,000 pound hammers with a producing capacity of 750,000 pounds each; sixteen 2,000 pound hammers with a capacity of 200,000 pounds each; fourteen 1,500 pound hammers, with a capacity of 150,000 pounds each, and eight 1,000 pound hammers with a capacity of 10,000 pounds each. These are only a few of the many different economics effected by this huge drop forge.

With the close of last season, 150,000 Overland automobiles will be in regular use, and the plans for the 1913-14 season provides for the building of 50,000 Overland cars. These are stray figures and stamp their approval on an enterprise that has been originlly successful, as a great manufacturing organization. Mr. Wilson says the Overland Company are shipping 50 cars a day more than a year ago to-day, and of the 50,000 Overlands to be manufactured this year, already mor than half that amount are now called for by eager buyers. Better see Mr. Wilson soon, if you want an Overland, or, if you wait too long, he may not be able to supply you. See advertisement elsewhere.

WEDDING BELLS

HANBIDGE—DEYELL. MAWHINNEY—DEYELL.

At four o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 11th, about seventy guests gathered at "Crystal Stream," the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell, to witness the marriage of their twin daughters, Elsie Irene, to Mr. William Hanbidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbidge, of Otonabee, and Ethel Emma, to Mr. Albert Tennyson Mawhinney, of Frobisher, Sask., son of Mr. Robert Mawhinney, of Vancouver. The double ceremony was performed by Rev. C. S. Cragg, pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church, in the bow window of the drawing-room, under an arch of white streamers and smilax, hung with bridal bells.

The brides, who were given away by their father, wore dainty gowns of ivory satin, draped with shadow pointe and seed pearls, and carried bridal roses and valley lilies. Their only ornaments were the gifts of the grooms, necklaces set with pearls and peridots.

Miss Ezetta Chambers, niece of the brides, who played the wedding march, received a pearl pin from Mr. Hanbidge, and a bracelet from Mr. Mawhinney. After the usual congratulations and signing of the register, luncheon was served in the dining-room. The rooms were decorated with carnations, ferns and evergreens, and the tables with roses and smilax.

Toasts to the brides and grooms were proposed by Rev. C. E. Cragg, and responses were made by Mr. R. A. Deyell and Mr. John Hanbidge. At later tables Mr. Earnest Deyell, Deputy Reeve, proposed toasts to the Farmer and to Saskatchewan, the future home of Mr. and Mrs. Mawhinney. In the soft candle light the costumes looked particularly well. Mrs. R. A. Deyell wore black silk. Mrs. John Hanbidge wisteria voile with silver trimmings. Miss Eyetta Chambers a dainty frock of pink marquisette. Miss Mildred Deyell golden brown silk.

Among the many gifts were pianos from Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell, and substantial cheques from Miss Mildred and Mr. Warde Deyell.

The happy couples left on the evening train for Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo. The brides travelled in smart brown tailored suits with hats to match. They will be at home to their friends after March 25th; Mr. and Mrs. Hanbidge at their home in Otonabee, and Mr. and Mrs. Mawhinney, at Frobisher, Sask.

BUTTER WAS UP TWO AND THREE CENTS TO-DAY

Butter was up to 32 to 33c a pound on the market this morning, and at those figures it was difficult to secure supplies. The market was slimly attended, and at 11:40 there was but little offering. Eggs sold at 35c, and a small quantity of poultry changed hands.

Chickens were from 60c each to around $1.00. On the outside market you could count the sleighs almost at a glance. Pork sold at 13c and 14c, and beef at practically the same price, although some of it went at 14 and 15c.

HIS DREAM OF ORILLIA'S WIN A GOOD HUNCH

Jim Murphy had a dream on Wednesday night that netted him a few extra dollars. Not that he is a believer in dreams, but now and then they provide him with a hunch, which experience has proved to him cannot be overlooked.

The other night he was talking to a group of men about town, and the conversation turned to the Orillia Peterborough hockey match. The bunch could see nothing to it but a win for Peterborough, with the possibility of taking the round. Mr. Murphy listened for a while. "I'm inclined to think that this game is going to Orillia, and I'll tell you why. When old Fita was going into one of his last bouts I picked him to win. But I had a dream in which I saw him defeated. However, I put a few dollars on him, and of course I lost them. Last night" (this was on Thursday evening) "I had the same kind of a dream. I was at the hockey match and I saw Peterborough get a trimming, and if I was betting any money I wouldn't put much on the Petes. I haven't read much about Orillia, but see if what I tell you don't come true. They're going to get licked. I feel it, and I just want you to wait and see how that dream works out."

Well, the bunch passed him the laugh, told him he shouldn't eat too much cheese, and Jim's dander was elevated. He didn't want to bet. The boys were talking three goals at least for Peterborough, and it was suggested that he give his dream a try out. Three or four of the boys thought they were betting on a dream, pooled $25, and James, after several invitations, planked down a similar amount. One of the bunch started to tell him what he would do with the money, and Jim offered him $5 that Orillia would trounce the Petes. Up went the two fives. Then he finished off with a shoestring wager of $7 that he would win the $25 bet, making a total of $31. The rest is a sad, sad story for the easy money boys. A few of the wise ones said Murphy was crazy to pay attention to a bunch of that kind, but there you are.

ANOTHER BEILISS CASE.

Murder In Russia Threatens To Provoke Anti-Semite Riots.

KIEV, Feb. 16.—The murder of the boy at Fastoff, which it is alleged was committed for ritualistic purposes, is assuming the dimension of the Beiliss case. As in the earlier tragedy, stories of mysterious characters have been introduced, such as "a red-headed man" and "a lamplighter," both of whom have disappeared. The Black Hundred and the Union of Russian People are showing their old-time anti-Semite activity.

The Minister of Justice and other judicial officials have arrived at Kiev and are sifting the evidence. On the arrival they were acclaimed by deputations from the Union of Russian People and the Two-Headed Eagle organization.

The leaders of the Black Hundred, after first asserting that the victim was a Christian, subsequently declared that he was a Jew, and that he had been murdered by Jews in connection with the Beiliss case for the purpose of disproving the allegation that in the so-called ritual murder Christian blood was invariably selected

Prisoner Tried During Attack of Typhoid Fever

DIES AFTER THREE WEEKS

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Sentenced to Central Prison and incarcerated therein while suffering from typhoid fever, Victor Pointon of Niagara Falls, Ont., died in the institution on Friday, and at an inquest held by Coroner Lynd Saturday night, the jury condemned the action of the crown authorities in not having placed the man in a hospital.

Pointon was brought to Toronto on Jan. 27, apparently then afflicted with the fever.

The jury's verdict directed the crown attorney to draw the Attorney-General's attention to the matter, deeming that a hospital would have been the proper place to send the man.

That everything possible was done for the man by the authorities at the Central Prison was brought out in the evidence, as soon as he was handed over to the prison authorities and it was seen that he was not in good health.

Dr. William Algie examined him, and diagnosed his case as typhoid fever. Pointon was in a bad condition, apparently, as his temperature was 105. He was at once sent to the prison hospital and received every attention possible.

DELIVERED ON SUNDAY.

Coal Famine In Toronto Leads to Extraordinary Measures.

TORONTO Feb. 16.—Mayor Hocken yesterday allowed the Ellis Rogers Coal Co to deliver nearly 100 tons of furnace coal to homes whose supply had become exhausted by the extreme zero weather.

Last week's spell of frigid weather the people heaving the black nuggets into the hungry maws of the iron monster in such quantities Saturday night found hundreds of citizens without enough in the cellars to last over Sunday. According to Alfred Rogers was besieged by so many appeals for tons and half-tons that he was forced to invoke the mayor's aid to relieve the situation. The permission being forthcoming, men and wagons worked from 10 a.m. until 4 in the afternoon and delivered supplies to more than 200 residences receiving double pay for their time.

Mayor Hocken said last night that the permission had been granted on the strict understanding that the privilege was only to be used in cases of actual necessity or where suffering was likely to ensue.

FRESH AIR IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Ninety Per Cent of Offices Are Overheated —Night Air as Healthy as Day Air

This morning, a cold and bright winter day I found it necessary to leave the trolley on which I started and to transfer to another car. A drug store was opposite the station. About a dozen women, and one or two men left the car when I did, and all of them entered the drug store instead of staying out and enjoying the sunshine and breathing the clear, healthful air.

Investigation shows that 90 per cent. of employees and probably a greater percentage of home-living people, sleep, read, or work, breathing vitiated air, with windows closed or but slightly raised. And these people wonder why it is that they suffer from headaches and general indisposition.

I am not, I hope, a faddist, and I am not foolish enough to believe that pure air is a general cure-all; for deep and proper breathing and good air while essential to health will not perform miracles or cure every complaint. They, however, contribute more to health and happiness than does anything else, and certainly they are the most inexpensive health-givers and strength-builders.

Some people are afraid of night air, and shut off the supply from the bedroom. They must breathe night air or they must breathe devitalized air. Night air is just as healthy, and just as good as day air. You cannot shut it off without shutting off air itself.

Ninety-nine per cent of offices are overheated, and the majority of homes do not maintain an even temperature. The fire goes down too far and comes up too much.

Comparatively few people are injured by spending much of their time out of doors, and one should stay out in the open as much as possible. If your work is largely indoors, you should open the windows, being careful not to sit or stand in a draught.

You cannot work well, or sleep well, or live well without air and a lot of it. It is simply a question of whether you will breathe air which makes for health and strength or air which is debilitating and unfits you to perform your duties.

The success of the fresh air classes, attended by anaemic, weak, and tubercular children, and of the outdoor treatment as a cure for tuberculosis, have proved conclusively that fresh air and outdoor air, whether it be warm or cold, will not injure any one and that the lack of it places the body in a condition to absorb readily all disease germs and stimulates illness of every kind.

Until we progress sufficiently to demand ventilation in steam and trolley cars, every one will do well to use these conveyances as little as possible, and should advise all who are obliged to travel in this manner to leave their train or car a mile or two before reaching home or office, and to walk the balance of the way. The combination of the mild exercise of walking, with the breathing of good pure air, stands for health and prosperity; yes, it is a forerunner of better posterity. Its value is both immediate and lasting.

RECENT DOINGS OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The annual meeting of the Conservation Commission held in Ottawa last week, was attended, by invitation of the recording secretary, Mrs. Plumptre, as representing th National Council, who took part in the programme. Of her address the daily press in Ottawa afterwards said:

"For the first time in its history the Commission of Conservation was addressed by a woman this morning. Mrs. Plumptre, recording secretary of the National Council of Women of Canada, and wife of Canon Plumptre of Toronto, was the speaker, and in an admirable address outlined briefly what is being done by the National Council to better living conditions throughout Canada.

In all the Council works through eighteen standing committees, the last of which was formed was one on conservation. The National Council has a total membership of 150,000 women and the new committee desired to acquire and disseminate the principles that the Commission of Conservation stand for. She referred to the great work that has been undertaken by the Council to better immigration methods and to provide not only suitable houses, but suitable homes for those coming to Canada.

She pointed out the great need that exists in the smaller towns and villages for knowledge respecting town planning, housing, sanitation, etc., and promised the Commission the full assistance of the Council in spreading such information. The co-operation of such important bodies as the National Council and the Commission of Conservation will doubtless mean much for the conservation movement in Canada."

DR. WESTON NOT SATISFIED.

Bishop of Zanzibar Assails Archbishop of Canterbury.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Bishop of Zanzibar has given new seriousness to the Kikuyu (East Africa) religious controversy by addressing a remarkable letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, in which he criticises the archbishop's reference of the matter to the Committee of Bishops at Lambeth.

Bishop Weston argues that the archbishop's use of the phrase "branches of the Church of Christ," as applied to the non-conformist bodies, indicates that the primate has prejudged the case. He declares that the archbishop, consulting the Lambeth committee will be taking the advice of those representing bishops and synods who have already compromised themselves on the question. He asserts that the archbishop's questions have been framed so as to tend to indicate the direction from which an answer will be expected

The Bishop of Zanzibar concludes that unless the Bishops of Mombasa and Uganda are found not to be at fault he will still have to determine whether he can remain in communion with them, asserting: "As the spiritual father of my Africans I am bound to protect them from what falls little short of religious persecution." Bishop Weston says that under the present circumstances his own position is intolerable, and hope for a united church in Africa is rendered vain.

Two Records Broken.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 16.—Smashing two American records in a spectacular flight, covering approximately 246 miles in 272 minutes, Lieut. T. F. Dodd and Sergt. Herbert Marcus, of the First Aero Corps, Saturday performed what Capt. Arthur S. Cowan, commanding the army aviation camp, yesterday termed the most finished flight ever made in the United States by either an army officer or a civilian aviator.

Capt. A. S. Cowan, commanding the Aero Corps, said Lieut. Dodd would be credited with both the American endurance and American non-stop distance records.

"I HAVE GAINED FIFTEEN POUNDS

Since Taking "Fruit-a-tives" And Feel Like A New Person"

DRYSDALE, ONT., June 15th, 1913.

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address and, on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them strongly to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a most terrific pain at the base of my skull. This pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to Inflammation of the Brain, but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives" and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness".

"THE FREE RANGE"

"But how did you get down over the Bar T range?" asked the chief herder.

"We done that at night," replied Jimmie Welsh, who was a little man with a ruddy face, bright eyes, and a crisp manner of speech. "Tell me what's that ungodly mess up in Little River; it was night an' we couldn't see?"

"Two thousand of Larkin's sheep," replied Sims, laconically, and an angry murmur ran through the men. "Old Bissell, of the Bar T, stampeded 'em when we were just a-goin' to get 'em through safe. Shot up one herder, lammed cookee over the head an' raised ructions generally. Yes, boys, I'm plumb shore we have one or two little matters to ask them Bar T punchers about."

"But what's your orders, Simmy?" asked Welsh.

"I'm in charge o' the hull outfit whatever I want. I'm gettin' real concerned about him though, not hearin' a word for a week. I low if he don't turn up to-morrow I'll have to send you boys lookin' fer him."

But the mororw brought its own solution of the problem.

In the middle of the morning a lone horseman was seen approaching over the hills, and the restless sheepmen, eager for any sport, spread out into a veritable ambuscade, taking up positions behind rocks and in depressions along the hills on either hand.

The horseman was very evidently a poor rider, for, instead of holding the reins easily and jauntily in his upturned right hand, he was clinging to the pommel of the saddle, while the pony slipped and slid along the difficul path.

Within a furlong of the camp, the man's nationality was made apparent by the flapping shirt and trousers he wore, as well as the black, coarse cue that whipped from side to side.

Among the secreted sheepmen a grin spread from face to face at the sight of this distressful figure, evidently in real woe from hours in the hard saddle. About a hundred yards from camp a single shot rang out, and then there arose such a wild chorus of reports and yells as would have terrified a stone image.

The cow pony (which of all horses loathes a bad rider) showed the whites of his eyes wickedly, laid his ears back into his mane and bucked madly with fright. The Chinaman, chattering like a monkey, described a perfect parabola and alighted right side up on the only tuft of grass within ten yards.

In an instant he bounced to his feet, took one look at the surrounding society, and made a bolt for the cook-waggon, the one place that was familiar to him.

At the door he encountered the sheepmen's regular cook coming out to see what the trouble was, and the next moment witnessed the near-annihilation of the yellow peril.

Sims and Jimmie Welsh pulled the burly cook off in time to save the Oriental, and the latter sat up with a dazed, frightened air.

"Yah! Makee much damee hellee!" he announced.

"Too much damee hellee," said Sims sententiously. "John, you good fighter. Me like you. What you do here?"

"Me bling message," and he reached into his blouse and drew out a piece of paper folded and pinned.

This he handed to Sims, who promptly opened it and started to read. In a minute he stopped and yelled for everyone who was not in the immediate circle to gather round and listen. Then, haltingly, he read aloud the following:

Dear Sims,—Ah Sin who brings you this is a bang-up cook, and I am sending him to you to get a job. Pay him fifty dollars on the spot in advance for his first month. I told him you would. He was the Bar T coog, I am sorry to say, but there was no other way of getting a message to you than to send him.

For the last few days I have been a prisoner in the guest-room of the Bar T ranch house. This is the middle room on the north-west side. After a certain row here I was clapped into confinement, and the Chinaman had to do the honours for me at all meals. I got friendly with him, and found he was getting only thirty a month.

When he told me he owned one of the horses in the corral the whole thing was easy. I offered him fifty, gave him exact directions how to find your camp, and told him the best time to start.

If he ever reaches you, you will know where I am, and I want some of you to come and get me out of this. The cattlemen from all over are here, and they accuse me with standing in with the rustlers. What will happen to me I don't know, but I'm sure of this, it won't be healthy.

I should think the boys would be down from the north by this time.

Now, Simmy, keep everything under your hat and work quietly. Let the sheep pile up if you have to. Things aren't ripe here yet to move 'em north.

I'll be looking for you any day.

BUD.

When Sims had read the entire note twice, a puzzled silence ensued. Men lifted their hats and scratched their heads meditatively. Here among fifty men there was plenty of energy for action once the action was suggested, but very little initiative.

"I allow we'll shore have to get 'im out o' there," seemed to be the consensus of opinion.

"Shore, boys, shore," said Sims impatiently; "but how That's the question. There's about a dozen real smart shooters on that ranch, and I'm plenty sure they don't all sleep at once. Besides, the worst part of it'll be gettin' near the dum place. If a hoss squeals or whinnies the rescuin' party might as well pick out their graves, 'cause yuh see only two or three can make the trip."

"Mebbe they can an' mebbe they can't," broke in Jimmie Welsh, his little, bright eyes twinkling with suppressed merriment. "I should think the hull outfit, cook-waggons, an' all, could make the visit to the Bar T."

"Yeah?" remarked Sims politely scornful but inquisitive. "Tell us about it."

And Welsh did.

Sentenced.

Everybody at the Bar T ranch house was labouring under suppressed excitement. It was now the middle of June when the yearly round-up should be under way, yet, owing to the invasion of the sheep and the recent rustler troubles, the cowboys had not been free to undertake this task.

On ranches this spring work was well advanced, and the fact that the Bar T had not yet begun was a source of constant worry to Bissell and Stelton. The former, when he had sent out his call for other cowmen of the region, had encountered great difficulty in getting his neighbours to give up their time to the disposal of Bud Larkin's ends.

At last, however, ten owners, impatient at the summons and anxious to return as quickly as possible to their work, had ridden in, some of them alone and others with a cowboy taken from the round-up.

Since the Bar T ranch house was incapable of accommodating them all, the punchers had been ousted from their bunk-house and the structure given over to the visitors.

The sudden disappearance of the Chinese cook had added to Bissell's troubles and shamed the hospitality of his home. This situation had been relieved temporarily by the labours of Mrs. Bissell and Juliet until an incompetent cowboy had been pressed into service at an exorbitant figure.

Therefore it was with hurt temper and less patience that Bissell began what might be called the trial of Larkin. The meeting-place of the men was under a big cottonwood that stood by the bank of the little stream curving past the Bar T.

As each man arrived from his home ranch he was made acquainted with the situation as it stood, and one afternoon Larkin was brought out from his room to appear before the tribunal. The owners were determined to end the matter that day, mete out punishment, and ride back to their own ranches in the morning.

It was a circle of stern-faced, solemn men that Larkin faced under the cottonwood tree, and as he looked at one after another, his heart sank, for there appeared very little of the quality of mercy in any of them. Knowing as he did the urgency that was drawing them home again, he feared that the swiftness of judgment would be tempered with very little reason.

Bissell as head of the organization occupied a chair, while at each side of him five men lounged on the grass, their guns within easy reach. Larkin was assigned to a seat facing them all, and, looking them over, recognized one or two. There was Billy Speaker, of the Circle-Arrow, whom he had once met, and Red Tarken, of the M Square, unmistakable both because of his size and his flaming hair.

"Now, Larkin," began Bissell, "these men know what you've been tryin' to do to my range—"

"Do they know what you did to my sheep?" interrupted Bud crisply.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

She Shuffled, He Cut.

At a country ball a farmer had engaged a pretty coquette for the next dance, but a gallant captain coming along persuaded the young lady to cancel her previous engagement in favor of himself. The farmer, overbearing the conversation, went to a card table and sat down to a game of whist.

A few minutes later the captain stepped up to the young lady to excuse himself, as he had forgotten that he was already engaged to another. Miss Coquette, much chagrined, then made tracks for the whist table, hoping to secure her first partner.

"I think, sir, that it is time to take our places."

"No, Miss S. I mean to keep my present place. When ladies shuffle I cut."—Liverpool Mercury.

Wireless Is In Demand.

The extent to which wireless telegraphy under Government control is being utilized by the people of Canada is shown by statistics contained in the annual report of the Naval Service Department.

A total of 272,087 messages, containing 4,275,759 words, were handled during the year by the coast station services, against 196,250 messages and 2,839,455 words during the preceding year. This is an increase of 75,837 message and 1,436,814 words over 1913.

Even as it is, the existence of the present Government service and the contract with the Marconi Company, covering the stations it operates, has saved Canadians thousands every year.

At its inception in 1909-10 the total number of messages handled was only 84,077, and of words 1,222,782. In 1911, 119,668 messages were sent, and in 1913, 196,250. The West Coast service, which is operated directly by the Government, handled in 1913, about two million words, and the East Coast about a million and a half, the Great Lakes service making up the remainder.

There are now forty wireless stations in Canada, additions having been made during the year. With the improvement of the Montreal station, it will be possible next spring to establish through communication from Montreal to the ocean.

The Office Boy's Salary.

Mr. Louis Heyd, the well-known Toronto lawyer, tells the following story at his own expense. He says he was generous in giving advice on legal and general matters to all around his office from his partner down, or up, to the office boy. He liked to have things done just right, and he never hesitated to correct an error or make a timely suggestion for improvement or advance—that is until he overheard one day a conversation between his office boy and another office boy from another city office. "What's yer wages?" asks the other office boy. "Ten thousand a year!" replied Mr. Heyd's boy. "Aw, quit your kidding!" "Sure," insisted Heyd's boy, "I get four dollars a week cash, and the rest in legal advice."—Orillia Packet.

The Delicacy of Baby's Skin

Cold Air, Rough Winds, Strong Soaps Often Bring on Chronic Eczema.

More beautiful than the rose is baby's skin when in health, and so delicate that it is susceptible to anything which irritates. For this reason baby's skin troubles are many, and frequently chronic itching eczema is developd.

Nothing can be better for baby's skin when irritated, than Dr. Chase's Ointment, and when eczema is developed you can apply this preparation with the knowledge that its wonderful record as a healer of the skin is due to the success it has proved in the cure of eczema.

The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and is a source of worry and anxiety to the mother. The itching parts are scratched, and nasty and coloured scars are formed. Eczema naturally becomes chronic and spreads over the body. You can positively control eczema and cure it by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. What is better still is to use this ointment for all chafing and irriation of the skin and prevent eczema from getting started.

The Bell Bird.

The most remarkable thing in connection with the bell bird is its powerful voice. It utters a clear metallic note that can be heard at a distance of three miles. Its noise is like that produced by a blacksmith striking his anvil. Sometimes it repeats its notes in quick succession, sometimes at fairly long intervals. There is no mistake about the voice of this bird; it is loud and piercing and would be heard above the din produced by every inmate of the zoo raising its voice at once. Except for a space of naked skin on the throat and around the eyes, which during the breeding season is of green color, this bird is pure white. The contrast between the sexes in the bell birds is extreme, for, while the male is pure white, the female is brownish green. Darwin refers to the bell bird when he points out that "white is a very rare color in terrestrial species of moderate size and inoffensive habits."—Pall Mall Gazette.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF AN ABSCESS BY Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mr. A. W. Dryden, Amherst, N.S., writes:—"I am going to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for us. My son "Vance," when only nine months old, got an abscess on his cheek bone. I took him to a doctor in St. John, N.B., and he lanced it, and told me it would get well in a few days, and wanted me to keep it squeezed out. It did not seem to get any better, so my wife took him back. The Doctor told her to take him home and it would soon get better. It would gather and break, and it went on that way until he was over four years old.

"He lost four pieces of bone out of where it was lanced, and two pieces came from his mouth; he has lost all of his cheek bone, and his eye was drawn down. I took him to doctors in St. John, Moncton, and Amherst, and all wanted me to let him go under an operation. He was so small I told them that if he was going to die he might as well die as he was as to go there and be all cut to pieces, so I declined to have the operation done. I told them I was going to try Burdock Blood Bitters, as I had heard my mother talk so much about it. I got a bottle, and when it was about half gone noticed it was doing good, and before many days the sore stopped running, and healed up, and the abscess has never broken out again. This happened nearly six years ago, so you can see I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters, and I can say with all my heart that it is the best blood medicine in the world."

A Human Match Factory

The body contains phosphorus sufficient to make 200,000 matches. Phosphorus is one of fourteen elements composing the body—divided among bones, flesh, nervous system and other organs. The perfect health of body requires a perfect balance of the elements. These elements come from the food we eat—the stomach extracts and distributes them.

But if stomach is deranged—the balance of health is destroyed and the blood does not carry the proper elements to the different organs, and there is blood trouble—nerve trouble—heart trouble. Pain is the hungry cry of starved organs. Put the liver, stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of health. That is just what is done by

PERSONAL OR RACE SALVATION?

Pastor Russell's "Movies" Teach Both Views.

THE GOSPEL IS NOT FOR SALE

Moody and Beecher Quoted by Dr. Abbott as Representing Opposing Views of Salvation—Pastor Russell Shows That Both Views Are Biblical—At Opening of Photo-Drama of Creation In Indiana's Capital City.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

PASTOR RUSSELL.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 15.—Pastor Russell is here, opening the Photo-Drama of Creation at Tomlinson Hall. Besides the initial great expense of the beautiful and instructive Drama, it must cost a fabulous sum to have it going in several places at one time—'New York, Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and here—and in Chicago and other places soon! Whence all this money for so grand a cause?—all free! Why do you not charge a dollar a seat? are the questions everywhere.

Pastor Russell's only answer is, "I cannot sell the Gospel. Jesus and His Apostles never took up collections, nor authorized begging in God's name, so far as the Bible shows. People blessed by the Message voluntarily send me money to further the good work of re-establishing faith in God and the Bible amongst thinking people. In proportion as God supplies it we spend it. It must be so!"

The Pastor's text was: "God wills that all should be saved and come to a knowledge of the Truth." (1 Timothy 2:4.). He declared that this salvation for all will be from the sin, sickness and death all inherit from Adam; and that it will be ushered in by Christ's Kingdom. The salvation now in progress is that of the Church—a "chief," or superior salvation. However, "Second Death" will be the portion of all who prefer sin to holiness.

In the course of his sermon the Pastor said: Dr. Lyman Abbott, the immediate successor to Henry Ward Beecher as Pastor of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, delivered an address, on October 12th last, at a Beecher Memorial service, in which he stated: "Mr. Beecher was the most famous preacher in America, perhaps in the world, and the most sharply criticized. He never fell under the condemnation pronounced against the prophet of whom all speak well. I was present—the year was probably 1870, though I am not sure—at an interview between Mr. Moody and Mr. Beecher, in which the former urged Mr. Beecher to leave the Plymouth Church for a world-wide evangelistic tour with him. After Mr. Moody had gone, Mr. Beecher said to me: 'I should like to do it, but it is impossible. We do not agree. Mr. Moody believes that this is a lost world, and he is trying to save some from the wreck. I believe that it is the world itself that is to be saved, and that the kingdoms of this world are to become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ'."

Dr. Abbott has stated very succinctly the two views of religion which generally prevail to-day, and which were ably represented by Mr. Beecher and Mr. Moody. While the difference between these two views is a wide one, and seemingly the one contradicts the other, nevertheless this is not so. Both views contain an element of Truth. Both views have Scriptural support. The right understanding of the Bible lies in seeing how both of these views are parts of a general whole. Whoever can get a glimpse of that general whole thereby gradually increases both his confidence in the Bible and his own faith and hope toward God. Whoever fails to get that comprehensive view remains weak in faith and uncertain of his theology. He continually recognizes a lack and continually finds a conflict between his heart and his head, between his view of the Bible teaching and his reason.

Let us note the two sides of this subject from the Bible viewpoint; and thereby satisfy and harmonize our hearts and our heads, and convince ourselves that the Story of the Cross and of the world's Redemption is the true Story of the Divine Program, and that the results will not be narrow and meager, but broad and generous.

Mr. Moody merely held to the teachings of Jesus, the Apostles and the Prophets when he declared that that which God created perfect, in His own image, had been sadly wrecked by disobedience; that a curse, or blight, had come upon mankind; and that this curse, or Divine sentence of death, is behind all the tears and pain and groans, behind all the mental, moral and physical weaknesses with which we and our neighbors are surrounded. It is a matter of heredity. Instead of our condition being one of evolution from a lower to a higher plane, it is a condition of devolution from a higher to a lower plane.

The reaction from barbarism to civilization through the influence of Christianity was indeed a step upward from the depths of degradation for many, but it was not a step out of the degradation. The reign of Sin and Death still prevails. Despite our education, the heart of man is still selfish and sinful, and the human body still full of aches and pains. Sighing and crying still continue. Not only have we not found a panacea, a cure-all, but despite our most persistent efforts diseases are multiplied, and our race is growing mentally and physically weaker.

But while the Gospel of Christ has not as yet saved the world, it has proven a wonderful blessing to those who have become sincere followers of Jesus—a saintly few. To these the Gospel has not only brought peace and joy, but has been to them "the power of God unto salvation." It has saved them from many of their weaknesses and fears. More than this, it is preparing them for a completeness of salvation, to be brought unto them at the Second Coming of Jesus, when they, according to His promise, shall experience a complete change of nature — from earthly condition to Heavenly, from weakness to power, from humiliation to glory, from animal, or human, conditions to spirit conditions.

But Mr. Beecher's view, also, contains Bible Truth. Although the kingdoms of this world have not yet become the Kingdom of our Lord, although as yet every knee does not bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God, nevertheless, according to the Bible, the final outcome of the Divine Plan will include all these things. Amongst other things prophesied, the knowledge of the glory of God has not yet filled the whole earth. Not yet are all the blinded eyes of ignorance and superstition opened, nor are all the deaf ears unstopped.

The Bible explanation of the situation is that God from the very beginning purposed the permission of sin, in order to give valuable instruction to angels and to men respecting the sinfulness of sin and its dire consequences. God's Law declares, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." "The wages of sin is death." We were confused by the errors which crept into Church creeds during the Dark Ages, when the Bible was practically non-existent, when the bishops were supposed to be the successors of the Apostles, and when their decisions were considered infallible.

Their teaching that the dead are alive misled us, turned us away from the Bible teaching that the dead are dead. Their teachings respecting a fiery Hell and a Purgatory led us away from the Bible teaching on the subject of future punishment. Now we find that the Bible Hell is the tomb, the death state; and that God in His great Plan has arranged to abolish our sentence of death by the universal awakening of the dead. All in the graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and come forth.—John 5:28, 29. R. V.

The Bible teaches that God has an orderly Plan for His entire work; and that not until man has passed through six great Days from his creation, each a thousand years long, will his Week of labor, toil and strife against sickness, pain, sorrow and death be at an end. Then Messiah's long-promised Kingdom will be established. Christ shall come, a spirit being, and shall dethrone Satan; who through human superstition and ignorance has become the master of men. Satan shall be bound for a thousand years; and Messiah shall be the great King of earth, though his Kingdom will be invisible to men as Satan's Kingdom is invisible—because composed of spirit beings.

The grand work of the Kingdom of God (Jesus and His glorified Church operating through human agencies) will be a work of Restitution. (Acts 3:19-21). As Adam fell from the moral image of his Creator, he is to have the opportunity of rising again to this image, because redeemed by Messiah's sacrifice.

The Church's salvation, in progress since Pentecost, is a salvation to a Heavenly existence, by a change of nature. But the world's salvation will consist of a restoration to perfect human nature, which will find its perfection of enjoyment in an earthly Eden, gradually becoming world-wide. As Adam's death sentence was accompanied by sickness, sorrow and pain, so when the Redeemer shall apply to mankind at His Second Coming the general forgiveness and amnesty promised in the Bible, the result will be the gradual elimination of sickness, sorrow and pain. By the close of Messiah's thousand-year Reign, there shall be no more sin or death. The curse will thus gradually disappear, giving place to Divine blessing and fellowship—Revelation 21:5; 22:3.

Many Bible student believe that the wonderful increases of knowledge and blessings in the world witnessed during the past fifty years are evidences foretold by the Bible, indicating that we are already in the dawn of that New Day of Messiah's Kingdom. The running to and fro and increase of knowledge, the wise of God's people understanding, and the imminence of a great Time of Trouble (Daniel 12:1-4, 9, 10; Matthew 24:21), point out that we are in the time of the ending of the old order of things, and the dawning of the new.

This great Time of Trouble we see approaching. According to the Scriptures, it will be all-embracing. It will include all religious systems, all human governments, nations and conditions of men, and will culminate in anarchy. Although for a time humanity will seem to be bereft of reason—mad—yet the peaceable fruits of righteousness will finally be attained, not because of human wisdom to extricate itself, but because Messiah's Kingdom will then be established. God's Word declares: "When the judgments of the Lord are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." (Isaiah 26:9.) Then wilful evil doers will be cut off in the Second Death, without hope of further redemption, while the obedient will attain human perfection.

Rev. Lyman Abbott eulogized Mr. Beecher as one of the first ministers to accept Darwin's theory of Evolution. No doubt this is so. A good man, broad and generous, but misled by the creeds, thought that he found in Evolution something more rational than the Bible taught. He endeavored to link the two together, as others have endeavored to do, only to fail; for the Bible throughout is in direct opposition to the Evolution theory. It distinctly eaches the fall of man.

Jesus declared that He came to recover that which was lost. God sent His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish. St. Peter tells of the Restitution of fallen man to his former glorious estate, in the likeness of his Creator. If Darwin's theory be correct, then Jesus, His Apostles, and all the Prophets, were astray.

But what is the Evolution hope? Briefly stated, this: That some distance back our forefathers were monkeys; that we have progressed in a measure, but are still perishing, as did our monkey forefathers. Under Darwin's law of the Survival of the Fittest, disease and death will gradually weed out the more stupid and vicious (as it is not doing, so far as any one can see), that in the far-off future our children may attain such perfection as to know how to live forever and rightly enjoy the blessings of earthly life.

Perhaps the Evolution hope is better than none! Surely it is better than the eternal torment hope of the Dark Ages! but it must be far from soul-satisfying to all who think deeply. But the Bible hope proposes that Messiah's Kingdom shall take in the entire race of Adam, and by disciplinary instructions and encouragements shall help all the willing and obedient to human perfection. This hope for the world is beyond the special hope which is the exclusive portion of the fully consecrated disciples of Jesus.

Dr. Abbott sympathized with us in advance, saying, "There are still some belated preachers who endeavor to persuade their congregations that Evolution is perilous to the soul, and who found their religious teaching on the old doctrines of a finished creation, an absentee God, and a pestilence-stricken world."

We confess that we belong to this class. There can be no doubt that we are living in a pestilence-stricken world, and that conditions here are not such as a gracious and loving Being would provide for His intelligent creatures. Rather, as St. Paul declares, the world is under a reign of Sin and Death, which has prevailed since the time Father Adam was cut off from fellowship with his Heavenly Father, under the sentence of death.—Romans 5:12-21.

The condition of the pestilence-stricken world is permitted in order to carry out the penalty upon our convict race. The Bible declares that God is allowing mankind to learn a great lesson of their own incompetence and helplessness, which will be valuable to all eternity to both men and angels; that present trials and difficulties and death will be overruled for man's good. For six thousand years men have been learning the bitter results of disobedience to the laws of righteousness, and their need of help Divine. Only a few yet know that "God is Love."

But such as see the true light of God's Word as to the fall, the redemption price, the call of the Church to be joint-heirs in Messiah's Kingdom, and the eventual Reign of Righteousness, have a great joy and blessing. As for others, we begrudge them not whatever joy or peace they can get out of any theory that will liberate from the horrible nightmare of the Dark Ages.

Continuing his eulogy of Mr. Beecher, Dr. Abbott said: "But no one any longer asks sarcastically, 'So you think your grandfather was an ape?' And few are they who still venture to denounce as atheists those who believe in life as a process of Divine growth, and redemption as a process of spiritual development." We fear Dr. Abbott is right—that the learned in pulpit and pew have so thoroughly lost their faith in the God of the Bible that they no longer reproach one another with the fact.

But is the fact any the less true for this reason? Suppose all the great minds accept the Evolution theory—that Adam was the son of an ape—and oppose the Bible teaching that he was a special and direct creation of God, the moral image of his Creator. Suppose all those decide that man never fell from perfection, and never needed a redemption, and that all the Bible statements respecting Jesus as the Redeemer are false.

Suppose the literati do hold that all earthly life is merely a development, an evolutionary process, called, in a complimentary sense, "Divine growth," with the thought that quite probably there is no Divine Being, but merely some great force operating in nature — that redemption is only a higher development of the moral instincts.

What of all this? Must we accept such decisions as final? Shall we not rather take the assurances of the Bible respecting these very men of letters? Of these great scholars the Lord prophesied thousands of years ago, saying, "The wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid." (Isaiah 29:14.) St. Paul declares, "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."—1 Corinthians 3:18-20.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Suffered Intense Agony With His Back.

Kidneys Were The Cause.

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and on the first approach or evidence of kidney trouble Doan's Kidney Pills should be used, and serious trouble avoided.

Mr. John Briggs, Whitewood, Sask., writes:—"I am sending you this testimonial out of pure gratitude, as I am not a believer in patent medicines, but I got so run down, that I became quite willing to give anything a trial. I paid a visit to our local druggist, and told him I was suffering intense agony with my back. He told me I had kidney trouble, and handed me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, saying it was the best thing he could possibly give me. I tried them, and the effect was certainly marvelous. They are worth $10.00 a box of anybody's money, and I would not be without a box by me. I certainly owe my present condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

It All Depends on the Liver

So important is the liver and so great is its influence on the other vital organs of the body that it may be said you have little to fear from the ordinary ills of life so long as the liver is in healthful working order. The digestive processes are so dependent on free action of the liver that any derangement of this organ soon brings trouble.

Biliousness and constipation follow, with headache and depressed spirits. Additional work is thrown on the kidneys and soon the whole eliminating system is deranged and the blood carries poisons through the body. Careful eating is a great help towards keeping the liver right, but when it does get wrong there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore the liver to healthful action.

With the secretion of bile by the liver, constipation and biliousness are cured, and the digestive and excretary systems are set in order. It is wondrful the benefit obtained by a few doses of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills under these circumstances. A trial will convince you of their superior merit.

His Rescue.

Before the erection of the pier at the Castle Rock passengers from Dumbarton, Scotland, had to be conveyed down the Leven to the Clyde steamers by a ferryboat, rowed by two sturdy and generally elderly ferrymen. On one occasion an English commercial traveler had seated himself on the gunwale at the stern. One of the old ferrymen, aware of the danger to any one so placed when the rope of the steamer should be attached to the bow of the boat, took occasion to warn the man of his danger.

"Noo, my man, come down aff that or ye'll coup over."

The traveler replied by telling him to mind his own business and trust him to take care of himself.

"Weel," said the ferryman, "mind I've telt ye. As sure as ye're sittin' there ye'll coup over."

No sooner had the rope been attached and the boat got the inevitable tug from the steamer than the fellow went over the stern.

"I telt him that!"

However, being in the water, it behooved that every effort should be made to rescue him. So the ferryman made a grab at what seemed the hair of his head, when a wig came away. Throwing this impatiently into the boat, he made a grip at the collar of his shirt, when the front came away. Casting this from him with still greater scorn, he shouted to his companion:

"Tammas, come and help save as muckle o' this man as ye can, for he's comin' awa' in bits!"

Ontario's Slaughter of Wild Ducks.

Over two million people in Ontario are waiting to see what will be done at the coming session of the Legislature to save the fish and game supply.

Ninety per cent. of the wild ducks killed during 1913 were purveyed by the high-priced hotels and cafes to their wealthy patrons. The plain citizen who enjoys the marsh shores, where the birds are available, gets the fresh air but no ducks.

The ruthless market hunter feeds the wild ducks wheat and barley, goes out in his launch, rounds up the ducks, and slaughters them with six-and ten-shot pump guns. Is that what we call "sport"?

There were 25,000 wild ducks killed by market hunters at Long Point in 1913. The slaughter at Point Royal for last year was 63,000. There were 17,500 wild ducks killed by market hunters at Mitchell Bay during the year. The number killed off at Rondeau was 19,000.—Windsor Record.

SHEPHERD'S DOGS.

The Qualities of the Collie Finding More Recognition.

The cult of the collie has taken a strong hold upon the public, says a writer on "Collies and Their Kind," in The Windsor Magazine, and there are very many famous specimens to be seen to-day at the great shows. The late Mr. Panmure Gordon, who had so many dogs, included some striking collies in his collection, and not many years ago Queen Victoria herself was to be reckoned among successful exhibitors. But it must not be forgotten that nearly all prize dogs would be beaten in open competition at sheep trials. Their ears may be better, their forelegs straighter, their backs shorter, and their coats immensely superior to those of their work-a-day cousins of the wild border countries, but when it comes to the work for which practical men must rely upon their collies, there is very little doubt about the dog that will come out first. It will not be the artificially lengthened one, but the dog whose shape has been fixed by Nature for the work she wishes him to do, the dog trained to endurance from the time when he was picked out of his mother's litter as the one best fitted to survive, and trained with more care than kindness for the tasks before him.

The collie most in favor among shepherds and farmers in the north country is the bearded collie, which looks like a long-tailed English sheep dog, and, as far as our experience goes, continues the writer, is so devoted to his duties and his rightful owner, that he regards the rest of humanity with suspicion. He is a rough-looking fellow at best, whose shabby and shaggy appearance would earn the contempt of his more pampered but less able cousins of the show bench. It is likely that the more ornamental dogs will have lost most of their early instincts in the course of a few generations. At the sheep dog trials, still an annual feature of rural life in remote corners of the country, the bearded collie can hold his own against all competitors of his own family, and other sheep dogs will find him hard to beat. Opinions as to the origin of the bearded collie differ considerably. Some think that it is a reversion to one side of the parental line, while others hold that it is a product of the union of an old English sheep dog and a collie. The point is not worth laboring, because we cannot hope to solve the problems.

Suffice it that while rough and smooth collies are becoming domestic pets, the bearded variety—cross-grained and ill-tempered though he be—is undoubtedly doing excellent work in the Scottish Highlands as a sheep dog pure and simple. But for his services the toll that the snow-storm takes, when it comes suddenly to hillsides where the sheep are straying, would be very considerably augmented. While rough and smooth collies will respond in some fashion, however slight, to the advances of his master's friends, the bearded collie, so far as the writer's experience goes, acknowledges none save his master, and will even bark and growl at other members of the family. He seems restless and unhappy in the house, but as soon as his foot is on the hills he is a different dog, with a sense of responsibility that is quite unmistakable. His are none of the graces belonging to his cousins, the rough and smooth collies, but in the Scottish Highlands graces are a little out of harmony with surroundings, and the plaided shepherd "blowing of his nails" is quite happily associated with the rough, surly, bearded collie.

Don't Scratch a Mole.

Dr. Jean Dartier, speaking before the French Association For the Study of Cancer, referred to the tragic possibilities of the innocent looking mole.

"Scratch a mole," he said, "and you may catch a cancer."

Some moles were harmless and some were potentially poisonous, he continued. The only wise course was to leave well enough alone and resist the temptation to scratch the mole. Warts and wens should be borne patiently lest worse befall their possessors. Dr. Dartier told of a man who by cauterizing a harmless wart on his hand transformed it into a cancer.

Kept the Opposition Busy.

The only instance known wherein an employee was paid by his employer for gambling occurred in New Orleans. Walter Lamana, a child of wealthy Italians, was kidnaped, and the interest was intense throughout the gulf coast country.

The staffs of the two leading morning dailies were engaged in "draw" after hours when the city editor of one of them was called out. He summoned a reporter.

"Get back in there and play at the paper's expense!" he hissed. "Make it lively!"

The reporter raised 'em and bolsted 'em and lifted 'em for an hour.

Then the game was broken up by cries of "Extra! Extra!" and the staff of the other paper send with emotion that the body of the child had been found.

There was a ten dollar check from the editor in the reporter's envelope next pay day.—New York Tribune.

Lost Life Saving Girl.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 16. — O'Neil man lost his life and several others were seriously injured in a fire that yesterday destroyed the six-store building occupied by the Northern Manufacturing Co. To save the life of a girl employed in his department Wm. P. Howe, aged 70, a shipping clerk, after having himself been assisted out of the building, plunged back and was burned to death. Rose Schultz, for whom Howe lost his life, was carried down the stairs from the third floor, only slightly hurt.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. The loss is estimated at $110,000.

Borans Wipe Out Village.

NAIROBI, British East African Protectorate, Feb. 16.—Boran tribesmen exterminated recently an entire village composed of 200 men, women and children of the Rendile tribe in the Lorian Swamp in the northern part of the protectorate, according to an explorer just returned here.

The Borans, who are a peaceful people engaged in pastoral occupations, had been incessantly harassed by the Rendiles. This so greatly exasperated the Borans that they retaliated by killing every one of the Rendile tribe they could find.

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—It is estimated that there are nearly $55,000 unemployed in New York at the present time. Thousands of those who are down and out, says a recent official report, lack the price of a night's lodging and find their only shelter in the rear rooms of saloons. An almost unbelievable condition of affairs in a City where there are nearly 3,700 reputable organizations devoted to charitable objects.

A dramatic tea and fete to celebrate the birthdays of Susan B. Anthony and Dr. Anna Howard Shaw is to be given under the auspices of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association in the grand ball room of the new Hotel Baltimore, next Monday afternoon. An entertainment in which a number of actresses will participate will precede the dancing and tea drinking. Actresses, famed for their charm and beauty, will preside at the tea tables. One purpose of the tea and fete is to bring the theatrical work as a whole into touch with the suffrage movement here.

A recent rug sale in this city realized nearly $300,000, thus ranking second to the great Yerkes sale in 1910, which took in $285,000 in one afternoon. At the Yerkes sale a single rug brought $35,000; at the recent sale the highest price paid for a rug—a Ghiordez weave of the sixteenth century, was $21,000. Other prices for single rugs were $17,000, $14,000 and $13,000, the last being bought by former Senator William A. Clark whose great mansion in Fifth Avenue contains one of the greatest collections of rugs in the world, none of them being valued at less than $10,000.

Trap-shooting and water sports, in which prominent amateur and professional marksmen, swimmers and fancy divers from all over the country will compete, are to be the main features of this year's Sportsmen's show, which is to be held in Madison Square Garden during the last week of this month. The programme of the shooting tournament comprises several features heretofore unlisted in events of this character. Of special interest will be the contest for the women, in which the best known markswomen of the East have signified their intention to participate. The indoor amateur championship of the world will again be held, with more entries than ever, as well as a professional indoor championship.

Evidence is growing apace that the public is tiring of the filth that has flooded the New York stage the past season or two. One of the most decisive steps taken in the right direction has been the formation of the Catholic Theatre Movement, which purposes to resort to the old but effective method of boycotting the plays that are considered unfit. A committee appointed by Cardinal Farley will go to see the new plays, as they are produced, and will pick out the dramas that are considered elevating and clean. A list of the approved plays will be mailed each week to a great number of Catholics, and every member of the Church will be expected to remain away from all plays not on the list. The successful working out of this plan and its adoption by other organizations should tend to exert an untold influence for good upon the stage.

Another old New York landmark, Fulton Market, the home of the clam chowder, is likely to disappear soon. A resolution providing for the abandonment of the market is pending in the board of aldermen. With the exception of Washington Market, which flourishes at the opposite end of Fulton Street, Fulton Market is the oldest market in the metropolis. If permitted to survive another three years it will be able to celebrate the centennial of its establishment. Washington market celebrated its 100th birthday two years ago. Only one other market in New York ever had an opportunity of celebrating its centennial, and that was the old Fly Market at the foot of Maiden Lane, which was opened in 1699, and continued to cater to the needs of the city housewives until 1824 when what remained of it was torn down and the stallkeepers removed to the new Fulton Market. The new Fulton market is now grown old and is likely soon to go the way of its predecessor. The resolution for its abandonment recites that it no longer fulfils its original purpose of supplying "the common people with the necessaries of life at reasonable prices," that the housewife with her market basket is not seen there now and that the business is wholesale.

RIOT IN JAPANESE HOUSE.

Opponents of Business Tax Destroy the Ballot Box.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—The lower House was the scene of unprecedented disorder Friday night, and adjourned after midnight. The members of the Opposition destroyed the ballot box in order to prevent the adoption of the business tax, which the mass wish abolished. Riotous scenes on the floor of the House continued throughout the session, which extended over many hours, the obstructionists blocking the Government at every turn.

According to the Tokio papers the naval commission has found one naval officer guilty of bribery, and will order a court-martial.

Esmeraldas Bombarded in Vain.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 16.—Notwithstanding the bombardment by Federal gunboats and heavy artillery of Esmeraldas, the capital of the province of the same name, the city still remains in the hands of the rebels. Government forces have been landed to the north and to the south of the city, with the intention of again surrounding the insurgents. It is believed that a decisive battle will occur next week.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 16.—Thursday next will be the golden jubilee or fiftieth aniversary of the founding of the Knights of Pythias, and lodges in every part of the United States and Canada are preparing to celebrate the event in an appropriate manner. The order was founded in this city, and the greatest celebration will be held here. The exercises will begin Wednesday and continue through the remainder of the week. The grand lodges of all the States and Provinces will be represented by delegates.

The celebration will be ushered in Wednesday evening with a reception and entertainment to be given by the Pythian Sisters of the District of Columbia. Thursday afternoon the jubilee exercises will be held in the ballroom of the New Willard Hotel. Supreme Chancellor Thomas J. Carling, of Macon, Ga., will preside, and a number of prominent speakers will be heard. Among those present will be Abraham D. Vanderveer and Edward S. Kimball, who were the first members initiated into the order.

The celebration will be continued Thursday evening with an anniversary mass meeting. Secretary of State William J. Bryan, who is past chancellor of Lincoln Lodge of Lincoln, Neb., will deliver an address on "Fraternity as Exemplified by the Knights of Pythias." Supreme Vice-Chancellor Brigham S. Young, of Ohio, will speak on "Friendship," Supreme Prelate Joseph H. Spearing, of Tennessee, on "Charity," and Supreme Master of Exchequer Thomas D. Meares, of North Carolina, on "Benevolence."

Friday will be devoted largely to a review of the work of the several branches of the order by their officials and prominent members. Maj.-General Arthur J. Stobbart will speak for the uniform rank of the order, Union B. Hunt, of Indianapolis, for the insurance department, Imperial Prince Charles E. Rice for the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorasson, and Mrs. Ida M. Johnson, of Colorado, the supreme chief, for the Pythian Sisters.

The formal exercises of the jubilee will conclude Friday evening with a great mass meeting at the New Willard Hotel, at which Supreme Vice-Chancellor Young will preside. There will be two addresses, one by Walter B. Richie, past supreme chancellor, on "the Lesson of Friendship," and the other by Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, of Toledo, on "Pythian Power."

In the whole range of fraternal and beneficiary societies there is probably none that can equal the Knights of Pythias in its record of growth. Fifty years ago the order was unborn. Today it is the third largest organization of its kind in America, its membership being exceeded only by that of the Free Masons and the Odd Fellows.

It was on February 19, 1864, that Justus H. Rathbone, a New Yorker, who was employed in one of the Government offices here, called together a few of his friends to discuss the formation of a fraternal society. It was just at the close of the civil war and the time was considered auspicious for forming such a society. The initial steps were taken and it was decided to call the order the Knights of Pythias.

The order prospered from the start. From its humble beginning in this city it spread to every part of the United States and Canada. The total membership now exceeds 700,000. Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois have upwards of 50,000 members each. The Pythian Sisters, the women's auxiliary to the order, is organized throughout the country. The military department boasts of 20,000 members, while the insurance department has about 75,000 members who carry an aggregate of nearly $100,000,000 in insurance.

LINER IN DISTRESS.

French Steamer Niagara Loses Propellor In Heavy Gale.

LONDON, Feb. 16. — The French Line steamship Niagara, from Havre to New York, is in distress about 135 miles off Ushant, the westernmost of the islands off the coast of Brittany, according to a Havre despatch to Lloyds reporting the receipt of a wireless message from the steamship.

The wireless says the Niagara has lost her starboard propeller and one blade from the propellor on the port side. Much anxiety is felt for the safety of the liner and a steamer has gone to her assistance.

Returning to Port.

HAVRE, Feb. 16—The French liner, which is returning to port disabled, has on board 147 passengers, of whom 46 are in the first cabin. The steamer Bordeaux has been sent to the Niagara.

It is believed the captain of the Niagara found it impossible with his broken propellors to make headway against the high seas. The Niagara sailed from Havre on Feb. 7 for New York with 147 passengers.

MADMAN'S MOTOR TRIP.

Wealthy Englishman Forces Chauffeur To Drive For 30 Hours.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—An extraordinary escapade of Lee Bond, a wealthy man, living in Lyndhurst, Hampshire, was reported to the police yesterday. Bond, who is 23 years old, hired a motor car and a chauffeur Saturday afternoon and compelled the driver to make a wild ride of 30 hours' duration throught the Counties of Wiltshire, Dorset and Hampshire and Somerset, holding pistols at the man's back and threatening to shoot if he dared to stop without permission. By similar threats he compelled various farmers in different towns to deliver petrol and other supplies for the motor car without paying for them.

Bond was found last night in the garden of his residence, holding a revolver in each hand. A posse of policemen who had been trailing Bond surrounded and arrested him.

A BETTER CUSTOMER.

New Zealand's Purchases From Canada Are Increasing.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—During the past year, writes the Canadian trade commissioner in New Zealand, there has been a substantial increase in New Zealand's imports from Canada. In 1912 the total was $1,969,050, which increased to $2,262,595 in 1913. The Niagara, which is on her way from Auckland to Vancouver, is bringing 20,026 boxes of butter, 1,371 quarters of beef, 877 carcasses of veal, 1,000 carcases of lamb, 1,000 carcases of mutton, and 300 boxes of gum.

If the demand for beef and butter is maintained, says Mr. Beddoe, it will exceed the supply.

The demand for these commodities is very heavy. In the month of December last, no live cattle were imported by Great Britain from either Canada or the United States. The supplies imported from Canada last year were 74 per cent. less than in 1912.—

Canada's shipment of cheese—to Great Britain in 1913 decreased to 73,769 cwt. from 84,978 cwt. in 1912. Canada sent no eggs or butter.

Co-operation Spreads.

REGINA, Feb. 16.—The co-operative movement started among the farmers of Saskatchewan by the Provincial Government received an impetus in the application of George Simpson of Ferry Hill, to form an association for the co-operative handling and marketing of hay. Mr. Simpson intimated that the scope of the proposed association might be extended to include garden truck.

Firm Sues Water Company.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—C. H. Cattelli, Ltd., manufacturers, have entered an action against the Montreal Water & Power Co., claiming $74,548 damages done to their premises by fire. Plaintiffs allege that the defendant company broke their contract with the city to provide sufficient water pressure, a stream of five meet instead of seventy-five being all the fire department could raise.

"MY STOMACH IS FINE

Since Taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets"

Mrs. J. Merkhager, Waterloo, Ont., enthusiastically recommends Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. Her experience with them, as she outlines it, explains why.

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach", she writes. "I had taken so much medicine that I might say to take any more would only be making it worse. My stomach just felt raw. I read of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and a lady friend told me they were very easy to take, so I thought I would give them a trial and really they worked wonders. Anyone having anything wrong with his stomach should give Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets a trial, they will do the rest. My stomach is fine now and I can eat any food."

One of the many good features of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is that they are so pleasant and easy to take. The relief they give from heartburn, flatulence, biliousness and dyspepsia is prompt and permanent. Try one after each meal—they'll make you feel like a new person.

CLAY EATEN BY INDIANS

Was Considered a Delicacy by a Number of Tribes

There have been several tribes of Indians in America that in times past were given to eating earth as food. The Pawnees used to prefer a yellowish clay, which they shaped into little balls that were allowed to dry in the air and were then slowly roasted at the open fire. When the clay attained a red color the balls were removed, moistened with water and teaten. These clay balls were especially liked when served in connection with fish, and seem to have promoted digestion.

The Timmen Indians of the Mackensie River used to resort to earth as food in times of famine. They dug out the clay found in the hollows along the banks of the river. In prosperous years they chewed the clay as a delicacy. The Apaches mixed powdered clay in their meal before baking this into their rude loaves of bread.

The Indians in the uplands of Bolivia ate a light clay that is nearly white in color; this they used either raw or in the form of cakes of various shapes, which were sold in the market places. They also prepared a sauce with the clay; this they ate with boiled potatoes.

Among the negroes of the Guinea coast, as well as among those in West Africa, the eating of dirt is very common. The natives of the Soudan dig their favorite clay from between layers of sandstone in the banks of the rivers. The natives of Java prepare their cakes of clay containing ochre; these are sold in the public markets.

A Useful Magnetic Tool

Owners of automobiles who have dropped nuts, bolts or tools into oil-filled gear cases and then tried to fish them out will appreciate the value of a little electro-magnet tool. It will operate from either dry cells or storage batteries.

When the thumb is pressed upon a little button, the tool becomes magnetised and will lift from three to five pounds, according to the strength of the current. It is handy also for removing valves from the cylinder, finding nails in tires or removing chips from the oil in a crank case without removing the oil.

The device is also designed for use in the machine trade for removing borings from holes to be tapped. A thread on the end of the rod permits the attachment of an extension to reach where the tool itself is not built to reach.

Ladies! Secret To Darken Grey Hair

Bring Back Its Colour and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur ad alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

Thin wispy, grey faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

ABOUT ANIMALS

Dental Operation on a Tiger in the Zoological Gardens

Dr. A. J. Harrison who has for years been keenly interested in the Zoological Gardens at Clifton, England, gives the result of some of his observations of the animals there, and elsewhere. Dental troubles are not confined to human beings, and from time to time accounts have been published of attempts to relieve the pain of a captive beast by relieving it of an offending tooth. As far back as 1887 a fine one-year-old tiger in the Clifton Gardens was subject to this kindly attention. It had suffered much from teething, refused its food, and was getting into a bad way. Then, says Dr. Harrison, we determined to help the process of tooth removal, so one morning two keepers managed to get the animal into a strong sack. The sack was securely fastened round its neck, allowing the head to protrude. The "bagged" creature was passed between a keeper's legs, and the end of the bag held by another man. The tiger opened its mouth in a kind of self-defence, and this gave the opportunity for a third man to place a roll of wood between its jaws, and hold the roll from behind. In this way the animal was securely firm, and its mouth well opened, so that access to the teeth was thus made available. With a strong pair of tooth forceps the offending teeth were speedily and effectually removed, and presented to a medical friend who witnessed the proceedings. The gaping mouth looked rather formidable, but the operation was successful, and the patient much better for it.

According to Dr. Harrison, animals "are very intolerant of chloroform and other anæsthetics," and he mentions as an illustration the experience of a cockatoo which was becoming blind from cataract. Mr. Richardson Cross examined the eye, and an operation was decided upon, but at a mere whiff of chloroform the creature fluttered its wings and died. It is no uncommon thing for birds to drop dead from their perch. There was once at the Zoo a white-necked buzzard, estimated to be worth $2,500, and it fell dead in this fashion. Fatal accidents have also to be reckoned with in managing a Zoological Garden. There was a case of a young Brahmin bull, surrounded with considerable mystery. He was in splendid condition, and was playing in his enclosure in a manner which indicated his splendid vitality. Two minutes later he was found dead. No one saw what happened, but a post-mortem examination and a careful examination of circumstantial evidence led to the theory that in his exuberant spirits he had overbalanced while buck-jumping, and had fractured his skull against the brick kerbing of his enclosure.

Fire-killed Spruce Useful

The manufacture of violins and sound boxes for talking machines offers two uses that have been found for fire-killed spruce timber, large quantities of which are found in the forests of the Rocky Mountains.

A maker of high-grade violins claims that fire-killed Englemann spruce is the best material he has ever found for the manufacture of violin tops. The value of the wood lies in its very light weight, its fine straight grain, and its freedom from rosin. Wood for violin tops must be straight-grained and absolutely edge-grained; that is, cut at right angles to the annual rings, which for this use should show from twenty to thirty to the inch.

REMNANT FOUND OF LOST TRIBES

Wandering Jews Who Herd—Nomad Life in Far Interior Desert of Arabia

Curious information reached Jerusalem regarding a tribe of wandering Jews, existing in the far interior desert of Arabia. One of them, a chieftain, was interviewed by travellers. He claimed that his people are descendants of the Rechabites, who are described in the thirty-fifth chapter of Jeremiah and are there praised for their temperance and fidelity to the faith of their fathers. The chief said: "The place where our tents are pitched is not essentially a wilderness, because in some parts there is abundant pasture for the flocks of sheep which form our principal means of subsistence.

"We are about 2,500 families, and according to tradition we were brought to the district we dwell in by the prophet Jeremiah in person. The journey from our abode, if made consecutively, would take about fifty-three nights: by day it is impossible to travel because only the stars can guide me to the tents of my tribesmen. There are no doctors amongst us, and almost every man has five or six wives."

He exhibited a specimen of the bread made from the flour which they receive in exchange for their butter, milk or honey. The scabbard of his sword dates, he says, from the Babylonian captivity.

He came to spy out the land, and he expressed the belief that after giving his report of it, many would return with him to see it with their own eyes.

To the query, "How is it possible that no explorer ever came near your tents, nor hinted at the existence of your tribe?" he quickly replied: "No man of other climes could possibly penetrate our region, as besides the scorching heat of the sun, there is very little water, and many times it happens that we and our flocks go for several days without drinking, so I believe that no one is likely to approach us, except those who have dwelt in this region from time immemorial."

The Cedars of Lebanon

All that now remains of the cedars of Lebanon is a little forest of some four hundred trees, which are rigidly preserved. They lie on a small fertile plateau, situated at an altitude of 6,123 feet above sea-level. The grove is reached from Esherreh by a steep and winding road. With the exception of a few stragglers, the grove is enclosed by a neat stone wall built by a former governor of Lebanon to protect the smaller trees from goats. The older trees have always occupied a position of honor in the estimation of man because of their connection with the temple built by Solomon and the various allusions to them in the bible. Among the dwellers in Syria, where forests of tall trees do not exist, the cedars naturally excite admiration, and a modern Syrian writer says of them that they are undeniably the most lofty of all the vegetable kingdom. We know, of course, that this is hardly the case, for the famous redwood trees of California reach a height of over three hundred feet, while in Tasmania the blue gum is almost as large so far as height is concerned. The cedars are actually about 80 feet high, which is more than the height of the trees of an average forest.—Wide World Magazine.

-FACT HUNGER-

As children, our first demand is for nourishment; our second for facts.

All through life we go about searching for information.

We make a new acquaintance; but before we will accept him as a friend or invite him to our home we ask for facts about him.

We visit a foreign land; and from the moment we step across its border we are asking questions—searching for facts.

We are asked to try a new food product; isn't it instinctive with us to ask at once:

"Who makes this new article?"

"How is it made? what goes into it?"

"Is it worth the price charged for it?"

Facts—we are simply hungry for them.

Strange, isn't it, that we should so often have to search for them? Odd, that some manufacturers still withhold the facts about their product. Not always because they are facts to be ashamed of—for there are many worthy articles yet unadvertised.

But it will not be so much longer. The fact-hunger of the human race is becoming keener and keener. The more facts we get, the keener our relish for more of them.

Soon it will be impossible to sell a man or a woman anything until everything has been told about the goods that can be told through Advertising.

The public has discovered that Advertising tells much-needed facts—that, in fact, Advertising satisfies fact-hunger.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

WHERE TITLES COME FROM

Many Bible Phrases Are Used by Authors

The hunting ground for the author in search of a title is the Bible. Mr. Hall Caine has drawn therefrom "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," "The Prodigal Son," "The Scapegoat"; Miss Marie Corelli went to the same source for "Wormwood" and "Barabbas," Miss Braddon for "One Thing Needful" and "Thou Art the Man," Marion Crawford for "Whosoever Shall Offend," Whyte Melville for "Black but Comely," Thomas Hardy for "The Laodicean," Kipling for "Many Inventions," Mr. W. J. Locke for "Where Love Is," William Black for "A Daughter of Heth," William Le Queux for "As We Forgive Them," Walter Besant for "Children of Gibeon" and "The Fourth Generation," and so on. The list might be prolonged indefinitely.

The prayer book, too, has supplied some taking titles, most notably Besant's "All Sort and Conditions of Men," Miss Rhoda Broughton's "Cometh Up as a Flower," and that most effective chapter heading in Kipling's "Story of the Gadsbys"—"With Any Amasement."

COL. HUGHES UPHELD

British Riflemen Condemn Action of the War Office

WANTS OVERSEAS VISITORS

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Members of the National Rifle Association mustered in great force for the general winter meeting, held Saturday.

Primarily the meeting was called together to adopt the past year's report and to elect new members to the council board. A great deal of discussion, however, took place later upon the new rules of the army council, several of those present expressing their feelings towards the War Office and the proposed regulations in no vague terms. Even Lord Cheylesmere, the chairman, wasn't spared a certain amount of criticism. One member openly accused him of having done his best for some time past to bring about the present crash.

Major Pixley, Major Fletcher, Mr. Tippins and a number of others hoped it would go from that meeting to Col. Hughes that the N. R. A. hadn't created the present difficulty in reference to the Ross rifle, but that it was entirely the work of "a jumping Jinnie showman" at the War Office. They commended Col Hughes for the bold attitude he had taken.

Lord Cheylesmere read a letter he had received from King George expressing the hope that Canadians wouldn't be prevented from attending Bisley. Thereupon a member jumped to his feet.

"Have you, sir," he asked, "explained the real position of things to his Majesty?"

"No," said Lord Cheylesmere, a reply that was received with a chorus of disapproval.

Lord Cheylesmere went on to give a brief account of the serious situation, and said that the N. R. A. had received in April an ultimatum from the War Office.

They appointed a committee to go into relations between the N. R. A. and the War Office.

Two members of the N. R. A., including Lord Cheylesmere, attended the meeting, at the army council's request, and though he did his best to put the position of the association before them, he could see that they would ultimately be left with Hobson's choice.

The War Office practically issued an ultimatum that unless they conformed with their suggestions about the King's Prize and other territorial competitions, they should not give them any assistance in the shape of camp equipment, ammunition, etc.

The council was put into a difficult position, indeed.

After serious consideration they decided there were only two courses open to them, one being absolutely to refuse the conditions of the War Office. The council, however, unanimously came to the opinion that without the assistance of the War Office at Bisley it would be perfectly impossible for them to keep up the reputation of the association. The second course was that they should accept these conditions and get the best concessions they possibly could from the War Office, and he (Lord Cheylesmere) could not help thinking they would agree that the council could not take any other course.

The following motion carried unanimously: "That this meeting hopes that means can be found whereby the War Office conditions, as now understood, do not take effect until the Bisley meeting of 1915, in order that their effect on a number of competitors from our overseas dominions may be fully realised."

Coulthurst Is Remanded.

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., Feb. 16.—Edwin Coulthurst, the deputy returning officer, who was arrested in connection with the vote on the Scott Act in Welland County, was again remanded yesterday, when the case was called. The lawyers on both sides agreed that it was advisable to wait for the result of the recount. The case comes up again on Thursday.

"FAGGED OUT" WOMEN

Will Find Help in This Letter.

Overworked, run down, "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Mrs. Brill's experience.

She says: "I was in a very weak, run-down condition. Life was not worth living. I could not sleep, was very nervous, stomach bad, and was not able to work.

"I consulted with one or two physicians, without benefit. I read of Vinol helping some one in a similar condition so I began to take it, and it simply did wonders for me. I gained in weight and I am now in better health and stronger than ever. I can not find words enough to praise Vinol"—Mrs. W. H. Brill, Racine, Wis.

Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present rugged health to the wonderful strength-creating effects of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build you up and make you strong. If it does not we give back your money.

Map of Ontario showing present distribution of members in the House of Commons and population of the various constituencies of the Province—Some rural constituencies are going to disappear. If examined closely it will give some idea of the six or eight rural seats that must be sacrificed under the approaching redistribution. Ontario, it is believed, will lose four seats and Toronto will gain two, or possibly three. Now glance over the map. In each county we have marked the present number of members, and the population according to the census of 1911.. The only exception made is in the case of Toronto, London, Hamilton, and Ottawa, rapidly growing centres, where the estimated population of 1914 is given.

Planet Mercury May Be Seen After Sunset

Movements and Positions of the Planets and Stars for the Current Week

During the week the moon rises about an hour and twenty minutes later each morning and sets about an hour later than the day before. The moon will be at last quarter on Tuesday, the 17th.

If the sky is clear in the west the planet Mercury may be seen just after sunset, not far from and over the place where the sun disappears below the horizon. Mercury wanders periodically a little to the north and to the south of the sun's apparent path, but on Monday it will be exactly on the "ecliptic."

At rare intervals Mercury passes directly between the earth and the sun and when it does this it affords astronomers an opportunity to re-determine the distance we are from the sun with greater accuracy than by other methods of measuring; in that when it crosses the sun's face it may be viewed from different stations far apart on the earth's surface. And when so viewed, as Mercury is many millions of miles this side of the sun, it is apparently displaced from the exact spot on the sun's surface it appears at the moment to occupy when viewed from another distant station. As the planet's distance from the sun is pretty well known and the distance of the two observing stations are known, the displacement of the planet's body on the sun's surface, indicates the distance the earth must be away at that time.

Canis Major (the Greater Dog.)

Just before Orion and a little to the east of this constellation is marked on the Star Chart for this month, by its brightest star Sirius. This star was worshipped in the Valley of the Nile long before Rome had been heard of. Lockyer not long ago found seven temples in the ruins of ancient Egypt, with chambers so arranged to allow the light from this brilliant star, in its rising or setting, to penetrate and be received on an inner altar for adoration and wroship. Among the temples so arranged to receive the light of Sirius was the magnificent temple of Isis at Denderah, where, as "His Majesty of Denderah" Sirius was known. Here the rising beams of Sirius flashed down the long vista of the massive columns and illuminated the inner recesses of the temple. What a wonderful sight there must have been enacted within that darkened edifice when, in the presence of a vast and silent multitude, there suddenly appeared, a beam of silver light that bathed the marble altar and its jewelled ornaments with a halo borne from the depths of the infinite; light, though the watchers knew it not, that had been on the way from the star for eight and a half years before it greeted their wondering eyes. The temple priests having some astronomical knowledge, timed well their ritual to the appearing of the light and readily convinced the people that it was a living thing, a god. The awe inspired by the silence of the multitude worked up to a fever pitch of expectancy and excitement born of the desire to witness what they must have regarded as the work of the supernatural, all conduced to make the moment one long to be remembered, and the event one of the greatest possible significance to the human race.

Official Kills Himself.

BUFFALO, Feb. 16.—John J. Kennedy, state treasurer, committed suicide shortly after noon yesterday at the Markeen Hotel, where he had lived with his family for about a year. He was found in a small lavatory off the hotel ballroom, with his throat cut and an open razor lying on the floor beside him. His jugular vein had been severed and death occurred before a doctor arrived.

A flash of temporary insanity induced by worry over his impending appearance before a New York grand jury, where District Attorney C. S. Whitman has been conducting a Jobbing graft inquiry, is said to be the cause.

EMPIRE BUILDERS

The Man Who Did Much to Keep Canada British

He was a type of a Scotchman of the best.
He was a money-maker, which gave him sway,
He was an Empire builder in Canada.
He was the grand old man whom I love to sing,

I shall couple him with Joseph Chamberlain.
Both were Empire builders, of the highest kind,
One Army, one Navy, one Empire, one King.

Frozen and roasted by turns, often foot sore,
Was frozen and roasted by turns every year,
Made young Donald tougher throughout his career.
In a temperature far below zero.

Sir Charles Tupper, Sir George Cartier, were true
Canadian Empire builders, through and through,
Sir John A. Macdonald and Lord Strathcona,
Men of the Canadian Pacific Railway,
All Empire builders of whom I love to sing,
One Army, one Navy, one Empire, one King.

Premier Borden and Sir aJmes Whitney, Premier,
And Postmaster-General L. P. Pelletier,*
Our Financier White, is a wonderful Peer,
All Empire builders, of whom I love to sing,
One Army, one Navy, one Empire, one King.

The Trent Valley Canal through Peterborough,
From Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario.
Is Canada's natural deep waterway,
Through the interior of Great Canada,
For Army, for Navy, for Empire, for King.

The Welland Canal deserves Canada's scorn,
Its roundabout route, is like that of Cape Horn.
The Trent Waterway, like Panama Canal,
Would serve Canada well, make Montreal,
For Army, for Navy, for Empire, for King.

—JOHN BELL.

Feb. 13th, 1914.

*Hon. Mr. Pelletier would not be considered by some of Mr. Bell's imperialist friends much of an empire builder. He is the man who changed the good old British names of post offices into French names and, to the horror of a certain class of loyalists, had our post cards "defaced with French."

W. R. Dempsey Passes Away at Home Near Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 16.—W. R. Dempsey, ex-M.P.P. for Prince Edward County, died suddenly Friday night while sitting in a chair. Heart failure was the cause of death. Mr. Dempsey, who was eighty-two years of age, was born in Ameliasburg Township, where he resided all his life. He had been a councillor, reeve of the township and warden of the county. In 1898 he was elected member of the Legislature for the county in the Conservative interest, and filled that position most acceptably to his party. He was a veteran of the Fenian raid.

Mr. Dempsey was a member of the Methodist Church. An aged widow and family survive him.

Gen. Huerta said he would not tolerate such attacks upon the President of the United States any more than he would similar attacks upon himself, and assured the charge that he would see that they were stopped once for all.

To Celebrate Finish of Canal.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—The French-American committee, of which the president is Gabriel Hanotaux, former premier, at a meeting Saturday decided to organize for May a celebration of the completion of the Panama Canal especially in recognition of the French genius which planned and began the work.

PLANS SECOND TRIP.

Man Who Crossed Behring Straits Will Explore Ungava.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.— Claiming to be the only white man who has crossed the Behring Straits, between Asia and America, on foot, Charles Brouard, of Southsea, England, is in Montreal arranging for an 18-months' exploration trip in Ungava.

The hazardous trips across the straights, he says, took him two days, on Nov. 26 and 27, 1913. He was accompanied by two Eskimos and a dog team of five.

This trip was attempted by Harry De Windt, the globe trotter, who was compelled to remain on the Siberian coast and was rescued.

Tube System for Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—Over $12,000,000 will be required for tackling Montreal's transportation problem, if the city engineer's department has its way. The report, presented to the Board of Control Saturday, does not express any opinion upon the demand of the Tramways Company for a new 40-year franchise.

The immediate construction is recommended of two subways, one under St. James and the other under St. Catharine street, providing for quick east and west transit along the two busiest streets.

Potomac Well Provisioned.

BONNE BAY, Nfld., Feb. 16.—Officers of the United States navy tug Potomac, icebound off here, said yesterday that they had on board 20 tons of coal and food enough for fifteen days. Additional supplies were taken over the ice to the Potomac Saturday.

Mariners familiar with ice movements in the Gulf of St. Lawrence believe it will be necessary to abandon the tug, as the ice is rough and heavy, and the chances of saving the vessel are considered uncertain.

Consumption Takes Hundreds of People

every day in the year and the deadly germs claim more victims in cities than in rural districts, due no doubt to the increased number of indoor workers in confining quarters and their lack of sunshine.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physicians emphasize that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known; it builds energy and strength and is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug—every druggist has it.

WAS AN EMPLOYEE OF FIRST RAILWAY IN THE PROVINCE

Few citizens will recall Robt. Gordon, a former resident of Peterborough, who was buried in Cobourg on Monday last. The following from the Cobourg World refers to him:

His parents were small farmers and he served for seven years as a botanist in the Old Country. He then entered the Merchant Marine Service and travelled through eastern countries, visiting Italy, Egypt, Abyssinia, and other lands. He was in transport service in the Crimean War, and afterwards settled at Birkenhead, where in partnership with another gentleman he entered the coal business. Unfortunately his partner did not prove reliable and Mr. Gordon after some years decided to come to this country. He used to tell with pride of crossing the ocean on the Royal William, the first steam vessel to cross the Atlantic.

Mr. Gordon settled first at Peterborough where he entered the employ of the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Railroad, under the late James R. Barber, Superintendent and General Manager. After that end of service was closed he removed to Cobourg and continued his service with the railroad, under the management of the late Mr. Pearse. Afterwards he went back to his first love, the kingdom of flowers and was engaged in their culture. Mr. Gordon also served for thirty or forty years as Government light keeper at the wharf here.

BURGLAR CAPTURED BY A TORONTO WOMAN

Mrs. Dr. Frederick Fenton Surprised Well-known Criminal Going Through Dresser and Seized Him and Hung On in Spite of Shower of Blows—Neighbours Chased and Caught Him.

WAS RANSACKING ROOM

TORONTO, Feb. 16. — Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick Fenton is prostrated in her home, corner of Bloor and Church streets, as a result of a terrifying encounter with a desperate burglar on Saturday night and the story of the plucky fight put up by her is the feature of conversation in police circles.

As a result of Mrs. Fenton's grit her assailant is now in the police cells, she having detained the desperado single-handed until the alarm had been spread and a posse of neighbors and pedestrians ultimately ran the culprit to earth after a break-neck chase over fences and through several yards.

Mrs. Fenton was quite ill and confined to her room yesterday. She has a badly discolored eye and several bruises about her head, the effect of the ruffian's heavy blows.

Jack Gowans, no home, a person who is well-known to the police, is the prisoner, and he is charged with an attempt at burglary, and owing to his peculiar appearance the police feel that they can connect him up with other recent occurrences.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Saturday evening Mrs. Fenton heard heavy footsteps in a room on the second floor of her home, and knowing that her husband was absent went to the room to investigate. She opened the door and found Gowans ransacking the drawers of a dresser. Mrs. Fenton demanded an explanation.

Gowans, seeing that the only avenue of escape from the room was blocked by Mrs. Fenton, who stood in her doorway, made an effort to brush Mrs. Fenton aside. When Gowans reached the doorway Mrs. Fenton seised him and shouted for assistance. Gowans tried to throw the plucky woman off, but she clung to him and finding that she would not release her hold he dealt her several heavy blows on the head.

The sound of the struggle in the hallway above brought children who were in the house. The children quickly realized what had happened, but before they had brought assistance from Bloor street Gowans had escaped into the back yard and had scaled a six-foot fence to Church street. He was seen racing down Church street by several pedestrians, who followed him. Gowan took to back yards on Charles street in an effort to escape. His pursuers, however, were equal to the occasion and caught him in a lane near the corner of Charles and Church streets. He was then handed over to Constable Lowery.

WHAT EUGENIC MEANS

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly explain in your daily paper the meaning of "Eugenic," just to settle an argument between two High School girls.

Miss Ignorance.

Peterborough, Feb. 14.

Miss Ignorance need not be ashamed of her ignorance, for Eugenic or Eugenics, is a comparatively new word, which will not be found in any dictionary except those of comparatively recent date of publication, or in the supplementary list of words. For the scholar there is no need of a lexicon for the word bears its meaning on its face. Eugenic is derived from two Greek words, eu, well, and the root gen, relating to producing or begetting; and literally means well-born or well-begotten, pertaining to the production of offspring from good, sound, healthy parentage. So that eugenics relates to the general subject of the production of sound, healthy offspring, morally, mentally and physically, through the intermarriage of persons possessing these same qualities, with reasonable certainty of transmiting them to their offspring.—Ed. SETTLEMENT NOT IN SIGHT

Reports From England Say Outlook For Home Rule Question is Not so Bright

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 16.—To judge by the attitude of the morning papers, the outlook for a settlement of the home rule embroglio without vehement scenes in the House of Commons is not so bright to-day. The Reynolds newspapers, which are recognized as an organ of one branch of the Liberal stand-patters, says this morning: "If the exclusion of Ulster, or any part of it, is the only basis on which peace can be established there can be no peace on any such terms." The Times, to-day, discussing Sir Horace Plunkett's scheme for exclusion of Ulster for a number of years, says that Parliament could not accept such a compromise without first having it referred to the people in a general election.

"TYPHOON"

The Great Play Which Mr. Lawrence Irving Will Produce at the Grand Opera House

"TYPHOON" (which means literally the great wind) has established a record unique amongst plays. Within three years of its first appearance at Buda Pesth it has been staged in every capital city of Europe and throughout the United States, evoking everywhere intense curiosity and excitement.

In what resides the secret of this rapid and world-wide success?

Is it in the strongly woven dramatic web of the story? Many plays have rivalled it in this field.

Is it in the novelty of the love story uniting the members of two different races? Yet on this theme we have had "OTHELLO" and latterly "BELLA DONNA."

Is it the perpetual intermingling of the quaint and comic with the dramatically thrilling? From Shakespeare onward this has been the distinguishing trait of our dramatic literature.

Is it that the play affords phenomenal acting opportunities to three actors and one actress? Parts and performances hardly ever made the success of a play.

No. The secret of the wide spread appeal of "TYPHOON" resides, I believe, in the fact that for the first time—at any rate for the first time with any degree of success—the dramatist Melchior Lengyel has based his play on the tremendous problem of race collision, of the impact of two utterly different, yet both in their way highly developed civilizations, one upon the other. The ideals of Europe are confronted and contrasted with those of the far East. Against this stupendous background, so appealing to the eye as well as stimulating to the mind and imagination, Melchior Lengyel has reared his drama of irresistible passion, of unflinching self-sacrifice, of boundless, unquestionable patriotism—that wonderful patriotism of the Japanese.

This great drama will be produced on Saturday next, at the matinee and evening, with "The Unwritten Law," the most soul inspiring play since the "Sign of the Cross" will be the attraction on Friday night.

WILL NOT OPPOSE IF BILL IS FAIR

No Talk of Slaughtering Redistribution Bill in the Upper House Unless it Proves to be Unfair Gerrymander

THE SECOND READING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 16. — The second reading of the Redistribution Bill it is expected will be moved in the Commons on Tuesday by Premier Borden. There is not likely to be anything very spectacular about he debate. The members from the Maritime Provinces will doubtless take advantage of the last opportunity to press their claims upon the House, but are not likely to be successful. The attitude of the Opposition will be given expression to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other leaders of the party from the various provinces. They will [illegible] inform the government that if the spirit of fairplay characterizes the work of the committee, and if the result of its deliberations does not partake of the nature of a gerrymander that there will be no prolonged opposition to the bill. Its good and bad points will be discussed on its merits and there will be no talk of slaughtering the bill in the Upper House unless it proves to be an unfair gerrymander.

DIED.

Funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, from the above residence to the G.T.R. train for Millbrook. Interment will take place in Gardiner's cemetery.

REFUSED TO TELL WHERE HE GOT HIS LIQUOR

Robert Irwin Committed to Gaol for Two Months—Was on the Blacklist and Would Give No Information

CONCERNED MARRIED MAN

More than the usual number of railbirds as this morning's session of the police court would seem to intimate that something of no ordinary interest was to be deduced, but the expectations of the many were held in vain.

A local man was charged with being found drunk in a public place on Saturday last. When asked to plead, he said he expected he was guilty.

"That means guilty of being drunk, and guilty of being found out," rejoined the Magistrate. "That is a bad way to be. Two dollars."

Robert Irwin, a local man, who was charged with being drunk while on the blacklist, and who at a previous hearing of the court, refused to divulge the name of the man who supplied the liquor, was again arraigned before Magistrate Dumble.

"Robert Irwin," said the court, "you were committed for trial for refusing to tell us where you got your liquor. Are you now prepared to tell us."

"I can't do so conscientiously."

"Well, we can't allow you to defy the laws of the country like this. Unless you tell us where you got the liquor, we shall send you back until you do. Do you mean that you won't tell us?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

Further questioning failed to elicit any reply from the prisoner, and Magistrate Dumble committed him to jail for a further period of two months, unless before that time he divulged his accomplice. Irwin says that he will not tell, because it concerns a married man with a family.

Thos. Lackette a Well Known Trapper Living Near Lindsay, Loses His Life by Falling Through Ice

Special Wire to The Examiner:

Jackette, one of the best known characters in the vicinity of the shores of the Scugog river, and a trapper and hunter of no average ability, was drowned Saturday while crossing the ice near his home at Muskrat Island. Mr. Jackette was a man of some eighty years, but possessed a vigourous constitution. He was a good huntsman and a skillful trapper. Searching parties have located the ice hole through which he fell but as yet have not recovered the body.

OPINION OF MERCHANTS AND BUSINESS MEN

On the Proposed Site for the Combined Customs House and Post Office—Some Are Averse to Having the Post Office Moved.

SITE IS ENDORSED

In view of the fact that the proposed site of the new public buildings in Peterborough—post office, customs, interior revenue—is of special interest to the merchants of the city who now compose the business section of the city, The Examiner has taken the liberty of getting the opinions of many of our principal merchants and business men in relation to the way their interests will be affected. Their opinions in relation to the proposed change will be found below:

"Words cannot condemn the proposal too strongly," said Mr. A. W. Cressman, of the firm of Cressman and Company, in speaking of the site as selected by the Government at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets, for the erection of a combined Customs House and Post Office. Mr. Cressman remarked that it would be breaking faith with the residents of East City, to move the Post Office from its present location.

Continuing, Mr. Cressman said: "It is most unbusinesslike, to move the Post Office and Customs House from the centre of the city. It is seldom that the two offices are combined. If the Government wanted to enlarge the post office, they could do so, without moving it from the present site. There is plenty of land that could be secured for that purpose."

Mr. Robert Fair.

Mr. Robert Fair, of the Robert Fair and Company, approves of the site selected by the Government for the combined Customs House and Post Office. He thinks that it will best serve the manufacturing interests, which are principally located in the south end of the city.

Mr. Fair is of the opinion that the manufacturing interests are more to be considered than the merchants. A more central location would mean that the Government would have to expropriate more valuable property.

Mr. Frank Clarke.

"I think its a very desirable location," said Mr. Frank Clarke. "It will provide railway facilities. We can't always have the Government buildings in our midst."

Endorsed the Site.

Mr. R. J. Soden remarked that it made very little difference as far as he was concerned, where the new Government buildings were placed, while Mr. E. N. McWilliams endorsed the present proposed site.

Mr. K. G. Lech.

Mr. K. G. Lech, when interviewed said that he favoured the site for a Customs House building, but not as a site for a post office. The present post office, he said, is in a central position, and is convenient to all quarters, and would be preferred by the public, as well as the business men, who have to go for their mail four or five times a day. Further, when the parcels post system is enlarged, and the prices lowered, there would be a greater demand for services of that nature, and it would be no small inconvenience to have to walk to the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. The proposed site might be all right in twenty or twenty-five years' time, but that is a long way ahead, and the public wants of the present should be catered to first. I think that the position of the present post office is the best that could be obtained, but the customs house could be conveniently sited at the proposed junction, where adequate railroad and other facilities would be available.

WISH TO LOCATE MISSING RELATIVE

To Chief Thompson, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—I am trying to locate relatives of Elizabeth Sands, who lived in Peterborough when she was a girl in her teens. She left home when she was about 16 years of age, and has been lost to her relatives for fully 47 years. The only relative I ever heard her speak of was a brother John, who was married when Eliza disappeared. If he is now alive he must be upwards of 75 years of age.

Any effort on your part will be greatly appreciated.

Respectfully yours,
Margaret M. Forman.
307 29th Avenue South.
Seattle, Wash.

Chief Thompson regards it as highly improbable that any information regarding the missing person will come to hand as the facts relative to her whereabouts are very vague.

Any information, however, will be received by Chief Thompson.

Second Week's Prize Winners In The Examiner's Competition For Newsboys

The Boy Who Got First Prize Last Week Heads the List Again This Week—New Boys in the Balance of the List

2nd Fuller.
3rd Johnston.
4th, Murdoff.
5th, McWilliams.

The boys are working hard for the weekly prizes and while it gives no indication as to who will get the big prizes of $25.00, $20.00, and so on down the list, it goes to show the interest that is being taken every day by the boys. A boy who has not as yet earned a prize should get out this week and secure enough new customers to win one of the prizes, but if he perseveres and gets two or three new ones every week of the contest he is sure to get a good prize. IMITATING CANADA.

It is to be hoped that it won't be regarded as the thin end of the wedge if the United States pays to Canada the flattery of imitating its progressive legislation enacted under a Liberal Government. A dozen of the States across the border are now seriously considering proposals to adopt labour legislation along the line of the Canadian industrial disputes and investigation act. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the author of the act, who recently spoke in Cincinnati on the subject, has left Ottawa to deliver addresses this week in Michigan and Virginia on the working of the Canadian law. Mr. King speaks at Detroit to-morrow night under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and at Charleston and Wheeling, Virginia, on Wednesday and Thursday under the auspices of the State Board of Trade.

A LADY CITY CLERK.

The "wild and wooly" west may be considered crude and raw by some of us cultured easterners, but the plant, "chivalry," grows there as naturally as the wheat. We in the east boast of our gallantry to the ladies, but our professions are only from the teeth outward. We keep women in a subordinate position as far as the franchise is concerned. But in the west they believe in the rights of women and have the courage of their beliefs. Lethbridge, for instance, has taken the lead in establishing commission civic government, and its new charter also provides for equal suffrage, that is women vote on equal terms with men. At the recent city elections in Lethbridge there was a registration of more than 600 women voters. Lethbridge has not only the principle of equal rights for women in its charter, but it applies it. The moral effect of the new element of municipal influence, represented by votes for women, is reflected in the fact that the city commissioners have appointed a lady, Miss Esther M. Jones, as city clerk. Miss Jones, who has for three years been stenographer in the city offices, and is an Ontario girl, has the distinction of being the first woman to hold the office of city clerk, in a Canadian city.

BOARDS OF TRADE.

If we say that every progressive city has a live Board of Trade, we shall possibly be accused of saying that Peterborough is not a progressive city; for it cannot be said from any perceptible evidence offered, that our own Board of Trade is effectively alive. We see in the press frequent accounts of what the Boards of Trade of other places, of less commercial and industrial importance than Peterborough, are doing to show their active interest in civic undertakings, and promoting special movements in the interests of their constituency. Brantford announces as "the leading social function of next week, as far as the city is concerned," the annual banquet of the Board of Trade. The chief speakers will be two men of eminent ability and public prominence,—Hon. G. P. Graham, and Hon. W. H. Hearst, Minister of Lands and Mines in the Ontario Government. This indicates that the Brantford Board of Trade is a real factor in the commercial and industrial activities of the city. The services of such a Board of Trade will be available for giving good service to the city when any question of importance calls for its activity; and from week to week it can, and will have an important influence in dealing with matters that affect the trade interest of the city. It is not to be said that our own Board of Trade is unduly meddlesome in matters that would naturally come within its province. It is not too much, perhaps, to say that if it exists at all, it exists on paper. Its meetings seem to be too few and far between to admit of being of very much importance or influence upon local affairs, or the adjustment and promotion of conditions that are in the interest of the comemrcial and industrial welfare of the city. Many persons think that at the present moment the Board of Trade could very properly take an interest more active than it seems to be taking in civic affairs.

WHEAT.

Those who tell us that a free market for Canadian wheat in the United States is a debatable advantage, because the United States is a wheat-producing and exporting country, reason from narrow premises. True, the United States is a wheat exporting country at present; but its wheat producing and, necessarily its exporting capacity, are steadily failing—thus not at all keeping pace with the growth of population, and necessarily consumption. The United States, according to Broomhall's Corn Trade News, exported, in 1912-13, 162 million bushels of wheat, and in the fiscal year 1913-14 the export figures fell to 136 millions. On the contrary Canada's export of wheat, corresponding to increased production, is steadily growing. In 1912-13 Canada exported 116 millions, and the export figures for the fiscal year 1913-14 amount to 136 millions, exactly the same amount as the United States. Canada's export of wheat in 1910-11, was 72 million bushels, in 1911-12 it was 98 millions, in 1912-13 it was 116 millions, and in 1913-14 it was 136 million bushels, an increase of nearly 100 per cent. in three years. Last year's export from the United States was a little over a bushel per head of the population; while the export figures of Canada were 18 bushels per head of the population. The time is close at hand when the United States, with decreasing production and increasing population, will not be able to feed their own people. Therefore they will demand an increasing supply of wheat from Canada which is far more rapidly increasing in production than in population. The United States is now a good market, and a convenient market, for Canadian wheat, and will become better every year. The removal of the duty by the Canadian Government from wheat and wheat products, the condition of their free admission to the United States, would be a big boon, especially to the western farmer, whose prosperity will be reflected upon the prosperity of the east in commercial and industrial ways.

ACTIVITY IN NAVAL CIRCLES.

Following the announcement of a battle-going fleet of motor boats, which is now being vigorously denied, there is further evidence of activity in His ajesty's Canadian Navy circles. The Kingston "Standard" contains an advertisement signed by G. V. Desbarats, Deputy Minister of the Department of the Naval Service at Ottawa, inviting tenders for the boring of a well at Kingston. The plans for this are to be seen in the office of the general superintendent of the Naval Service at Ottawa. Something is afoot, that's sure. We wonder what the deep laid plot can be ?—ontreal Herald.

STRATHCONA'S WEALTH.

As is usually the case where large estates are being dealt with, the popular estimate of Lord Strathcona's wealth turns out to have been considerably in excess of the real figure. The most reliable estimates of the value of the estate now place it at $31,500,000. Three years ago it would have been nearer $45,000,000; the difference being attributable to shrinkage in Northern Pacific stock, in which Lord Strathcona was heavily interested. The legacies will probably aggregate $4,000,000 apart from his daughter, Lady Strathcona, and a special provision entailed for her heirs. Thus Lady Strathcona will have control of $20,000,000, inclusive of the special provision for her heirs of $2,500,000.—Brantford Expositor.

ANOTHER JOKE.

From a Conservative newspaper we learn that under Pelletier's parcel post the cost of sending a six pound parcel from Ottawa to Montreal, for insance, would be 40 cents, whereas by express the charge would be 35 cents; and that an 11 pound parcel sent to Montreal would cost 70 cents by parcel post as against 40 cents by express.

Mr. Pelletier's method of reducing the cost of living looks to be about as big a joke as the declaration of Lynch hyphen Staunton, company lawyer, and F. P. Gutelius, former employee of th C.P.R., that if they had been given an absolutely free hand to draw up the plans and specifications they could have built the National Transcontinental Railway for forty millions less than it has cost.

Fortunately there is one member of the Borden Cabinet who is no joker, Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes' proposal that all the benzine put-puts on the Rideau Canal and other inland waterways be enrolled for the purpose of defending Canada in case of war, could have germinated only in the mind of a genius.—Ottawa Free Press.

British Legation in Mexico City Takes Precautionary Steps.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The despatch of a small legation guard of marines and machine guns from a British cruiser at Vera Cruz to the legation in Mexico City, was ordered only after the State Department had been advised of the plan through the American embassy in London.

Threats that the British legation would be made a particular object of attack in the event of a public uprising led to the precautionary measure and it was intimated at the State Department yesterday that Mexican authorities were not only willing but anxious that other diplomatic representatives in Mexico take similar measures.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

STRONG TEAM COMING FOR BENEFIT GAME ON SATURDAY OF THIS WEEK

Old Boys Have a Great Line-up to Trot Out Against Local Team—A Grand Crowd Should Turn Out to Help Charley Ray.

THE GAME OF THE SEASON

Tickets are now on sale for the Charley Ray benefit game on Saturday night, which should attract one of the biggest crowds in years. The game is a tribute to the popularity of Charley Ray, and his father, Mr. Sam Ray, both of whom have done much for sport in this City. The former Peterborough rover, one of the cleanest and gamest players who ever wore the blue and white, has been ill for sixteen months, and while he is now on the road to recovery, his illness has been a very heavy burden of expense. A bumper sale of tickets for the bnefit game will help to carry this burden, and judging from the interest displayed in the game, there will be a ready demand for the pasteboards.

The idea of the game originated from one of Peterborough's most famous sons in the athletic world, Pete Campbell, the crack 'Varsity Rugby player, and every one to whom the proposition was explained, was eager to help the good work along. The All Star Old Boys, who will be the opponents of the local Intermediates on Saturday night, have nearly all been team mates of Charley Ray, at one time or another, and they are all anxious to do what they can for him. The boys are coming here at their own expense for the game, showing a commendable spirit that should be reciprocated by the fans in Peterborough. All the proceeds of the game will be turned over to Charley Ray, and it is to be hoped that the sum realized will be worthy of the cause for which the game is being played.

Mr. Sam Ray is one of Peterborough's most popular and most respected sportsmen, and a sportsman he is in every sense of the word. For many years he has worthily represented Peterborough in several branches of sport. In his earlier days he was known the country over as a crack cricketer, and on the baseball diamond his feats were also famous. For many years he was one of the best skips with the Peterborough Curling Club and he is still an expert golfer. For a number of years he was President of the Peterborough hockey Club and at the present time he is honorary president of the Club.

His son, Charley, for whose benefit the game is being played, started his hockey playing with the Aberdeens, a juvenile organization, whose arena was the goose pond. He graduated frof the Aberdeens to the Orphans, in the City League, and was snapped up by the Stratheonas, whom he captained for several years. About the same time he started in the Junior O. H. A., and led these local Juniors. While still young enough for junior hockey he was promoted to the Intermediates, playing rover, and captained the team. He entered McGill University as a student several years ago, but after one year's work became ill, and had to be removed to his home, here. He has had a long, up-hill fight, but his prospects are now very bright.

Pete Campbell is managing the Old Boys' team. He will have Leo Derocher of Ottawa College in the nets and on the defence will be Frank Heffernan of the T. R. and A. A.; Harold Matthews of R. M. C.; Harold Parker of the Hamilton Juniors, and Harold Morrow of the Royal Bank team of the Toronto Bank League. The forward line will include Hugh Burritt of the Argonauts, Harry Clancy of the Dominion Park team, Ken. Crane of the Argos., and Pete Campbell of 'Varsity. Substitutions will be allowed at any time during the game and the All Stars will use ten or eleven players.

The local team will use the same system and several of the local Juniors will be given a chance to win their spurs.

TOOL ROOM OR TEST?

To-night May Decide the Mercantile League Championship

There is keen rivalry between the C.G.E. Test and Tool Room teams and the Mercantile League game between the two at Brock St. Rink to-night promises to be a hummer. With the championship of the League hinging on the result there will be plenty of excitement. The Tool Room can make a three-cornered tie if they succeed in trimming the Test, and the Garnet and Gray outfit who are always there or thereabouts, when the Mercantile League title is to be decided may be depended upon to provide lively opposition. The game is called for 9 o'clock, and will be preceded by a game between the Bankers and a picked team from the other three Mercantile League clubs.

The line-up for to-night's Mercantile League game will be:

Test.		Tool Room.
	Goal.
Dwyer		Cassidy
	Defence.
McKean, Breckinreid		Kelly, McGrath
	Rover.
MacDougal		Barrie
	Centre.
Carter		Jackson
	Right Wing.
Boone		Primeau
	Left Wing.
Munro		Cranfield

MANY SURPRISES ATTEND ENGLISH SOCCER MATCHES

England and Ireland Divide Honours in Soccer and Rugby --Twenty Thousand See the Sport--King George and Premier Asquith Present--Soccer League Tables.

Saturday was a big one in both soccer and rugby circles in the Old Country, for, in addition to the full league schedules, the international teams of England and Ireland were fighting it out in both branches of the sport. Ireland was successful in the soccer game at Middlesboro, beating England by 3 goals to 0, but at Twickenham, where the third international rugby game was played, England won by 17 points to 12. Over 20,000 spectators were in the famous Twickenham enclosure, among whom were King George and Premier Asquith. This makes two wins for England and one for Wales. The first match in the series played January 17 was won by Midland over Wales, and the second match in February 7 by Wales over Scotland.

Old Trafford Team Beaten.

The big surprise of the day in the First Division is the defeat of Manchester United on their own ground at Old Trafford by Burnley. True it was only a 1 to 0 victory, but it means two points less towards the championship. To make matters worse, the other team from the banks of the Irwell, Manchester City, were beaten by the Rovers at Blackburn. The Rovers are now five clear points ahead of their nearest rivals, Sunderland. Everton made no mistake about beating Sheffield United, 5 to 0; it looks more like a baseball or rugby score than a battle between two first-class British soccer elevens. The "Geordies" from Newcastle just got away with a 1 to 0 victory over the Pensioners at Chelsea.

"Peacocks" Whitewash "Wolves."

The "Peacocks" must have had their feathers ruffled on Saturday when they took the "Wolves" into camp at Eland Road and whitewashed them by 3 goals to 0. Notts Forest and Lincoln City changed places after Saturday's game and now the latter grace the bottom of the Second Division table. Another unexpected victory was that of Stockport County over Bradford. The Yorkshire eleven have been doing pretty well lately, while the County have only won 7 games out of 26. However it's there and the Bradford team are mourning the loss of two points. This "Babes" gave the "Arsenal" a surprise packet at Woolwich by putting it all over them.

Someone must have had a good pair of shooting boots on at the "Palace," as eight goals were scored, three going to Bristol and five to the home team. Swindon Town got a severe jolt at Coventry, where the City held them to a 1 to 1 tie. It looks as if Swindon are losing their hold on the championship. Brighton and Hove got a nice away from home victory at Southend, where they met the United.

Celtic Still Winning.

Celtic whitewashed Morton by 3 goals to 0. It looks as if Celtic will have their name engraved on the Scottish League cup again this season. They are now eight points ahead of Hearts, their nearest rivals. The tailenders of the league, St. Mirren, put a 3 to 2 over Clyde. The following are the league standings completed up to date:

First Division.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Fr.	Ag.	Pts
Blackburn R.	27	15	5	7	64	32	37
Sunderland	27	13	6	6	47	36	32

THE PETERBORO' LINDSAY CUP GAMES TO-DAY

Four local rinks went to Lindsay today and a similar number of the northerners are in Peterborough this afternoon for the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup games. There was quite a gallery at the Charlotte Street ice when the local games were begun. Interest was perhaps centred on ice No. 5, where J. D. Flavelle and W. G. Morrow were locked in what was up to the fifth end a decidedly close game. Skip Flavelle gets as much good curling out of his system each winter as any player around these parts. He took an early lead and was up 4 points on the third end. Morrow knocked off two of these on the fourth, and tied it on the fifth.

Reesor got away to an early lead, but was over hauled in the fifth end. R. Neill was up five on his fifth end. After a poor start, the local rinks were going well on the fifth end. The games will be concluded by five o'clock. The rinks are composed of the following:

ORILLIA'S TEAM'S BACKERS OPPOSED TO GAMBLERS

In his speech at the meeting of the Hockey Club to allow the members to choose their seats for the season, Mr. M. B. Tudhope urged the players to play the game no matter whether they lost or won. He also told the hockey supporters that they, the team and the club in Orillia, had the support of the better element of the community, because in the last few years an effort had been made to keep the game clean. This should be the continual aim of the executive. On Friday night last the betting fraternity made their first appearance, and were anxious to place their money. As a result of the score at Victoria Harbour, when Orillia fell behind, they thought they saw a chance to make a penny out of the Harbour team's supporters, feeling confident that Orillia would more than hold their own on the home ice. The executive should see that the club and teams are kept entirely free from the influence of this faction. If it is not distinctly understood that scores are neither run up nor kept down for the purposes of betting, it will not be long before the games loses the support of the townspeople. The public look to the officers to see that they are protected in every way from score manipulators.—Orillia Packet.

Hearing of the big times which were to take place at Chemong, three little children living in Havey township, the oldest about six years, unknown to their parents after a short consultation, came to a conclusion that they would go and participate. They hitched up the faithful dog, Rover, to a little hand sleigh, and after a few moments' thoughts, the dog understood that the three were planning for a runaway, and being filled with enthusiasm, would leap up and bark, as much as to saw "all aboard for Chemong, kids." The trio started out towards the village across the ice, the distance being about four miles, the dog cautiously picking its way for the safety of its living freight. The ice is not very safe, being open in spots, but, however, they arrived at the village safely. Rover landed his passengers at a well known house, where they were found huddled together in their little sleigh, shivering with cold and fright. Of course, a few hours later, the parents having found out that their little family had deserted their shore, followed them, and found them comfortably situated at George McCues house.

A SYNOPSIS OF SOME SUNDAY SERMONS

"THE MYSTERY AND MEANING OF SORROW" SERMON BY REV. MR. CONNOR

LESSONS IN SORROW

Last evening at Park Street Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. R. A. Connor, delivered a strong sermon on "The Mystery and Meaning of Sorrow," speaking from the text:

John, 37: 21, "And now men see not the bright light which is in the cloud, but the wind passeth and cleanseth them."

John 13: 7, "Jesus answered and said unto him, what I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

In these passages before there is a great lesson that we all need to learn.

If we couple with these passages the 12th v. of 1 Cor., 13, "Now, we see through a glass darkly, etc., and note carefully the relation it bears to these two preceding passages. If we place the emphasis on the words now and but, we get the teaching more clearly.

These things which are dark and mysterious to us in life, which cause us much disappointment and great sorrow, are permitted for a wise and holy purpose, and teach us our dependence upon God and bring us nearer to Him who has promised that "all things work together, for good to them that love God, etc."

This is the process by which the dross of our lives are consumed. We are sometimes told that every cloud has a silver lining, and there is a great deal of truth in it, but I wish to say here that the silver lining is not always discernible. If you have ever passed through a great sorrow, you will understand what I mean. But let us never forget that whatever sorrow comes into our lives, Jesus knows all about it. He Himself has passed through it before us. But sometimes our eyes are so blinded by sorrow's tears that we cannot see the light of the silver lining.

The sorrow and disappointment that came into Job's life did not come without God's notice, but by God's permission, and through patience to wait and faith to believe, Job was in God's own time made to rejoice and praise God for his afflictions.

"These afflictions do not from the ground arise. Celestial benedictions sometimes assume this dark disguise." Sometimes they come for correction, and sometimes for mercy. "For whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth. If ye receive chastisement God dealeth with you as sons, etc."

Paul gives us a comforting note when he says: "These light afflictions which are but for a season, work out for a far more exceeding and abundant weight of glory."

Job is recorded in our lesson as a perfect man, yet he was not free from earth's sorrows.

Job saw that God had a purpose in it all and so was submissive, and to his friends who stood around him he said, "I will answer thee thus, God is greater than man," and again, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

God does not always design to explain his ways to His children, and He giveth no account of His ways to man. "God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform, He plants is footsteps in the sea and rides upon the storm."

One day all these hidden mysteries will be revealed to us and then we'll unuerstand.

Jesus said, "What I do thou knowest not now, but, thou shalt know hereafter."

"Oh, the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God. How unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out." We are not capable of solving the mysteries of life, Pain, Sorrow, Death, and we Mare not expected to understand al labout them, but we are not expected to believe and trust His promises concerning them. And to such as love Him he has said, "All things work together for good," and that "His grace is sufficient for us."

There is a wide difference between the earthly seeming and the Heavenly realities. From our angle of vision it would seem at times as if God is angry and His mercy past, but God deals with us ever in infinite love and tenderest mercy.

Suffering is not only a reality with us; it is a necessity. The apostle tells us that "We are to be made perfect through suffering."

Jesus suffered for us the just, for the unjust, when in the garden the horror of that sad hour came upon Him and He cried "My God, My God, etc." It looked as though eternal night had settled down on the sin-cursed earth, God seemed to turn away His face, but soon the Easter morn began to dawn; then they, too, began to understand the mystery and meaning of Calvary's darket night was soon followed by Easter's brighest morning.

How mystified is our vision as viewed through sorrow's tears, but "what seems to us funeral tapers may be Heaven' distant lamps."

We will see the light in the cloud some day, perhaps it may not be until we pass over to the other shore; many of life's mysteries will remain mysteries until we view them in Heaven's light.

"Not now but in the coming years,
It may be in the better land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there some time we'll understand."

We are told that only one of the twelve apostles died a natural death, and that one of his enemies tried to destroy him by throwing him into a caldron of boiling oil, but he escaped with his life, and was afterwards banished to the Isle of Patmos to die, and there God gave him that wonderful Revelation in which we are given in part a picture of the future of earth's sorrowing saints. Rev. 7: 9-17, "And after this I beheld and lo a great multitude which no man could number, of all nations and kindreds and peoples and tongues, stood before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes and palms in their hands, etc., etc."

THE JOURNEY OF LIFE.

O brother heavy laden,
Do you ever stop to say,
That in spite of heavy burdens
And the roughness of the way,
You can trust the blessed Saviour,
In His promise to sustain,
And the things that seem but losses,
Will one day be your gain.

Here we have our trials and crosses,
As the Master said we would,
Here we have our gains and losses,
It's intended that we should,
But His promise is still with us,
If we seek His will to do,
He will guide, protect and keep us,
And will bring us safely through.

For the road we're called to travel,
Is the road the Master trod.
It's the road of trials and crosses,
But it leads us up to God,
So with heart and hand united,
We will labour and we'll pray,
And we'll surely be rewarded,
On the "Resurrection Day."

Now I know He never changes,
And His love is still the same,
So I'm going to trust in Jesus,
And I'll praise His blessed name,
Till He calls me home to glory,
In His presence to abide,
And I'll join the Angel chorus
Safe at home on Canaan's side.

"POWER OF GOD" THE SUBJECT

Miss Babcock (evangelist) delivered a strong sermon on "The Power of God" in the Free Methodist Church yesterday morning. Miss Babcock chose for her text the 18th and 19th verses of the first chapter of Ephesians, 'That ye may know what is the exceeding greatness of His power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of His mighty power." She said in part:

"I wish you could read this text alone without anything to disturb your minds. A true conception of it, personally, will electrify the soul. The world recognizes the fact, that there is such a thing as 'the power of God,' and when people lose this realization. God frequently displays His power in some extraordinary manner that men may be convinced.

Scientists try to explain the causes of certain phenomena, as for example, earthquakes, but after we have read their learned treatise, we still feel it was a demonstration of the power of God. But it is not of the demonstrations of God's power in the physical world that I would speak, but rather of his power in the soul of man.

We can be conscious of this power dwelling in us, and without this consciousness our religious experience is wholly unsatisfactory.

We may be true to our church and other religious duties, but except we feel this power our hearts are empty.

God first manifest Himself in us, in His forgiving power. This is a wonderful manifestation of God's power. When Chas. Wesley received this he sang,

"I then rode on the sky
Freely justified I,
Nor did envy Elijah his seat."

This is the first instalment of grace the repentant sinner receives, and is as satisfactory to each recipient as it was to Mr. Wesley. It is not enough to merely reform, join the church and engage in religious work. We must know our sins to be forgiven.

Another manifestation of this power is implied in the words of Jesus to his disciples as recorded by St. Luke 24: 49. "But tarry ye in the City of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." This is given for the cleansing of our hearts from inherited depravity, and employing us for service. It is the energizing force furnished the Christian, enabling him to live a godly and useful life. It is the privilege of every truly pardoned soul to have this blessed experience here and now. This will put moral courage in you, and a ring in your testimony. Oh that religious teachers of our day would proclaim this in all our congregations that hungry hearts everywhere might experience this for themselves.

God also manifests His power by esablishing us in the way of righteousness. It requires power to do this. The true Christian will meet with opposition from all the forces of evil, but the power of God is superior to all evil forces. He can also keep, protect and care for us. The saints are Christ's inheritence, His property. He shields them from Satan's planned attacks. God will never let us be overpowered.

We may also experience the "power of His resurrection." Saved, sanctified, established, kept and finally resurrected by this same power.

Our resurrected bodies will not be like these corruptible bodies we now inhabit, but they will be immortal, incorruptible, made "like His own glorious body." This glorious body will not be a clog to the soul, Space will not hinder its presence anywhere. The crowning day is coming, when angels will stand by and see the redeemed crowned with eternal righteousness."

Come and hear Miss Babcock Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Spoke To The Men's Bible Class

Rev. Mr. Rollins Dealt With Subject "Reasons Outside of the Bible For Faith in God"

Rev. James Rollins had been requested by the Men's Bible Class of St. Andrew's Church to speak to them on "Reasons Outside of the Bible for Faith in God."

Mr. Rollins said that in the truest sense all the reasons for faith in God may be found outside the Bible.

Everything inside the Bible was first outside the Bible in the hearts and minds and actual experiences of men. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, had no Bible. The thoughts, emotions, experiences, of these men, helped to make the Bible. Isaiah had only a small part of the Bible. His thoughts experiences and problems increased the size and value of the volume. Protestantism had rebelled against an infallible Pope and in his place had put an infallible Book; and faith in the infallibility of the Book had often been made to seem more important than obedience to the teaching of the Book. No dogma of infallibility can make a book live unless the contents of the book meets a universal need.

But we are expected to think today pretty much as if the Bible did not exist.

Outside of the Bible we have two great realities claiming our attention. The Universe and Man. What can we learn from them?

First, look at the universe. We do not understand everything about the universe, but we understand enough to get the conviction that the whole is intelligible. Did the intelligible universe happen by chance?

Would an intelligible thing that happened by chance continue to exist by chance for millions of years. Would it in time create, by chance, a species of being with capacities of the very kind that were necessary to understand the intelligible universe, which happened by chance to be intelligible?

It seemed to Mr. Rollins much more difficult to accept that view as a working basis than to accept the principle that behind the intelligible machine is the intelligent machinist, that behind the intelligible unverse is an intelligent universist.

If a machine compels a man to believe that there is a machinist then a universe compels a man to believe in a universist, which is only a new way of saying Creator.

The inventor of a machine is always more wonderful than the machine he invents, and all that the machine does is done in a very real sense by the man who invented it.

From the universe we deduce an intelligent Creator more wonderful than the universe he has created.

Sencondly, now turn to man. You might, with profit, turn to the birds, and bees, and squirrels, and insects, but passing them by, turn to man. Here you find animal life, plus something. In man you have the life that is in a tree, plus the life that is in an animal, plus something more.

In man you have a whole range of things not found in the stars and earth, and trees. They are intelligible. Man is that, and more. He is intelligent. He has conscience, imagination, will, courage, hope, love, religion.

Man and the universe are here. No one has ever had the temerity to say that man created the universe, or that he either created or invented himself. The Creator is invariably greater than the creation; the inventor is invariably greater than the invention. So, to our intelligent Creator we must add, after a survey of man, the attributes of will and love.

When you get the conception of a being, with all the noble qualities in man, who has created or invented man, and is, therefore, greater than man, you have a Being who is entitled to love and reverence, and here you have the grand elements of worship. If any one present had a more intelligent explanation of the universe and himself than the one given Mr. Rollins said such a man was entitled to hold to it and more; it was up to such a man to pass it on to others. This was the kind of saving which did not impoverish.

"RELATION OF THE CHURCH TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS"

A STRONG SERMON

The Rev. R. Pogue, in St. Paul's Church last night, preached on "The Relation of the Church to Social Problems." In the beginning of his remarks he referred to the change which has come over the Church in her attitude to economic and social problems within the last few years. He quoted the Bishop of London as saying: "There is a strong new wine working in the hearts and brains of thousands to-day. Thousands believe today that there is a possibility of equality of opportunity for all. Thousands believe that this grinding poverty which some of us have seen in the great cities before our eyes is unnecessary and should come to an end. Thousands look forward with hope to a day when each child shall have a chance and no one shall be—to use a terrible phrase—damned into the world." He also quoted the deliverance of Prof. John Ryan, of the Roman Catholic Church in the States on Social Problems. He has put forth a far-reaching programme of reform which has been approved by many Catholic pressours of ethics and would probably have the endorsement of the majority of the priests. He demands a legal minimum wage, an eight-hour law, relief for the unemployed, provision against accident, illness and old age, the housing of the working people, public ownership of public utilities, adequate control of monopolies, taxation of the future increase of land values, and prohibition of speculation on the exchange. The speaker pointed out that every great church on the Continent in the last three or four years has made an important pronouncement on the new attitude of the Church to the social problem. He mentioned the fact that there are one hundred and fifty ministers of religion in the States who attend the meetings of labour unions with more or less regularity, and who have the right to the floor, and who are often called upon, and, in some cases, are winning marked popularity and influence. He then went on to point out the true work of the Church in the world.

First of all, it is the business of the Church to save men from the fact and consequences of sin. The most fundamental thing in human life is a man's religious nature. Its longings and desires are as real a part of man as are the desires and hungers and needs of his physical nature. He said: "I utterly and with all my nature repudiate the doctrine that better wages, better hours, better homes more leisure and the cultivation of the intellectual side of a man's life, is a sufficient programme for the needs of immortal men. I refuse to allow my higher nature to atrophied by any such programme. Life is not life to me without religion, without a knowledge of God, and without that experience of fellowship with Him which is mine from day to day. The Church, therefore, must labour to keep alive in men the sense of God. She must continue her work of making bad men good. As Herbert Spencer has said, 'There is no political alchemy by which you can get golden conduct out of leaden instincts.' The Church's first duty is to make men better, is to change their hearts. The ideal social state can only be built up out of ideal men."

The second duty of the Church is to save society. In former generations the individual was supreme, attention was concentrated on the individual rather than society. The belief existed that the most effective way of saving society was by saving the individuals who composed it. "To save the individual whose worth was beyond all earthly computation—to educate him of ignorant, to uplift him if degraded, to civilise him if barbarous, to moralise him if sinful, to redeem him if lost — this has been the work of the Church from the day when Jesus was first called Saviour down even to this present moment." But we are now coming to see that man, the individual, can only rightly be understood from the standpoint of his social relations, that we must save his environment as well as his soul. Hence, arises the duty of the saved man of adjusting his new life to his environment and his environment to his life. The doctrine, for example, of the brotherhood of man which Jesus taught is opposed to a false individualism. It emphasises the solidarity of the race, the fact that man is a social being, and hence that all that concerns my brother man should concern me as it concerns him. It teaches that I should feel his poverty as if it were my own; that I can never rest so long as my brother man suffers an industrial, an economic or a social wrong, any more than I could rest if I were suffering these wrongs myself; it teaches me to fight the injustice of child labour as if that child were my own, the tyranny which keeps a woman working sixteen or eighteen hours a day for starvation wages as if that woman were my mother, or my sister, or my wife; it condemns the sinful extravagation of the rich, while the poor cry at their door for the necessaries of life, it condemns the selfishness, which, in its lust for gold, crushes the helpless, fleeces the poor and exploits the labour of others. This principle of the brotherhood of man justifies the presence of the Church as a spiritual institution in any department of life or of society. It justifies the presence of the Church at political primaries to see that godly men are chosen to go to Parliament and make the laws under which men are to live, it justifies her efforts for the suppression of the liquor traffic as one of the greatest enemies of the moral progress and social well-being of the race; it justifies her work, whether preventative, punative or redemptive for the overthrow of the white slave traffic; it justifies her study of social and industrial problems at first hand and her best efforts for the bringing about of right and just social relations. The Church must imbue the school, the municipality, the State and all other organizations and relations within the industry, economics, capital and labour with the Christian spirit. Only so can does this can we have the ideal social order and ideal and happy human relations.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT WAS AVERTED

Yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock, what might have been an accident, which would have resulted seriously, was averted by the prompt action of an employee of the local Knox store, who stopped the runaway horse.

A farmer with a lady companion was driving into the city, and when at the junction of George and Brock street, the runners of the cutter, by some means got locked in the street railway track, with the result that the outfit overturned, throwing the lady occupant on to the road, while the male occupant apparently accidently, was thrown underneath the cutter, and still retaining his grasp upon the lines, was dragged half a block down the main thoroughfare until the steed was stayed by the employee before mentioned.

The horse, fortunately was of a quiet disposition, and made no attempt to runaway. Had such been the case serious results would doubtless have been the outcome.

As it was, however, no one was injured.

Poverty Is Not So Evident As Expected

A Review of the Unemployment Question

This season of the year is one which keeps the local Relief Officer busy. His reports indicate that although there is, as is customary, a large amount of poverty in the City, the increase this year is not as decided as might be imagined. Peterborough, compared with cities of its own size, should be glad that there is no more unemployment, which factor would give place to a still larger expenditure than that which is devoted to the relief purposes. The extreme cold sason will soon be at its end. Mr. Miller feels confident that with the approach of milder weather conditions, calls on his services will be greatly reduced. In spite of this a considerbale amount of relief has been distributed. There is one vital question though, he said, which strikes Peterborough very forcibly, and that is the morality standing of the City. There have been a large number of cases brought to his notice which would indicate that vice is in evidence in no small degree, which has resulted in a number of young girls being placed in serious conditions. There should be some means taken, he continued, to cope with this occult vice, which is apparent on every side, and such is the opinion of many citizens who take interest in the moral situation, as it is to-day in this City.

MONEY TO BUILD A GOOD RAILWAY IS NOT WASTED

Futile Search For Evidences of Extravagance in Construction of Transcontinental Railway

After the most minute and careful search for instances of wrongdoing in connection with the building of the Transcontinental Railway, Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius the investigating Comissioners, have discovered one payment of $7,950, out of a total expenditure of $100,000,000 concerning which they say that it "cannot be justified in law or in morals." It is asserted that in this transaction (a payment for a lease in Quebec) Mr. S. N. Parent, Chairman of the Commission, knew that he was getting nothing of value in return for the Commission's money, and that the payment really assisted in meeting the expenses of a Liberal candidate in Quebec.

The Globe has no desire to condone even one small offence against the public treasury, if offence can be shown, but the investigators themselves state that the record of the transaction is all in writing in the Commissioner's archieves. Mr. Parent evidently did not believe he was engaged in an immoral or illegal transaction or he would have sought to cover up the record.

Apart from this item, $7,950 out of $109,000,000 spent before the Laurier Government went out of office, there is not one word in the report suggesting that any Commissioner or engineer or inspector, or other public officer engaged in this vast public work carried on in the remote wilderness of the north, far from prying eyes, got a single dollar of graft or rake-off. In no case is it alleged that over-payments upon improper classification were made because of collusion between engineers and contractors, or that inspectors permitted the use of inferior materials. This is a record of which the people of Canada may well be proud. It indicates a high standard of honour in the engineering profession and proves that the wild tales of "graft" circulated from time to time had no foundation in fact. We may be sure that if even one authentic case of collusion between an engineer or inspector and a contractor had come to the notice of the investigators it would have been spread upon the record in the largest possible type.

In regard to the major questions of policy involved in the construction of the road, Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius charge that forty million dollars were "wasted," chiefly by the insistence of the Government and the Commission on a needlessly high standard of construction. They claim that there was no necessity for a four-tenths of one per cent. grade which is the Transcontinental standard. Solid fills, iron and steel bridges, easy curves, and other modern notions come under thir condemnation. They estimate that momentum grades would have saved $6,200,000, sharper curves $2,400,000 wooden trestles $2,947,000, and filling by the use of trains after the opening of the road $3,250,000. Here is a total of almost fifteen millions, said to have been wasted on building a railway with the best that could be had in grades, curves, bridges and rails. The Government set itself to build a high-class railway that would haul the largest possible tonnage with the minimum expenditure for fuel and labour. Every successful railway in America is spending millions upon the elimination of momentum rades and sharp curves and wooden trestles. The money spent on this work is saved ten times over in the rduction of operating costs. Examples can be quoted by any experienced railway operator of the elimination of heavy grades and sharp curves permitting the hauling of 2,500 tons of freight with less labour and fuel than were required to haul 800 or 900 tons over the heavier grades. Liberals in Ottawa will face gladly the charge that money was "wasted" in holding the Trnscontinental construction standard so high that it will become a model of low operating costs.

The charge that several million dollars were lost by letting contracts for large instead of small sections is one regarding which there may be honest differences of opinion. The view of the Commission and of the Laurier Government was that by putting up for bids a dozen large contracts instead of eighty or a hundred small ones the best and biggest railway contractors in America would be induced to bid, and the risk of delay because of failure of small contractors here and there along the line would be reduced to minimum. Many sub-contracts were let by the contractors, and it is stated that the profits obtained by subletting were excessive, amounting in some cases to ten percent. of the cost of the work. To speak of profits obtained by subletting as a rake-off is absurd. The original contractors were in every case liable to the Commission for the proper carrying out of the work, and would assuredly have been held to their undertaking had their sub-contractors failed to make good. The truth is that when the statements of Messrs. Lynch-Staunton and Gutelius are analyzed they furnish no evidence in supprt of the assertion that forty millions or any considerable sm of money was wasted in the building of the National Transcontinental Some other sort of railway might have been built for forty million dollars less, no doubt, but it would have been a switch-back line with pusher grades and sharp curves and wooden trustles, and the money "saved" in construction would have been "wasted" over and over again in operation until that waste forced the reconstruction of the road. The report of the Transcontinental investigators, which was heralded as a bomb, is not even a respectable squib.—The Globe.

Mortar Boards For Choir Ladies Of St. Andrew's

For their first appearance yesterday morning, the choir ladies of St. Andrew's Church sported new "mortar-boards." These have been presented by two members of the congregation who prefer their identity to remain unknown.

The headgear is, with the gowns, looked upon by most congregations as a necessary item to the uniform appearance of the choir nowadays; and St. Andrew's is not to be behind the times, thanks to those unknown donors.

ACCIDENT WAS A WARNING

The accident which befell three local young people a few days ago, seems to have been a good example to others.

Since them the tobogganning on the Murray St. hill has been conspicuous by its absence. Chief Thompson informed an Examiner representative this morning, that the officers under his charge have warned those availing themselves of the sport, of the extreme dangers to which they were exposing themselves, but these warnings had apparently, not been heeded.

The accident, which was previously recorded in The Examiner, has doubtless had the desired effect, and in future the dangerous practice will doubtless be abated.

18TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS ORDINATION

Rev. Father Phelan of the Cathedra Staff Rembered by the Members of the Sodality

To-day is the 18th anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Father Phelan of St. Peter's Cathedral staff. The members of St. Peter's Sodality did not let the occasion pass without a recognition of the assistance of Father Phelan, as spiritual advisor. On Sundy afternoon he was presented with an address and a spiritual bouquet, which Father Phelan acknowledged in a neat reply.

REV. MR. COMPTON AT THE TABERNACLE

Rev. Mr. Compton gave three addresses on Sunday at Bethany Tabernacle to large audiences, more especially in the evening. In the morning his address was to believers, showing them the privileges to be attained by a full surrender to God's will. In the afternoon he gave a talk to the children at the Sunday School. At the evening service he spoke on "Where Are the Dead?" and gave a masterly and Scriptural address on a subject little discussed by the pulpit. Though he spoke at some length he held the attention and interest of the large gathering to the end.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—Prof. Doerfler of Vienna has bequeathed one of his eyes, his heart and brain to the Phyletic Museum at Jena as a contribution to the foundation which will be established to-day on the occa ion of th eightieth birthday of Prof. Ernst Haeckel. Prof. Doerfler, who edits a magazine devoted to Haeckel's theories, writes that he is so poor that he cannot give anything except his corpse to the museum founded by Haeckel, "and not even all of that," adds Prof. Doerfler, "as my native town has secured my promise to let it preserve my ashes in a memorial urn, but there's nothing preventing the transfer of one eye, my heart and my brain to the museum, which urgently requires anatomical exhibits for the purpose of establishing the truth of your great principles."

CANADIAN EMPLOYEES TO BENEFIT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 16. — The employees of the Ford Motor Co., Ont., will be given a slice of that ten million dollar bonus in about two years time, acording to a despatch received here to-day from a Detroit staff correspondent. January, 1916, is set as the date on which the Canadian employees of the automobile concern will get their slice. The Ford, Ont., plant is about as far advanced to-day as the Detroit main plant was three or four years ago, said Mr. Ford, according to the wire. "Our idea is as soon as practicable to treat the employees on both sides of the line alike." The force at Ford, Ont., is about 2,000 to 3,000, and has about one-tenth of the output of the parent concern.

OPINIONS OF MERCHANTS AND BUSINESS MEN

Some Suggestions

The manager of a local store, whose name is withheld, voicing his opinion on the proposed site, said, in part: "I really believe that the site chosen is out of the question. It is a fact that Peterborough is growing, and is going to grow, and it is only a matter of time when a suitable location will have to be found. The time is not far distant when we shall require a new City Building, and the idea has occurred to me that the proposed location should be adaptable for a combined City Building, Customs House and Post Office, and on the other hand the site has been spoiled by the premature loss of the water front, otherwise the place could have been make ornamental. I would prefer a more central location for the office, but even then, having regard for the growth of our City, I think it would be mere selfishness to cater for our own wants, but on the other hand we should have regard for the generations that are to follow. Regarding a location, I would say that I would prefer to see a location provided off the main thoroughfare, as a Post Office and Customs House spoil the beauty of a main street, such as, to my mind, do banks. Personally I would prefer to see a more central location."

C COMPANY WILL HOLD "AT HOME"

In consequence of this social the Bijou Dancing Academy will not be held this week.

MANITOBA WOMEN AND THE FRANCHISE

A deputation recently waited upon Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, to ask for the extension of the franchise to women.

Mrs. Nellie McClung, author of "Sowing Seeds in Danny," was the principal speaker. Addressing the Premier, she said: "We are not asking for a reform, nor a gift, nor a favour. We are asking for our right. Not for mercy—but for justice. Have we not brains to think — hands to work — hearts to feel, and lives to live? Do we not bear our part of citizenship? Do we not help to build the Empire It is the women that pay the life tax on existence. No man can know, as a woman does, the cost of human life?

"Perhaps you will tell me that politics are too corrupt for women. I have never heard a satisfactory explanation of why politics should be corrupt. There is nothing inherently vicious in politics. A man who says politics are corrupt is either a party to that corruption, or he is unable to prevent it. Corupt politics have caused a white flag of distress to be flown for those who can come and help. We are not only willing, but anxious to lend you a hand."

Mrs. McClung then went on to tell about the liquor and white slave traffic. She declared one boy in every five became a drunkard. Regarding the white slave traffic in Winnipeg she said:

"The penalty is two years. "Two years' imprisonment, or a fine of $25, just the same as it is for stealing a flower in the park. Woman's virtue is then rated in Manitoba at $25. Is that a woman's point of view, do you think? Have the women ever been adequately represented in the making of these laws whereby her sons become drunkards and her daughters are lost?

"We are not blaming the men; we believe that they have done the best they know how.

"But we women want to be governed by laws in which women have a voice in the making. How would you, Sir Rodmond, like to be governed by laws made entirely by women?"

Turning to the audience, Mrs. McClung addressed them: "Sir Rodmond had a splendid mother, and he has a splendid wife

"You are not afraid to trust the women then, are you, Sir Rodmond?"

"I call you to witness, if in the early days of our Province, our pioneer women ever shrank from their duty. We, their descendants, now appeal to you, the first minister of Manitoba, to give us our due. Sir Rodmond, this is the day of your opportunity You are the man with the power—and now, Sir Roblin, it is your move."

Premier Not to Be Moved.

But the Premier was not to be moved. He declared that the fundamental for national greatness was a perfect home He got as answer a salvo of applause from the delegation. "I am sorry," retorted the Premier, "the facts are against you."

(Cries of "No.")

He went on to argue that the prevalence of divorce south of the line was due to the fact that woman had left the sphere in which she was mother and wife. More cries of "No" greeted this assehtion.

Not Representative.

Affirming that he did not think they represented all the women of the city or Province, Sir Rodmond, in illustration, said that his wife was as bitterly opposed as she could be, and he added if any woman thought she was better qualified as mother and wife by going out and talking on the streets, he at once took issue with her. "It is the home," he said, "where influence is felt and exercised, and the mother that cannot exercise influence upon her own husband and her own children is a woman that should not be permitted to exercise it on the outside." It was those things, said the Premier, that made him hesitate, and he declared that life such as they have it in the United States did not make for those principles that should underlie national life and national greatness Stating that he might be old fashioned because he had been born in an age that was not characterized by the prevalence of divorce, that knew nothing of five o'clock teas and the tango dance, he declared himself absolutely opposed to the suffrage for women. For the present, as far as he was concerned, he would not vote for women's suffrage if he had the ballot put in his hand. Why? Because he had too much regard for women, and as he believed the granting of the vote would undermine home life.

Mrs. McClung, claiming the last word, thanked the Premier for the straightforward manner in which he had received them, and added to the accompaniment of loud laughter, mingled with applause.

"I believe we will get you yet."

Proud.

Prisoner—I'm no hobo, judge. I'm walking from San Francisco to Panama on a $10,000 bet.

Judge—Then what are you doing in Illinois?

Prisoner—Well, judge, to tell you the truth, I don't care nothing for money!

LADIES OF SACRED HEART CHURCH OPEN FINE NEW LIBRARY

The young ladies of the Sodality of the Church of the Sacred Heart have formed the nucleus of a library upon the establishing of which they have been working during the past year. The proceeds of their socials were combined for this purpose, and they begin with one hundred carefully selected books and a handsome bookcase. They are stored in the basement of the church, and it is the intention to augment the list as rapidly as possible. The volumes are all new, and the young ladies are determined to have them kept as carefully as possible. The year has been a very successful one for the Sodality of the South Ward church. There has been a combination of effort, but much credit is due Miss Ada Meagher and Sister St. Paul, who takes a deep interest in the sodalities and who suggested the formation of the library.

DEBATE ON THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

"Resolved that the high cost of living is not retarding the healthy growth of Canada" is the subject of a debate between St. Andrews Utopia Bible Class and St. Paul's Young Men's Bible Class, in St. Andrew's Lecture Hall to-morrow (Tuesday) evening at eight o'clock.

The affirmative will be upheld by the representatives of the Utopia Class, N. C. Mills, (leader), W. J. Connor and W. S. Campbell, and the negative by St. Paul's representatives, M. Turner (leader), Mex Breckenridge and Harry Taylor. The judges will be Mr. Downie, (chairman), Mr. Stubbs and Mr. Lees.

It is understood that during the past three weeks both sides have been particularly active along the lin of study and research work, and that the public can expect something altogether out of the ordinary.

The debate, of course, will be the main attraction, but there is to be a splendid musical programme supplied by some of the members of St. Andrew's and St. Paul's choirs.

Ladies, admission 15c., gentlemen, 25c. All those that can possibly arrange it, should be present at this debate. It will be a good one.

MARKET SIGNS

Two large signs have been placed in the market arcade at the entrances to the stairs. They are designed to direct the public to ascend by the stairs on the south side and descend by way of the other. On the hall floor, outside the doors, railings have been placed as an additional facilitation for the guidance of the public. But, in spite of these directions, many were going up and down on the same stairway, meeting half way, dodging each other and generally impeding progress. Possibly some of the people are unable to read. It might be suggested that a squad of infantry be stationed in the arcade to ensure the use of the proper stairway for ascent. The real failure of the plan is due to the fact that on leaving the market hall people go out the wrong door. According to the present plan they should enter through the south door and go out through the north. In other words in leaving the hall they should pass through the door on the left. But no! Many straggled through the door on the right and, of course, the railing guided them down the hairs which are intended for ascent. Another suggestion. Station a squad of artillery inside the Market Hall and the difficulty may be relieved. May be. Until the market buyers give the matter a little thought the old lackadaiscal goings and comings will continue as of yore. It is just as easy to follow directions as to oppose them. To render the facilities efficient, some one should be detailed to see that the directions are carried out.

The person who took, of course by mistake, the fur lined coat from Jay's Store on Aylmer Street on Saturday last, is advised to return it forthwith to save further trouble.

THE CAREER OF JOE TINKER, FEDERAL STAR

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 14.—When Joe Tinker affixed his "John Hancock" to a Federal League contract he fired the first effective shot in what promises to be the hottest baseball war since the memorable conflict between the American and National league a dozen years ago. Joe didn't start the muss between the Federals and organized baseball. But he is largely responsible for the fact that the war has reached its present proportions. He was the first big league star to jump. If Tinker hadn't jumped it is a pretty safe bet that the majority of the big leaguers now on the Federal roster would never have taken the hurdles.

At the National League meeting in New York last December the Cincinnati club sold Tinker, its former manager, to Brooklyn for the sum of $25,000. According to the agreement as reported at the time Tinker was to receive $10,000 of the purchase money if he agreed to play in Brooklyn. Right here is where Sir Joseph got busy. He demanded the $10,000 bonus and a salary of $7,500 a year to play with the Superbas.

Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, claims he sent Tinker a contract for three years calling for $7,50 a year. But a hitch occurred when the driectors of the Cincinnati club refused to separate themselves from any parts of the 25,000 bucks.

Tinker thereupon did a speedy flop that landed him in the Federal League yard. He has been appointed manager of the Chicago Federals and is to receive $36,000 for three years' work, so 'tis said.

Joe's contract with Cincinnati for 1913 contained the customary clause which reserved him for that club in 1914. Brooklyn purchased the contract, and if any legal action is taken by the Brooklyn club it will be up to Tinker and the Federals to show His Honour that the reserve clause in a player's contract is a flivver. The organized ranks, including all the major and minor leagues contend that the reserve clause is binding. They rely largely on the decision handed down by the Pennsylvania courts several years ago in the famous Lajoie case.

In the Lajoie case the courts held that the reserve clause was a part of the regular contract. Larry Lajoie, long known as the star second-sacker of the Cleveland Naps, was a member of the Philadelphia Nationals when the American League was organized. He jumped to the Philadelphia Americans, but the court decision already referred to restrained him from appearing with that club and he was released to Cleveland.

Joe Tinker, who promises to be more in the limelight than any other player during the season about to begin, has long been a conspicuous figure on the diamond. He is a native of Kansas and is close to his thirty-fifth year.

At the age of 17 Joe broke into the national game with a Kansas City semi-professional team. He showed he could do almost anything except play ball, so the manager of the team was glad to sell him to a rival club for $1.50. One hundred nd fifty cents for a player who in later years was to be sold for $25,000.

In 1898, after this rather discouraging experience in Kansas City, Tinker caught on with a club in Coffeyville, Kas., where he earned $35 a month and his board. The next season he was sold to Great Falls, Mont., which club in turn disposed of him to the Helena club.

Tinker was with Denver in 1900, but it was not until a year later that he showed real class on the ball field. In 1910 he played third base for the Portland team in the Northwest League. His excellent work for Portland attracted the attention of the late Frank Sellee, who at the time was manager of the Chicago Cubs. Sellee brought Joe to Chicago and started him on his career as a big league shortstop.

Joe remained with the Cubs until last season when he was signed as manager of the Cincinnati club. Now he is going to pilot an outfit in opposition to his old team in Chicago. In order that there may be no doubt as to the sincerity of his intentions he declares that he will stick to the Federal League, "sink or swim," as the case may be.

"I've got the goods on him, all right," said the detective to the merchant employer. "That guy has been falsely representing himself as a collector for your firm and scooping in more money than any two of your bona fide agents. I'll have him in jail before the week's end." "Great Scott, man, don't do that!" exclaimed the merchant. "I don't want him put in jail; I want to engage him."

Society women, lured by the delights of flying, are now becoming serious rivals of men for aviation honours.

SUCCESSFUL PRESENTATION OF A MUSICAL SKETCH

THE CHARACTERS

What was by far one of the best and most successful amateur entertainments ever produced in Petrborough was presented last night in the Knox Church Lecture Hall by the younger members of that congregation. The presentation of the musical sketch "The New Minister," as witnessed last night, reflects great credit not only on the manager, Mr. C. H. Williamson, but also upon the whole caste, who carried out their respective parts with ease and composure. Between four and five hundred people assembled to witness the performance and formed an appreciative audience. An even larger number would have been present, but for the fact that on Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Keith, the pastor, asked that the first night be given up entirely to outsiders. The sketch is advertised for two nights but the management anticipate the possibility of having to run it a third night, as the sale of tickets was an abnormally high one. Here it may be said that those who have tickets will be catering to their own disappointment if they do not use them.

The play itself is extremely interesting in character and the New Minister during his short career as such, is the object of manifold requests, and propositions. A Country Presbyterian Church is without a minister, and the vacancy is about to be filled. Three fathers of the Church, Messrs. Crescendo B. Flatt, Hezekiah F. Sharp, and Doctor Hoosick, agree to consult the Choir, as that organization is, they decide, an important arm of the Church, in order to obtain the opinions of the members, as to what the characteristics of his new personage should be. The single young ladies of the Choir dictate that he should be a young man of good appearance, deducing at the same time, no doubt, the possibility of marriage. The young men demand that he be a sport, while the old and solid arms of the church, embittered by some 60 years' experience in selecting ministers declare he should be more of their temperament.

Meanwhile there comes to the Village a new school teacher, Daisy Lovejoy who intimates her desire to join the choir. After a trial she is received.

The Ladies' Aid hold a special meeting in connection with the appointment of the new minister and urge th old men, when making an appointment, to consider their requests.

The Old Maids' Club, after it has ister made known that the minister is to be a young man, call a hurried meeting, and wish to refute the vow of keeping single, which they formerly made. This, it was agreed, could not be done, and it was at last decided that the one who received the largest number of votes should be the lucky person. At the conclusion of the ballot it was found that each member had been recorded, one vote, so the Old Maids' Club still existed.

The new minister arrives and is given a rousing reception by the choir. He is almost at once besieged with a host of would-be friends. The choir leader would like to be on good terms, because, as he said, that it was the opinion of a number of the choir that he was unable to properly conduct his duties. In this matter he would much like the minister to stand by him. Crescendo B. Flatt proffers his advice to the newcomer, in requesting that he should not preach too strongly on the temperance question, while Hezekiah F. Sharp would urge the same individual, who in the centre of attraction, to use his greatest efforts, to bring about a sucessful local option campaign, by suitable references to the subject from the pulpit.

The Minister is left alone when Daisy Lovejoy appears on the scene. They recognise each other as old lovers, and are in the act of grasping hands, when Ralphy Bunter, bunts in upon the scene. The young lady leaves. Bunter demands of the minister that he should play baseball, and further that he would have to win every game, or else his secret would be divulged. Previously, Dr. Hoosick had begged the minister not to encourage baseball, with the remark that preachers were not made for that purpose. The terrible state of affairs is suddenly concluded when the elders announce that it is their intention to redecorate the parsonage, but that they would not do so unless the minister was considering marriage. He admitted that was his intention, and it was demanded that the bride-to-be should be made known. The minister then brings forth Daisy Lovejoy, and is heartily congratulated by all on his choice.

The characters appearing in the sketch are appended:

ROADS SEEK TO KEEP SHIP LINES

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 17. — The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day began hearings on the application of the Pennsylvania Railroad for permission to retain its steamship lines after July 1, the date upon which the Panama Canal law decrees all rail lines shall disassociate themselves from competitive water lines. The application is made under a provision of the law which empowers the Interstate Commerce Commission, in its discretion, to permit the railroads to retain such ownership if such a condition is for the best interests of the territory the rail-and-water lines serve. The Pennsylvania owns the Anchor Line on the Great Lakes. The Lehigh Valley and a number of other railroads also own steamship lines, and practically all of them have made application for permission to retain such ownership. Hearings on these applications will be conducted by the Commission at various points during the next few months.

GIVE THAT PUNY CHILD THIS GUARANTEED REMEDY

If your child is under-weight, listless, ailing, liable to get sick easily, it needs a medicine to build its weight and strength. For this purpose there is nothing else we know of that we can so strongly endorse as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The remarkable success of this splendid medicine is due to the fact that it contains ingredients that tone the nerves, enrich the blood and furnish to the entire system the strength, weight and health-building substances it needs. And, it does all this without injuring the stomach. In fact, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is not only pleasant to take, but even the most sensitive stomach is benefited by it, and the digestion improved. On the other hand, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, which most parents object to giving their children. It does its good work by taking hold of the weakness and builds the body up to its natural strength, at the same time making it strong to resist disease.

If Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion doesn't build your child up, feed the stunted, puny muscles, and make the little one lively, strong, well, and full of the animal spirits children are meant by nature to have, come back and tell us and get your money back. We don't want you to lose a cent. We think this is no more than fair, and it leaves you no cause to hesitate. For old people also—for convalescents—for all who are nervous, tired-out, run-down, no matter what the cause—we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with the same guarantee of entire satisfaction or money back. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

Bissell's face reddened at this thrust, for, deep down, he knew that the stampede was an utterly despicable trick, and he was not over-anxious to have it paraded before his neighbours, some of whom had ridden far at his request.

"Shut yore mouth," he snarled, "an' don't yuh open it except to answer questions."

"Oh, no yuh cant do that, Bissell," and blond Billy Speaker shook his head. "Yuh got to give 'im a chance to defend himself. Now we're here we want to get all the facts. What did yuh do to his sheep, Beef? I never heard."

"I run a few of 'em into the Little River, if yore any happier krowin'," snapped Bissell, glowing on Speaker.

Larkin grinned.

"Two thousand of 'em," he volunteered. There was no comment.

"These gents know,' went on Bissell, after a short pause, "that yuh were two days with them rustlers and that yuh can tell who they are if yuh will. Now will yuh tell us how you got in with 'em in the first place?"

Bud began at the time of the crossing of the Big Horn and with much detail described how he had outwitted the Bar T punchers with the hundred sheep under Pedro, while the rest of the flock went placidly north. His manner of address was good, he talked straightforwardly, and with conviction and, best of all, had a broad sense of humour that vastly amused these cowmen.

Sympathetic though they were with Bissell's cause, Larkin's story of how a despised sheepman had outwitted the cattle-king brought grins and chuckles.

"I allow yuh better steer clear o' them sheep, Bissell," suggested one man drolly. "First thing yuh know this feller'll tell yuh he's bought the Bar T away from yuh without yore knowin' it. Better look up yore lund grant to-night."

By this time Bissell had become a caldron of seething rage. His hand actually itched to grab his gun and teach Larkin a lesson. But his position as chairman of the gathering prevented this, although he knew that plains gossip was being made with every word spoken. Among the cowmen about him were some whose ill success or smaller ranches had made them jealous, and, in his mind, he could see them retailing with much relish what a fool Larkin had made of him. He knew he would meet with reminders of this trial during the rest of his life.

However, he stuck to his guns.

"Now what we want to know, young feller, is this: the names an' descriptions of them rustlers."

"I will give them to you gladly and will supply men to help run them down at my own expense if you will let the rest of my sheep come north on your range. Not only that, but I will not ask any damages for the animals you have already killed. Now, men," Larkin added, turning to the others and with a determiend ring in his voice, "I want peace. This fighting is cutting our own throats and we are losing money by the hour.

"The range is free, as all of you know; there is a law against fencing it, and that means that no grangers can settle here and make it pay — the animals would eat all their unfenced farm truck. I have a ranch in Montana with about three thousand sheep on it. I tried to buy more there, but couldn't.

"Therefore, I had to come down south and 'walk' them north. Now I don't like to fight anybody, chiefly because it costs too much; but in a case like this, when I find in the manger"—and he looked directly at Bissell—"I make it a principle to kick that dog out of the manger and use it.

"I am just as much of an American as any of you, and Americans never had a habit of letting other people walk all over them. Now you men can do anything with me you want—I can't prevent it. But I can warn you that if I am judged in any way it will be the worst job the cowmen of Wyoming ever did.

"Understand this isn't a threat, it's just a statement. Because I refuse to turn in and help that man, who has done his best to ruin me, he wants me to suffer the same penalty as a criminal. Now I leave it to you. Has he much of a case?"

Bud, who had risen in the fervour of his speech, sat down and looked at his hearers. Never in his life had he pleaded for anything, but in this moment necessity had made him eloquent. He had hardly taken his seat when Mike Stelton strolled over and sat down on the grass.

For a few minutes there was silence as the men, slow of thought, revolved what Larkin had said. Bissell, ill-concealing his patience, awaited their comments anxiously. At last Billy Speaker remarked:

"I can't see your bellyache at all, Bissell. It seems to me you've acted pretty cruery."

"I have, eh!" roared Beef, stung by this cool opinion. "Would yuh let sheep go up yore range? Tell me that, would yuh?"

"I allow I might manage," was the contemptuous retort. "They're close feeders on the march, an' don't spread out noways far."

Bissell chocked with furry, but subsided when another man spoke.

"I figure we're missin' the point, fellers," he said. "This here association of our'n was made for the purpose of doin' just what Bissell has been tryin' to do—that is, keep the range clear for the cows. We don't care what it is that threatens, whether it's sheep, or wolves, or rustlers, or prairie fires. This association is supposed to protect the cows.

"Now I low that Mr. Larkin has had his troubles right enough, but that's his fault. You warned him in time. I'm plumb regretful he's lost his sheep, but that don't let him out of tellin' us where them rustlers are. It's a pretty mean cuss that'll cost us thousands of dollars a year just for spite or because he can't drive a hard bargain.

"Up on my place I've lost a hundred calves already, but I'd be mighty glad to lose a hundred more if I could see the dirty dogs that stole 'em kickin' from a tree-limb. An' I'm in favour of a tree-limb for anybody who won't tell."

"Yore shore gettin' some long-winded, Luby," remarked a tall man who smoked a pipe, "an likewise yore angry passoins has run away with yore sense. Yuh can't string a man up because he won't talk; 'cause if yuh do we'll sick the deputy sheriff on yuh an' mebbe you'l go to jail."

The speaker rolled a droll, twinkling eye at Bissell and the whole gathering burst into a great guffaw at his expense. This was all the more effective since Bissell had decorated the outside of his vest with the nickel-plated star of his authority.

At this sally he nearly had apoplexy and bawled out for a drink, which somebody accommodatingly supplied from a flask, although such things were rarely carried.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

TWO WOMEN TESTIFY

Haliburton, P.E.I.:—"I had a doctor examine me and he said I had falling of the womb, so I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. All the bearing-down pains have vanished. I have gained ten pounds in weight, the discharge is all gone, and I feel better than I have for a long time. I think any woman is foolish to suffer as I did for the sake of a few dollars.

"You can use my letter as a testimonial. It may encourage other poor women who suffer as I did to use your Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. GEO. COLLICUTT, Haliburton, Lot 7, P.E.I.

Read What This Woman Says:

New Moorefield, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in thanking you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had bearing down pains, was dizzy and weak, had pains in lower back and could not be upon my feet long enough to get a meal. As long as I laid on my back I would feel better, but when I would get up those bearing down pains would come back, and the doctor said I had female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the only medicine that helped me and I have been growing stronger ever since I commenced to take it. I hope it will help other suffering women as it has me. You can use this letter."—Mrs. CASSIE LLOYD, New Moorefield, Clark Co., Ohio.

REMBRANDT RELICS

English Collector Secured Master's Palette Knife and Mahlstick

Mr. Frank Sabin, the well known English curio collector, secured in an expedition to Holland two famous Rembrandt relics—his ivory palette knife and his tortoise-shell mahlstick. Their authenticity is vouched for by a vellum scroll, on which are inscribed the autograph signatures of the long line of owners, since Rembrandt's death in 1669, beginning with the illustrious name of Rembrandt's compeer, Jacob van Ruisdael.

Thus he starts the scroll: "I will keep them all my life out of respect for the glorious master," adding the pious wish that in the years to come every successive possessor should hereunto sign his name.

From 1890 until sold to Mr. Sabin the palette knife, mahlstick, and scroll were in the possession of a Dutch family, and one would have thought that these pathetic relics would never have been allowed to leave Holland. They were sold at the time of Rembrandt's death to pay for his burial.

Starting the Day Right

Do you begin the day with a "grouch"? Are you tired in the mornings? Do you fail to benefit by the restorative influence of sleep which should make good the energy and vitality consumed by the day's work?

Then you are rapidly becoming bankrupt so far as health is concerned. You should look to your habits of eating, make sure that you get lots of fresh air in your sleeping apartments, and restore wasted vitality by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure does not induce sleep by any drugging effect, but when you have been using it for a few days and get the nervous system into condition you find yourself resting and sleeping naturally and healthfully. By keeping up this restorative treatment you will be able to make good the waste and fill the exhausted nervous system with new vigour and energy. This means thorough cure of such symptoms as headache, sleeplessness, indigestion and tired, listless feelings.

Manners in Russia

Mme. Viardot, the famous musician, gives one a poor impression of Russian manners from the account she narrates in her "Memories and Adventures" of a visit to the Crimea in 1886. Their "want of logic" amused her.

"It enables them to be scrupulously clean in their persons," she says, "and yet they are not nice in their table manners. One substitutes his finger for his fork, another drinks out of the cream jug, a third cools his perspiring brow with the bread knife."

But, if their manners were doubtful, their music was divine. "The whole nation is thoroughly musical, down to the lowest." And in the matter of manners, as in other things, Russia has travelled a long way since 1886.

Manitoba Indians Pass Resolution to Guard Against Fire

Probably nowhere else in Canada is there a stronger co-operative spirit in forest fire protection than has been developed by the Chief Fire Ranger of the Dominion Government among the rangers, Indians, trappers and packers of the Northern Manitoba Fire District. The work among the Indians has been especially beneficial, for in the past they were notoriously careless, especially in leaving camp fires. But, largely owing to the energy and initiative of the Chief Ranger, the attitude of the Indians has been changed from one of indifference to one of keen interest, so much so, that that official writes: "The conservation of the forests has become as red hot a topic out here as real estate in the West."

Recently, when treaty-money was being paid to the Indians at Cross Lake, a special council meeting of seventy-five to eighty Indians was called, at which an animated discussion of forest fire protection took place. The Chief Ranger writes: "While the meeting was in progress, the Indian Agent and party came, but to the surprise of many the meeting held interest till, by a standing vote, all asserted their willingness to help in the protection of the forests from fire. The chief and councillors wished me to convey to the Director of Forestry at Ottawa this, their resolution."

Whenever possible such councils are attended by the Chief Ranger, and all Indians promising to co-operate with the Dominion rangers are presented with a metal badge of office. The most intelligent of the Indians are engaged as regular fire rangers by the Dominion Government and do very conscientious work. Although the patrol is difficult, being done wholly by canoe, and the weather is often inclement, the eighteen fire rangers in this district average about eighteen miles a day, including Sundays, throughout the summer.

During the whole season, no serious damage was done by fire although many incipient forest fires were extinguished, a fact that speaks well for the efficiency of the patrol and the value of the co-operative spirit inculcated in the Indians.

Wedded Eyebrows.

In Turkey meeting eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste.

It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Rome not only approved of them, but resorted to pigments to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbs state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state," and in Greece of today the man whose brows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a werewolf.—London Spectator.

CHEAPER FENCE-POSTS

Preservatives Prolong Life of the Poorest Woods

As a result of the many inquiries in regard to the preservative treatment of fence-posts, the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, issued a circular on this subject. The great advantage of these treatments is that they keep even cheap woods free from decay for from ten to fifteen years. Many kinds of wood found in farmers' woodlots will last, when used as posts, only four years or thereabouts; after treatment, such as described, they last twice or three times, even four times as long. Creosote, which costs in Canada, from ten to twenty-five cents a gallon, is the best preservative. When boiling-hot creosote is applied liberally with a brush—a paint brush or whitewash brush, for instance—to the butts of well-seasoned posts from which the bark has been removed, it sinks into the wood for a distance of about a quarter of an inch. This should add at least ten years to the life of a post made from a non-durable wood, such as poplar, balsam, fir or spruce. This is not the best method, but it is the simplest and, on a small scale, probably the cheapest. Other methods require that the posts be kept covered in tanks of hot creosote for a longer or shorter period. Besides lengthening the life of the post, the preservative treatment also tends to reduce the cost of the posts in another way, for, as cheap local woods can be used, the first cost and the cost of transportation are usually much lower than for cedar, oak or tamarack. Moreover, as posts will need to be set less often, the proportionate cost of setting the post will be less. Taking into account all the items that go to make up the cost of the post, and comparing this with the number of years it will last, it will be found, in the majority of cases, to be much less for treated posts.

Hampton Court Ghost

In connection with the offer to Mrs. Scott of rooms in Hampton Court Palace, the old stories of the palace ghost were widely and erroneously repeated. Only one room is said to be haunted, the room in which Jane Seymour died after the birth of Edward VI. She was neglected by her nurse, and the ghost of the nurse appears to any other nurse in the room at the time of the birth of a child, and with fatal results to the child. Princess Frederica of Hanover lost her baby at Hampton Court, and some historians believe it was fear of the midwife ghost that caused Prince Frederick, the father of George III., to hurry his wife away from Hampton Court to St. James's Palace for her accouchement—not, as is generally supposed, a Hanoverian desire to annoy his mother.

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weakness and heart disorders, and are recommended by us with the greatest of confidence that they will do what we claim for them.

Mrs. George Burridge, Cobocoak, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IN THE WAKE OF WAR.

Memories of Many Yuletides Spent in Strange Lands.

Few men can conjure up memories of more Yuletides spent in strange lands and under still stranger conditions than Mr. William Maxwell, whose wanderings in the wake of war have made a network over more than half the globe.

Only seven years separate him from a Christmas dinner eaten and enjoyed in the Black Sea, when he was hurrying from Cairo to Teheran at the first rumbling of a revolution after the Shah's death.

Twelve months earlier Mr. Maxwell had seen Yuletide come and go in a very different environment. Then he was luxuriating in a silken tent under the sweltering sun of Central India, with the Maharajah of Gwalior for host, and the Prince and Princess of Wales as fellow-guests—feasting right royally, and finding it difficult to realize the discomforts of his last Christmas, with the thunder of cannon in his ear, and shells shrieking over his head.

This memorable Christmas he had his cheerless lodging in a hill-cave within sight of Port Arthur; and with his fellows he was drinking healths, a few days later, when the feasting was interrupted by news that a Cossack had just come in from Port Arthur, carrying the white flag of surrender.

Christmas of 1903 found him crossing the world to Manchuria on the trail of war. Twelve months earlier he ate his Christmas dinner at Durban while waiting to accompany Mr. Chamberlain on his tour through South Africa.

In 1889 Mr. Maxwell was spending what promised to be the last of his adventurous Christmases among the besieged in Ladysmith. A few days only had passed since the beleaguered garrison had received General Buller's paralyzing message, "I have made my effort and failed." And disease and hunger had already began their ravages.

But Mr. Maxwell and his gallant companions were not the men to allow their spirits to be damped by any conditions. Though shells and shrapnel were raining around them, they sat down as light-heartedly to their Christmas dinner as amid the security of their far-off homes. Even plum-pudding was not lacking at Mr. Maxwell's table, spread under a sailcloth, with Admiral Lambton as genial host; and there was a bottle of whiskey to drain in toasts.

Other Christmases Mr. Maxwell has seen as far apart as Canada and Morocco. One he thankfully spent in Egypt, after accompanying the German Emperor in his breath-taking Palestine pilgrimage; another, but six years ago, he passed most uncomfortably in the train on his way back from the Continent, after attending the Swedish King's funeral.

If Splashed With Vitriol Plunge Into Water at Once.

A burn from sulphuric acid—vitriol, as it is often called—is one of the most painful and disfiguring wounds that can be received. Sulphuric acid is the most powerful of caustic liquids. When it touches the tissues of the body it disorganizes them rapidly, exhausting the water in them, coagulating their albumen and changing the nature of their salts, thus bringing about a destruction that is sometimes fatal. When the burnt place heals it does so with a hideous scar, resembling that of leprosy or lupus.

On being splashed with vitriol there is only one thing to do—rush for the nearest water and plunge the burnt member into it. If the face be splashed it should be instantly immersed in a bowl or pail of water, or in a lake or river if these be handy. The object is to dilute the acid as quickly as possible and so check its rapid corrosion of the flesh, for if let alone it will eat in to a great depth.

Having washed away the acid, cover the wound at once with some alkali, such as limewater or milk of magnesia. If these are not obtainable suds made from pure soap will do. Then treat the wounds as ordinary burns are treated. If the mouth be burned it should be rinsed out with water, following this with limewater or milk of magnesia, which should be kept in the mouth as long as possible.

A burn from ammonia, though not nearly so serious as one from acid, is very painful. It should be treated with a diluted acid wash made from vinegar or the juice of a lemon or lime. Afterward it should be coated with gum tragacanth or gum arabic.—New York World.

AN ANCIENT RACE.

The Pavilland cave—made famous nearly a century ago by the discovery of an ancient human skeleton, long known as the "Red Lady of Pavilland," owing to its bones being rouged over with ochre — was the subject of the annual Huxley memorial lecture of the Royal Anthropological Institute, delivered by Prof. W. J. Sollas. Prof. Sollas said the Pavilland cave recently acquired unexpected importance by the discovery that the skeleton belonged to a man of the Cro-Magnon race, which occupied the greater part of habitable Europe during the Aurignacian age, or some 20,000 years ago, when the glacial epoch had already passed its climax.

An exploration of Pavilland Cave begun and completed during the winter of last year brought to light a large number of flint implements—scrapers, burins, borers, knives—of which the greater part are Aurignacian. The ivory implements, found by Buckland in association with the skeleton and subsequently are of the same age. They include an ivory amulet of the size and shape of an Indian silver bangle, ivory rods, smoothers for dressing fur, and finely pointed awls, which were used as substitutes for sewing needles. Some bone spatulas, or marrow scoops, have also been found. A curious find of Buckland's was the tusk of a mammoth in which a rounded hollow had been formed as a result of a wound involving the pulp-cavity.

Curiously enough, after the lapse of nearly a century, an egg-shaped mass of ivory, which evidently once partly filled this hollow, was found during the excavation of last winter. Further, this ivory "egg" has been carved by some Cro-Magnon man, who had planed it away on each side and at one end so as to diminish its thickness, and had then bored a hole through it for suspension. This was a confirmation of Buckland's assertion that the ivory implements in the cave had been carved out of mammoth ivory. It was evident, concluded the lecturer, therefore, that Pavilland Cave represents the most westerly outpost of the Cro-Magnon race, which extended to the east as far as Moravia and to the south as far as Mentone.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely anoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disords raused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

An Altered Line.

Sir Walter Scott was sitting in his library one day when a tall Highlander, who had been erecting an inn nearby, entered and said:

"May it please you, Sir Walter, I am going to call my place 'The Flodden Inn,' and as ye've written a poem on Flooden field it struck me and the gude wife that you might gie us a line for a motto."

"Have you read the poem?" Sir Walter asked.

"No, sir; I'm nae a reader."

"Well, I should advise you to read the poem and take a line from it."

"And what'll it be?"

"But," cried the Highlander, aghast, "my inn's no a kirk, and the more prayin' there is the less drinkin' will be, and I dinna want that."

"Oh," laughed the poet, "I think I can alter the line. 'Drink, weary traveler, drink and pay'."

At Portsmouth's Docks.

Portsmouth dockyard, where a serious fire has recently occurred, can boast of a good long history. For it was established as long ago as 1540, and even before than it was an important station for the King's ships. Portsmouth's convenience as a landing place was soon realized, for there in 1101 Robert, Duke of Normandy, landed to dispute the throne with Henry I., and later in the same century the Empress Maud chose it as the spot at which to begin operations. This is by no means the dockyard's first fire. In 1776, for instance, it was fired by one Jack the Painter, who, being captured, and sentenced to death, obligingly pointed out to the authorities several excellent fire-preventive ideas.

OPERATIONS OF FAKE POOLROOMS REVEALED

How the King of "Wireless" Wiretappers Relieved One of His Victims of $50,000 in Just Six Seconds

MONEY flashing in big wads; hoarse voices calling bets; 'phone bells ringing; messengers dashing hither and thither; telegraph sounders clicking; excited groups circling about bulletin boards; everything in a tense yet subdued hubbub as John J. Felix hurried through the smoke laden atmosphere and thrust $50,000 into the "cashier" window of a fake poolroom to bet on a fake horse running in a fake race, duly programmed to yield a half a million dollars by means of a fake wire tapping scheme. It took in actual time just six ticks of the clock for a talonlike hand to reach through the "cashier" window, grab the $50,000 and jerk the notes back to the other side of the partition. That was the last that Felix ever saw of his money.

It was the afternoon of February 6, 1905, when this famous bet was made. The poolroom was very close to the old Fifth Avenue Hotel, in New York city, and it was fitted up to play the plausible poolroom part in a most natural and convincing way. Nerve, cunning and daring subterfuge made the place the climax of one of the neatest swindling schemes ever dovetailed together. And to think of the perpetrators sticking their fingers to their noses at the courts of the State and going scot free! Not a single instance of final conviction! Not a solitary stroke of punishment! But—the story will tell you.

Felix was a manufacturer of musical instruments, with a place just off Fifth avenue, in the "Big City." He was a man who took an interest in observing the various methods by which an opinion on a hazard might be backed with money. Somehow, Felix's predilection for paying attention to pastimes of chance became known until it reached westward through Thirty-first street to the vicinity of Broadway, where men of rapid-fire gambling tendencies congregated. It also became known at the same time that hidden in a secret compartment of the Felix office safe were fifty one thousand dollar bills "just aching to be taken out for a walk," as the Broadway gamblers and crooks put it. They determined to give this money an airing.

At the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-first street, four o'clock, February 5, 1905—the day before the $50,000 was grabbed by the talonlike hand of the fake "cashier"—an immaculately groomed and garbed gentleman gave his mustache a final pull and a pat as he mentally closed all the details necessary to properly approach Felix and acquire the $50,000. Dressed in the height of allowable fashion, sleek and shining, swinging a nonchalant cane and puffing a prosperous cigar, he sauntered from the corner into the manufacturer's office.

This man of winning and attractive personality was none other than the notorious Christopher J. Tracy, justly called and crowned the King of the Fake Wire Tappers. It was his brain that engineered the scheme resulting in the transfer of the $50,000 from the Felix office safe to the pockets of himself and his confederates. They buried Tracy only the other day—which is partly why this is written—and if some of his baud admirers had their way his tombstone would bear words chiselled somewhat after this fashion:—"Here lies the man who gave the penal code of New York State a perpetual vertigo."

Tracy entered the Felix office the quintessence of urbane suavity. Profusely, yet not fulsomely, apologetic, and in crispily polished phrases, he introduced himself as one who had met Felix in a "hazard parlor" and had been attracted to him by his sportsmanlike bearing. Passing by he had noticed the manufacturer entering his place of business and had recalled him at once. It was impossible to withstand the temptation to renew acquaintance, so he had made bold to enter. As he used this affable introductory wedge the "King's" quick glance of anticipatory relish took in the office safe in the corner containing the quarry.

Felix was really glad to meet Tracy—or Mr. Charles J. Tompkins, as the "King" styled himself for this venture—and you needn't smile in a sarcastically superior way to see how easily the clever crook wormed his way into his victim's confidence. You never met Tracy or you wouldn't smile. Take it from the writer, Tracy was one to convince you that bullets were huckleberries and that stage money would buy a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Tracy just as he was saying goodby at the door turned in a most casual way and expressed a polished regret that Felix did not have the time to learn of a magnificently good and "sure thing" that had been imparted to him by a gentleman "on honor" not to divulge a single part of it. Felix had the time and insisted that he had it. He was already captivated by Tracy and was eager to discover how he might become an associate of his visitor. This was the "sure thing" explained in velvety manner:—

"You see, Mr. Felix, there's a very close friend of mine—a very close friend, indeed—who is in a position to give advance information connected with horse racing. He can't give the information a long way ahead, you understand, not any more than you and I can give it. That's only a guess or an opinion when it's given that way. He gives, or can give, positive information, immediately after the race is over—before anybody else gets it!"

Tracy's piercing glance seemed to look right through Felix as he uttered the words, "before anybody else gets it." The "King" saw at once by the intent expression of Felix that the bait had caught the fish at the very first nibble. He went on:—

"My friend has control of the telegraphic reports of the races that are sent out from the big tracks. He can retard these reports after a race is over for fully three minutes if need be—at any rate from one to three minutes. He can open the telegraphic circuit from the track and keep it open until he has sent in the news by private wire to a particular friend in the city. And—I'm—that—kind—of—a—particular—friend, Mr. Felix."

"Step back here, won't you, and sit down while you tell me more about it," said Felix eagerly, for he saw possibilities in the preface that strongly appealed to his interest in hazards. Tracy went further back in the place and sat down near the safe in which reposed the $50,000 he was destined to get.

"There isn't much more to say. I see you about understand it all now," he said with a significant smile which clinched the hold he had obtained on Felix's credulity in short order. "If I ask him, my friend will open the regular telegraphic circuit reaching from here to the track and immediately wire us or telephone us in by private line which horse has won in any race. He will retard the information as to which horse has won a race until we have had time to place a bet on the winner in some poolroom. Immediately after the bet is placed he will restore the regular telegraphic circuit and the official report of the race will be sent in. You see how easily it can all be done."

"Yes, I see—how it—can be done," answered Felix, with comprehensive earnestness and a bettor's gleam in his eye.

"Of course," purred on Tracy, "it may not seem to a great many that the scheme is exactly square. But then, you know, Mr. Felix, the whole horse racing game is not square. They get our money so often, our good money, when we place it down to back a square horse to run a square race, only to find out afterward that the jockey had been crooked and the horse has been doped or 'pulled' so he could not win. My friend is the soul of honor in all other things, Mr. Felix, but in this one matter he avers that it is only paying these race track poolroom sharps back in their own coin. And I think I pretty nearly agree with him. A number of stock broker friends of mine are in on the scheme and are already making a good bit of pocket money from it, giving my friend who regards the information a decent percentage for his trouble. I'd like you to meet some of these brokers, Mr. Felix. What do you say to a little walk right now? I'll introduce you as one of us, and they'll be quite free with you. To prove it, just say laughingly to them, 'Retarded information,' and you'll see them nod and wink their knowledge of what you're talking about. There is not the slightest reason, Mr. Felix, why you shouldn't be a very rich man in a very short while. These brokers get their private information from my friend over their private quotation wire. Then they place bets at once in a nearby poolroom. Necessarily they always win."

Right gladly Mr. Felix went with Mr. Tracy-Tompkins to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, a few blocks distant. Off one of the main corridors was a suite of stock broker's offices. Tracy pulled a key from his pocket, opened one of the doors and ushered his companion within. It was a genuine stock broker's office all right. Felix didn't know it, but the broker and his clerks had gone for the day. They hadn't the least idea what "Mr. Tompkins" was. The key he used was a "skeleton" purposely made to unlock the doors leading to the confidence "suckers."

Felix had never met so many moneyed men in so few minutes in his life. Tracy introduced him to "Jim" Gates—who likes a little plunge, you know," and a number of other well dressed and solid looking citizens, who were loudly discussing the stock market. To the man "Gates" Felix presumed to smile and "Retarded information," and received return the wink and the nod of significant comprehension that Tracy hoped assured him would be forthcoming.

"I have a little cash straight scheme," said Felix to Tracy as they shook hands in parting. "Suppose I meet you to-morrow and bring it along. If the thing looks good I'd like to go in it."

"Certainly, Mr. Felix, surely," said Tracy with a breezy well bred smile that was so captivating, "just as you say. Try it out to-morrow. I intend to use the system myself. Watch me grow—as to pile. We'll go to a poolroom right near here. I'll have one of the clerks in the Fifth Avenue Hotel broker's office keep at the telephone wire connected with the poolroom. Soon as my friend at the track opens the regular telegraph wire and retards the information so that he can apprise us over the broker's wire of the winner the clerk in the office will call me up at the poolroom and I'll know how to place my bets. And, as I stated before, I'm bound to win. You see how."

Next day, a fatal $50,000 day for Felix, he met "Mr. Tompkins" and was escorted to the "nearby poolroom." It certainly had all the marks of the genuine betting rendezvous. Everything was going on just like in poolrooms where there is no "wire-tapping" scheme afoot—the bustle, the hustle, the betting, the discussion of horse form, the flashing of bills of large denomination and the buzz that usually follows the announcement of results when men "go broke" or add to their bank rolls.

The telephone bell rang. Tracy winked at Felix and soon his name was called by a seemingly bona fide telephone desk attendant. He hurried to the 'phone booth. He was there but an instant. He rushed out, pulled a great wad of bills from his pocket and said in a loud voice at the "cashier's" window, "$5,000 on Rollinsby." Felix had noted on the betting odds blackboard that 10 to 1 was the price on Rollinsby.

It seemed that "Mr. Tompkins" had hardly time enough to walk from the "cashier's" window to the side of Felix before the "telegraph operator" announced in a loud voice, "Rollinsby wins!" Instantly Tracy was surrounded by a group who congratulated him. "Fine tip" and "put us wise next time" were the comments. Felix saw Tracy later hand in his "ticket" to the "cashier" and receive a veritable mountain of gold certificates in return. At least they looked like genuine money. The fact is, a few of the outside bills were the regular notes issued by Uncle Sam's Bureau of Engraving.

Felix felt an instant envy to think that another had gotten such a great haul of money that should have been his—at least he should have won as much. He had cleaned his office safe of its $50,000 and it rested against his beating heart in the inside pocket of his waistcoat. Another race started. A number of bets were made by men standing around. They seemed bets, all right. The men went through regular betting motions and it all looked proper to Felix. Some of the men pulled away fair sized "rolls" when the result was announced.

"You're hitting us hard to-day," remarked the "cashier" sarcastically through his window, "but we'll get it back. You know you can't stop gambling. We got a million and a half behind us to feed to you fellows until we begin to get you in the come back."

"We're satisfied to take ours from you now and let you take the chances of the come back," grinned one of the "winners," and then there was a regular stage guffaw, just as though the fake bettors had heard an unprintable poke.

The telephone bell jingled again.

"Mr. Tompkins wanted right away!" cried the telephone attendant. Tracy fairly leaped to the booth. Felix followed him close, determined not to miss anything this time. Out popped Tracy so quickly that Felix well might have wondered how he had had time to get anything over the 'phone.

"What's the horse? What's the horse?" he urged of Tracy as the "King" went on a hop, skip and jump toward the "cashier."

"Old Stone—be sure to get it right—Old Stone," snapped Tracy. Anybody in the room could have heard what he said, although he went through the pretence of putting his lips close to the ear of Felix. The fact is, they all did hear it. They knew Tracy was going to say it. Most of them already had their overcoats on and were edging toward the door of the "poolroom."

Tracy stopped at the window a second, togging at his pocket to unloosen his wad. Felix couldn't wait for him, although the tip came from him. He planked his roll of gold certificates down in front of the window and then thrust them through into the hand of the "cashier."

"Fifty thousand dollars on Old Stone!"

He stood to win $500,000 on the wager!

Felix was afraid the size of the bet might cause the proprietors to refuse it. He need not have been nervous. A ticket was thrown to him. For the first time he thought of having beaten "Mr. Tompkins" to the window. Where was "Tompkins," anyway? Nowhere in sight.

"Hurry call came for 'Mr. Tompkins'—he had to go," said the telephone attendant, and Felix noticed he had his overcoat and hat on.

"Funny he didn't stay to bet on that last race," said Felix in a puzzled way. "He had a pretty sure tip. I bet on it."

"Oh, 'Mr. Tompkins' is a true sport," said the telephone attendant. "He figures what he don't get to-day he'll get to-morrow. Good day. That's the last race. I'm going home."

Felix waited until the "telegraph operator" called out:—"Summertime wins!" You know how he felt and acted. Figure out how you would look in the "movies" if it suddenly dawned on you that you had lost $50,000 in six seconds. But come to think of it no one can figure it out until he actually loses it. Felix looked for the "cashier" and he had gone. He turned around to ask the "operator" a question and he was gone. By the time he wheeled about again the bettors were gone, and, of course, you have begun to suspect there never was a "particular friend." Tracy had a very good start, for the instant Felix placed his $50,000 in the window he left the room by a back way and, opening a door behind the "cashier," that active receiver of bets handed him the full Felix roll.

Down to Police Headquarters hurried Felix. They threw out the net. "Big" Lawson, one of Tracy's chief associates, fled to Australia, where he still is. After a hunt of several months they caught the "King." He was tried and convicted. You might think that this properly ends the chronicle. Not at all. It only begins the strange part of it. Tracy had money and a good lawyer. He carried his case to the Court of Appeals of New York State.

And a decision of this august tribunal released the "King of the Fake Wire Tappers." Why, and how? Because Felix clearly intended to swindle as much as Tracy did. You must come into court with clean hands, you know. Recollect, fake wire tapping is distinct from real wire tapping, which is punishable because you must not molest a telegraph wire to steal news. The decision opened the eyes even of lawyers, because it practically proclaimed that there is no legal punishment for the swindling game of fake wire tapping. The man who risks his money in such a scheme becomes a party to a questionable transaction. It may be paradoxical, but you can swindle a man up to his eyes and not be amenable to punishment—if the man you swindle planned to become your swindling partner. Bench, Bar and police were bewildered for a time when it first dawned on them that the penal code held no penalty for the fake wire tapper.

"It pays to be a predatory genius," said "King" Tracy as he walked forth a free man upon the announcement of the Court of Appeals decision.

Every Animal Has Its Own Note, but Heine's Fiddle Failed to Soothe the Hyena's Savage Breast

(From Our New York Correspondent.)

"IS it true that every animal has a musical note?" "Bill" Snyder, of the Central Park "Zoo," was asked.

"Sure," replied the man who knows the city's animals as well as a mother knows her own children. "Animals are just like people. Some of them know a lot and some of them haven't sense enough to go in out of the rain if they weren't chased in. Some of them love music and some of them hate it."

"What do they do when they hear music?"

"Bill" Snyder paused, the cleaver with which he was cutting up meat for the animals' chief meal suspended in the air. "Just come around some day and see." He went on cutting meat and made it apparent that the conversation, so far as he was concerned, was ended. The interrogator knew he was too ignorant of animals for the keeper to spend much time with him. If he would put himself in the position of a disciple all right, "Bill" would instruct him.

So one morning the writer, the artist and the musician arrived early. "Bill" was cutting meat and stopped to look disapprovingly at the trio. "We want to find out about the musical tastes of the various animals," the reporter put in defensively.

"Why didn't you come earlier?"

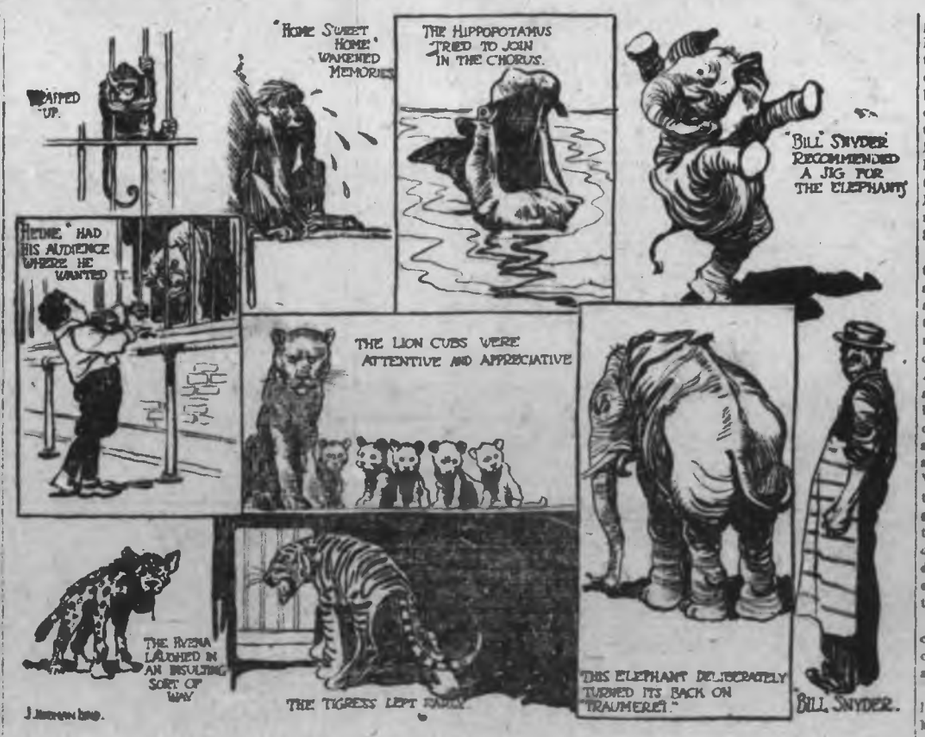
"Why, it is only nine o'clock now?"

"H'm, you should have been here at half-past seven. What's the use of comin' 'round after the crowds get here. Th' animals are just lookin' for peanuts then. Haven't got their minds on anything else."

In spite of these discouraging remarks, the investigators of the musical abilities of animals decided to make a test. They wandered first into the lion house, and Heine, taking his violin from the case, began to play "America." Perhaps the handsome lioness thought it was "God Save the King," which she had heard in India before she was shipped to far away America. At any rate she listened in mute and dignified appreciation, and she and her five tawny cubs, ranged about her in exactly the same attitude and with the same expression, made a wonderful audience. The old lion in the next cage, too, stopped his nervous promenade and listened quietly, peering after the player wistfully as he went on to the further cages. Stopping in front of a tigress Heine began to play again. The animal looked up, startled. Her mate promptly came in from the next cage and escorted her out, sending her into the yard while he took up his position next to the grating and listened. Several times the tigress put in her head, but her lord and master frowned upon her and she retreated. Evidently he did not think the music suitable for her to hear, but he enjoyed it very much himself. "Try it on the hippopotami," urged George Sichert, the keeper. The uncouth creatures were floating about sluggishly in their tanks, but as soon as the music began they opened their huge mouths, and one could hardly tell whether it was with intent to join in the chorus or to protest against the sounds. Sichert was authority, however, for the theory that they did not like it. "Lions love the music; they will listen to it for hours, but the hippopotamus gets mad," he stated.

"Bill" Snyder rates the intelligence of elephants very high. The investigators were therefore deeply interested in watching the effect of the violin strains upon them. As a tribute to their mental superiority Heine drew forth the dulcet strains of "Traumerei" from his violin, but, to the amazement of the party, the elephant with great deliberation and deliberateness of purpose turned his back and continued in that attitude until the selection was finished.

"Try an Irish jig," recommended "Bill" Snyder. "The animals up here are great friends of the Irish. They've seen them for so many years they feel well acquainted with them." There was no doubt about the elephant's regard for the Irish tunes. When they were played he showed his appreciation in such a way that you would have taken him for an Irishman. One of Snyder's statement that the Central Park elephants, while plainly disapproving, animals love Irish music.



"'Way down upon the Suwanee River" played Heine as he entered the monkey house. One big monkey protested and threw his perch back and forth with a clatter in an attempt to drown the sound, but two others flew to the front of the cage and quarrelled for the best place as they clung to the bars. "Far, far from home," sang the violin, and a forlorn looking monkey wiped first one eye and then the other. It was almost more than he could bear and he had a nice sentimental time weeping over his "Home, Sweet Home."

The wolves and the foxes were a cantankerous looking lot and thoroughly unappreciative. Music had no charms to soothe the savagery in their breasts. If they could have got at the musician, the reporter and the artist they would undoubtedly have taken a harsh revenge. As for the hyena—well, it was hard to analyze the effect that music has on him, but the influence upon the musician was only too evident. The notes got curiously ajar and finally one of the strings snapped as if the snarling beast had bitten it off. While Heine was repairing the damages the interested visitors, who had been gradually collecting, gave their views on the subject of animals and music. "My dog howls when he hears music, and he doesn't howl the same way for all kinds, either," remarked a boy. "He knows tunes."

"Huh, dogs ain't wild beasts," said his companion. "They're different. You can't expect a wild beast to know a tune any better than a wild man."

"These beasts aren't wild," ventured a little girl. "They're real tame. I come here every week and I'm sure some of them would like music—real music." Heine was oblivious of this qualification.

"Yes," agreed the reporter, "these beasts are too tame to furnish a very good illustration of the effect of music on animals. They seem very blase, and they must hear the hurdy-gurdies and whistling and all kinds of noises and be so bored with talk and attention that it is hard for them to have a new sensation."

"They have their own ideas about music, I tell you," persisted "Bill" Snyder, "but you have to get them alone for these refined feelings to come out. It's peanuts as soon as the people begin to come that they're after. They don't think of anything else then." As he concluded, the musician gave a final and unexpected scrape to his violin and from the throats of half a dozen animals went up a confusion of cries. "For or against?" inquired the reporter. "I give it up."

Trees as Shelters in Thunderstorms.

AT the time of year when storms accompanied by thunder and lightning are of frequent occurrence and cause numerous accidents the wayfarer invariably seems to take shelter under trees; some people, however, believe that in so doing they are running greater risks from the lightning. Is there any truth in this belief?

Among the ancients it was believed that laurels were never struck by lightning. Seneca, Pliny and Plutarch all affirm this to be the case. At the first peal of thunder Emperor Tiberius placed a laurel wreath on his brow and took refuge in a cellar.

Fig and damson trees, as well as the white vine, box and peach trees, were also popularly credited with immunity from lightning. Even to-day the same quality is attributed in certain countries to firs, pines, beeches, birches and to limes. Beeches in particular have a great reputation in this respect. An old proverb current at Heidelberg advises the traveler overtaken by a thunderstorm to avoid pines and oaks, but to try to find a beech. In the State of Tennessee the inhabitants used formerly to take refuge in the beech woods at the sound of the storm.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

One morning three weeks ago when our breakfast was interrupted by a joyful telephone message from Uncle Bob saying that a little daughter had arrived at his house, I exclaimed, "I'm so glad it's a girl. Maybe Betty will name her for me."

"I wouldn't count on that honour," said father in the grumpy way he sometimes has.

"I don't see why she shouldn't," I insisted. "Lucile is the prettiest of all our family names, and Betty and I have been life-long friends, and I'm sure I'm Uncle Bob's favourite niece."

"Well, possibly you'll win out," said father, "but if I were you I shouldn't put up any money on it."

Father's certainty that Betty would not name the baby for me was so exasperating that I said, "I'll bet you one dollar, daddy, that my new cousin will be christened Lucile."

"Done," said father. So I laughingly called the rest of the family to witness the bet.

"What are you going to name the little darling?" I asked the first time I was taken into Betty's room to see the baby.

"There's only one name for our girl, isn't there, Betty!" said Uncle Bob.

That very evening, however, he dropped in at our house and said to mother, "Sister, Betty and I wish you to be godmother to our little Elizabeth."

"Elisabeth!" I repeated in astonishment.

"Certainly. There is one name for Betty's daughter, and, of course, that's her own, Elisabeth," declared Uncle Bob.

Last Sunday, which was the day appointed for the baby's baptism, mother woke up with a sore throat and a headache, and though she at first declared that she would get up in the afternoon and go to the church, I persuaded her that it would be extremely unwise.

"You ought to take care of yourself, dear," I said. "And think how dreadful it would be if you should give the baby your cold."

"But I'm afraid Bob and Betty will be awfully disappointed if I am not there to stand godmother as we have planned."

"I'll go as your proxy," I told her, "and you'll be the real godmother even if I do hold the baby and make the responses."

"I suppose that will have to do," mourned mother, who was quite ill.

"Mother is ill, and I'll have to be her proxy," I explained to Uncle Bob when I met him with the nurse and the baby in the vestibule of the church. "How is Betty?"

"She's getting stronger every day and she wants all the family to come around to the house after the ceremony," he replied.

"Father and Cousin Fannie stayed at home with mother, but, of course, I'll be glad to go," I told him.

"I wish it hadn't turned out this way," declared Uncle Bob in a tone of irritation. The baby began to fret, and I suggested that we hurry in, as the minister was waiting for us.

"Do let me hold the pet," I begged the nurse as our little party walked through the empty church and grouped itself around the front, but the baby cried so much that I gave her to Uncle Bob, and he was still trying to soothe her when the clergyman said, "Name this child."

"Lucile," I answered.

"Lucile," said the clergyman, going on with the service.

"But she was to be have been named Elizabeth," exclaimed Uncle Bob fiercely the instant the ceremony was over.

"Why, my dear sir, the name 'Lucile' was given me when I asked the name of the child," said the old minister, looking perplexed and distressed. "There must be some misunderstanding."

"There decidedly is a misunderstanding," said Uncle Bob angrily. But the baby was now crying piteously, and the nurse insisted that it be taken home for its nourishment.

"Why did you do it, Lucile?" demanded Uncle Bob as we walked down the aisle.

"Well," I explained, "you didn't answer the minister and I was so nervous and excited that I just called out the first name I thought of and that was my own."

"Ah! Easily explained!" he said in a most unpleasant tone.

"Perhaps I'd better not go home with you after all," I said as they were getting into the taxi. "Mother may need me."

"Very well," he replied. Then he went away without another word. He treats me very rude at times.

That evening Uncle Bob called on mother and made her head ache much worse, I'm sure, by telling her that Betty was frightfully upset by what he was pleased to call the "Christening fiasco."

"She said it should have been postponed until you were well enough to come," he told mother, "and she wants it all done over again and done right."

I think I never heard of anything sillier than to have a baby baptised a second time, but if Betty wishes it done it will be done, for she is one of those persistent persons who always get their own way.

When I said to father that anyway I had won our bet, he replied, "No, you can't bunko your old dad."

"Why, daddy," I protested, "you know the baby was christened 'Lucile.'"

"Yes, but how did it happen?" he asked.

I thought it cruel of him to treat me so, for he must have known that Uncle Bob, Betty and mother had already made me exceedingly unhappy about my unfortunate little mistake."

Fatality of Whooping Cough

Many parents think lightly of whooping cough, and treat it as a necessary evil, not giving the child who has it any special attention.

The seriousness of whooping cough was emphasized by the Medical Health Officer in Toronto a few months ago, when he reported 14 deaths during the month from whooping cough, and only ten from scarlet fever, typhoid fever and measles combined.

So many people write to us about the relief and cure of whooping cough by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine that we can recommend it with the greatest confidence.

It loosens the cough, aids expectoration, and by its soothing influence prevents the terrible paroxysms of coughing which are so distressing to witness, and which wear away the strength of the child. By using this treatment the disease is held in check, and cured in a few weeks, instead of months. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the bottle you buy. There are many imitations.

Babies and Sleep.

Infants cannot sleep too long, but may be deprived of needed rest if placed in light rooms or awakened by noises. Nothing so unnerves the child as lack of rest, and the health may be permanently ruined if it does not sleep the fourteen hours or more that it should.

During an interval in London W. C. Scully, so he tells in "Further Reminiscences of a South African Pioneer," had rooms in Pimlico with a landlady of snobbish tendencies, who made a cult of "superior persons." He tells this amusing experience:

"I had been for a short visit to Rudyard Kipling at Rottingdean and had brought back a bunch of roses from his garden. Seeing that Mrs. Wand was so proud of her celebrities, I thought I would let her know that I, too, knew a celebrity, so when she came to set the breakfast table next morning I pointed to the flowers and said:

"'There, Mrs. Wand, you would never guess where these roses came from. They came from the garden of the great Mr. Kipling.'

"'Mr. Kipling? 'Oo's 'e?'

"'Good gracious!' I exclaimed. 'Surely you know who Mr. Kipling is. Why, his autograph is worth a guinea!'

"Mrs. Wand left the room without replying. She returned a few minutes later with a look of skepticism on her face and, as she put down the toast rack, remarked:

Monument to a Quack.

"That the men who make great medical discoveries and who perform wonderful surgical operations are honored in life and that imposing monuments to their memory are reared when they have passed away seems only fitting," says a writer in the Hamburg Fremdenblatt, "but that a quack whose name as such has for generations been known in Germany should be thus honored is remarkable. There are not many children in Germany who do not know the song which begins thus:

"I am the Dr. Eisenbart.
Zwillewillewillkomosa!
I cure the people by my art.
Zwillewillewillkomosa!
The blind I treat so that they walk,
And the lame I teach to talk.
Zwillewillewillkam—heirassa,
Zwillewillewillkom—bom!

"A stately monument showing Dr. Eisenbart extracting a tooth from a writhing boy, the work of Professor Eberlein, has been erected at Hann-Munden, where the 'wonder doctor' was born."

Deed of Daring.

"Have you 'Deeds of Daring?'" inquired the lady in the book store.

"Yes, madam," responded the bright clerk. "There is a little pamphlet entitled 'How to Call Down the Janitor.'"—Chicago News.

Anatomically Speaking.

"Every one has some secret sorrow," said the philosophic friend.

A Liberal Education.

That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will and does with ease and pleasure all the work that as a mechanism it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its parts of equal strength, and in smooth working order; ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work and spin the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art; to hate all vileness and to respect others as himself.

Such a man and no other, I conceive, has had a liberal education.—Thomas Henry Huxley in "Lay Sermons."

Trees and Fools.

Any fool can destroy trees. They cannot run away, and if they could they would still be destroyed—chased and hunted down as long as fun or a dollar could be got out of their bark hides, branching horns or magnificent bole backbones. Few that fell trees plant them. Nor would planting avail much toward getting back anything like the noble primeval forests. During a man's life only saplings can be grown in the place of the old trees, tens of centuries old, that have been destroyed. It took more than 3,000 years to make some of the trees in these western woods—trees that are still standing in perfect strength and beauty, waving and singing in the mighty forests of the Sierras. God has cared for these trees, saved them from drought, disease, avalanches and a thousand training, leveling tempests and floods, but he cannot save them from fools. Only Uncle Sam can do that.—John Muir.

Saw the Practical Side.

Ideas of advancement in South American are aesthetic, while in the United States they run along practical lines. As an indication of the uses to which capital has been applied in South America and the difference in temperament of the people of that part of the western world as compared with the inhabitants of the United States a story is told of a meeting between a Brazilian promoter and an American prospector at one of the new cities which have recently sprung up on the banks of the Amazon. The native pointed with pride to a pretentious open house overlooking the mighty river and asked the stranger if the site was not superb. "Well," said the man from one of our western states, "I think it would be a mighty fine place for a sawmill!"

Do you Believe in going straight to the weak spot in treating disease? If so, you will never use anything but Pepa for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and throat and lung troubles. Listen why!

Pepa are tiny tablets, which contain rich medicinal ingredients, so prepared that they turn into vapour in the mouth, and are breathed down to the throat, the breathing tubes and lungs direct.

Cough mixtures go—not to the lungs and chest at all, but to the stomach. There is absolutely no direct connection between stomach and lungs.

When you have a bad cold, your digestion is weakened. You lose appetite, and if a man, your usual smoke does not "taste good." In other words, your digestive system is looking tone. All cough mixtures make this condition worse.

Surprising how they end coughs, catarrh, bronchitis, sore-throat, "clergyman's throat," asthma, and all lung troubles. Contain no poison, and are best for children.

Dr. Gordon Stables says:—"If you wish to ease and end a cough, if you desire to loosen tickling phlegm, and clear the throat and the breathing tubes, use Pepa. The pine fumes and balsamic fumes, so beneficial in throat and lung trouble, which are liberated when a Pep is put into the mouth, also serve another good purpose. They are strongly germicidal, and germs of disease in the mouth, on the palate, in the throat, and in the breathing tubes, are at once destroyed by their action."

Have you tried this famous remedy? If not, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail 2c (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Pepa Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Pepa at 50c. box.

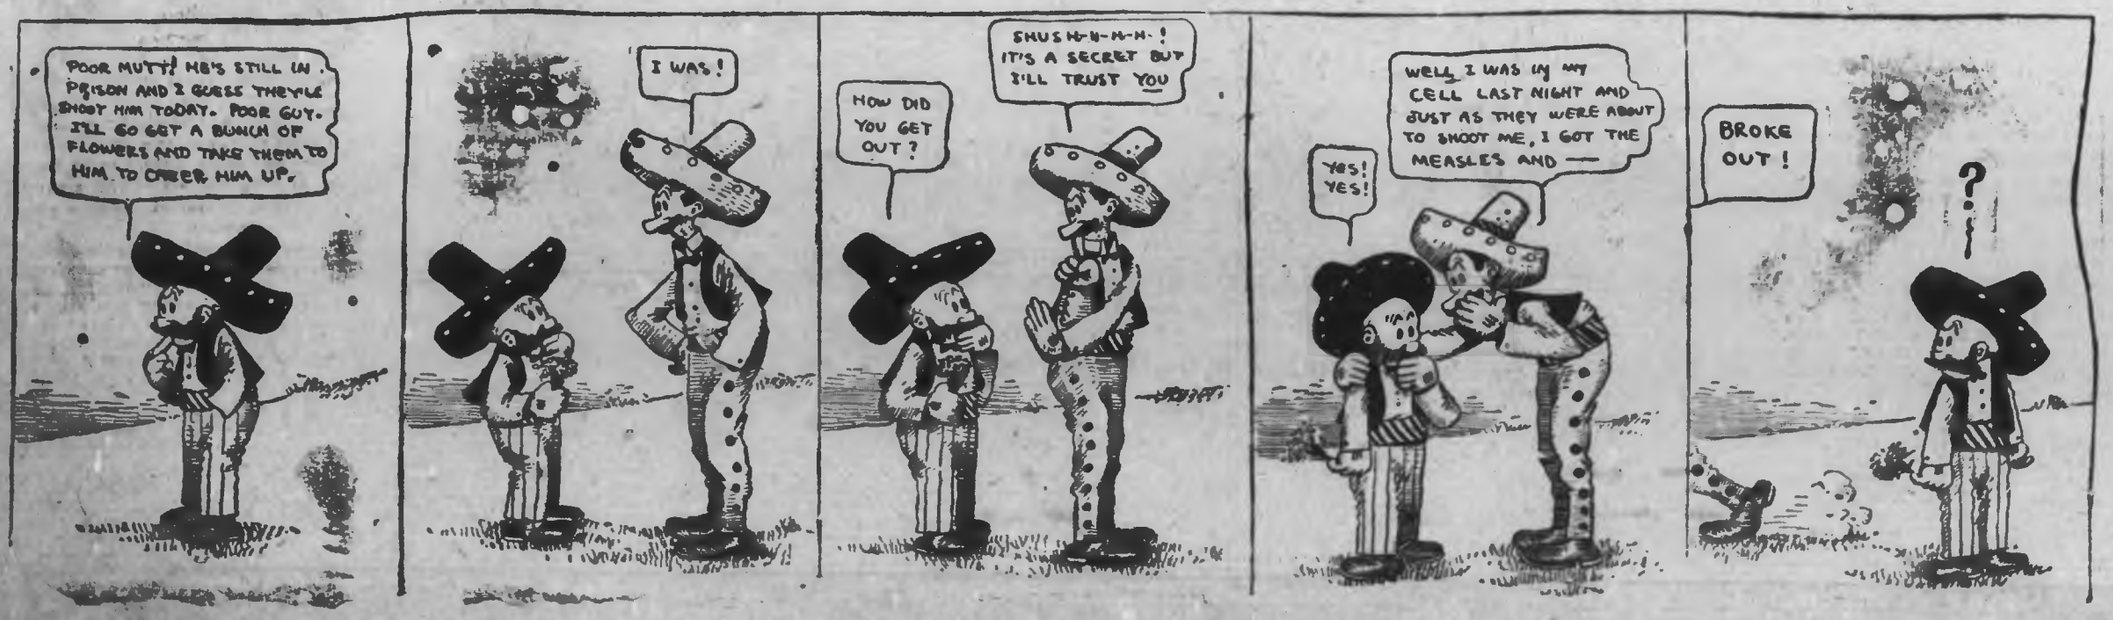
Mutt Should Have Been Shot For This One -:- -:- By "Bud" Fishe



GIRLS! GIRLS! YOU JUST MUST TRY THIS! IT DOUBLES THE BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

For 25 cents you can make your hair lustrous, fluffy and abundant

Immediately—Yes! Certain? — that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair, growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

LITERACY NO TEST.

President Wilson Certain To Veto Immigration Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — President Wilson will veto the Burnett immigration bill if it comes to him for signature with the so-called literacy test contained in it.

This became known from an authoritative quarter last night after Chairman Smith of the Senate Immigration Committee had announced that the bill, virtually as it passed the House, including the literacy test, would be favorably reported to the Senate soon. Prospects are that the bill will pass the Senate as reported from the committee, but the measure never will become law, according to close friends of the President. The President does not consider literacy a test of character and believes some other means should be devised to prevent undesirable aliens from entering the United States.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Spreads.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The hog cholera situation in Middlesex County is assuming more serious proportions, and daily the Government inspectors are condemning a large number of the animals. The first outbreak was discovered a week ago, and has spread rapidly. It is thought that the feeding to the animals of restaurant refuse may have brought on the epidemic. The Government experts are making a thorough investigation. Animals on two farms were ordered destroyed yesterday morning.

WOKE UP BLACKBURN.

Suffragettes Discharged Historic Cannon at Night.

BLACKBURN, Eng., Feb. 17.—Militant suffragettes fired during Sunday night a huge cannon captured from the Russians in one of the battles of the Crimean war, and which for sixty years had stood as an ornament in the City Park.

The whole city was shaken and the population alarmed by the terrific explosion, and people flocked into the streets in the darkness, fearing that a mine disaster had occurred in the neighborhood.

In the vicinity, attached to a tree, floated a long strip of calico inscribed: "Wake up, Blackburn! The Labor party, which claims to stand for justice and freedom, supports a Government that tortures women under the infamous 'Cat and Mouse' Act."

The idea of the militants was to rouse the workers of the city to support their propaganda.

Dog Had Family En Route.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 17. — Because a blooded British setter bought by Eugene Simpson of this city at Nanaimo, B.C., gave birth to six puppies while en route to Portland, the animal and her family have been held by Seattle customs officials.

Gypsy Girl is the mother dog's name. Mr. Simpson paid $150 for her. A manifest accompanying her called for "one English setter dog," and the customs men declared they could not pass seven dogs on it, even though six of them were only day-old babies.

Mr. Simpson says he may have to appeal to Washington to get his canine family.

Alleges "Third Degree."

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—In the police court yesterday Joseph Lovery, under arrest for the murder of Tony Menetti, proprietor of a restaurant on Vitre street, on Feb. 1, was committed for trial. Lovery protested his innocence and asked to be let go. The police, he said, on the night of the murder insisted that he knew who had committed the crime. They said if he did not tell they would charge him.

Judge Leet replied that he could not take the responsibility of discharging the accused, although the evidence he had introduced might be favorable.

Ignores Labor Resolutions.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Morning Post has a cable from Sydney, which says that Premier Cook has refused to forward to the Imperial Government resolutions from Australian trades unions protesting against South African deportations.

Towed Into Port.

BEAUFFORT, N.C., Feb. 17.—Leaking badly and with sails stripped from her masts by gales, the schooner Bayard Hopkins was towed into Cape Lookout Cove for temporary refuge last night by the revenue cutter Seminole. One member of the schooner's crew was reported in a serious condition, having been injured while attempting to repair the ship's rigging.

BYLAW IS PASSED.

Meaford Council Gives Local Option Measure Third Reading.

MEAFORD, Feb. 17.—Local option is now an accomplished fact here, so far as the Town Council is concerned. The council held a special session here yesterday to give the required third reading to the bylaw. Had it not been passed yesterday much trouble would probably have ensued, as the six weeks' time limit for the final passing terminated last night.

Every member of the council was present in the chamber, which was crowded chiefly by supporters of the measure. The opposition, through Mr. J. P. Barlow, urged that the measure be not passed pending the settlement of the appeal against the recently decided case b. Mr. Justice Hodgins in Toronto. It was stated that the council had nothing to lose by deferring the matter.

The town clerk explained the proceedings and the outcome of the recent trial, and made reference to the notice of appeal lodged by the plaintiff against the decision to set aside the injunction restraining the council from giving the third reading.

Most of the discussion was heard while the council was in committee of the whole, but when the matter was finally submitted to council it was passed by a large majority.

BIG HOIST BURNS.

Northern Navigation Coaling Plant Is Destroyed.

SARNIA, Feb. 17.—The mammoth coal hoist at Point Edward Grand Trunk dock, the property of the Northern Navigation Co., caught fire about noon yesterday and was almost totally destroyed, entailing a loss to the company of something like $40,000. The fire originated in the boiler house and quickly spread until the entire structure was a mass of flames. From the coal house it was carried to a large pile of coal, and this is still burning. The Grand Trunk fire engine and two tugs of the Reid Wrecking Co. were called and did good work. The Sarnia fire department did much to prevent the spread of the fire to the large freight sheds of the Grand Trunk, which adjoin the burned coal hoist.

Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease.

St. Phillips, Sask., Feb. 16.—(Special.)—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighbourhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached. I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Bloody Battle In Ecuador.

PANAMA, Feb. 17.—Late advices from Esmeraldas, Ecuador, report that the city is still in the hands of the rebels under Col. Carlos Concha, who have succeeded in repulsing the Federals after heavy fighting, in which the losses on both sides were large.

The greater part of the city has been burned, but the cable office escaped destruction. It is guarded, however, by a rebel detachment, and had suspended business.

Esmeraldas is still under blockade and communication is closed.

Reforms In Belgian Congo.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 17.—Another step toward the realization of the belated reforms promised to be introduced in the Belgian Congo was taken yesterday when the Belgian Minister for the Colonies summoned all the district presidents of the Congo to attend a general assembly on June 29 at Stanleyville. Governor-General Fuchs will on that occasion preside over the assembly, which will discuss administrative, economic and political questions affecting the colony.

Another Main Bursts.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—The citizens' fears concerning the civic water were set on edge again yesterday afternoon, when a burst occurred in the 36-inch main at Lagauchtier and St. Urbain street, flooding these and neighboring thoroughfares to a depth of five feet. Office buildings and stores on Craig street were isolated, for over an hour and much damage was done to goods in the basements. A flaw in the pipe is office more advanced as the cause.

Tank Steamer Crippled.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 17. — The Dutch tank steamer Rotterdam, from Amsterdam Feb. 9 for New York, is reported by wireless telegraph 75 miles southwest of this station with her rubber gone. The vessel is making for this port, being steered by a steam trawler.

Little Hope For Lord Minto.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Lord Minto's condition last night was critical. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Have You Dyspepsia?

Can't Eat—Can't Sleep—Always in Pain and Suffering

—"Eat What You Want," Says This Physician.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, in almost every instance, due to hyperacidity. Too much acid first produces dyspepsia and indigestion: next the stomach walls become irritated and it is only a short time until it eats through the walls, causing ulcers in the abdomen, which in turn are followed by cancer and death; therefore stomach sufferers are required to avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well-fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you try a meal of any food or foods which you may like in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. Drugs only upset the stomach. Bisurated magnesia has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug. As a physician I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I cannot see the sense of doing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and you will find you sleep well and the usual belching, gas, sour stomach, bloating, indigestion and other conditions entirely removed."

PASSENGERS SAFE.

Steamer' Roma Is Released From Dangerous Position.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Fabre Line steamship Roma, which was ashore with more than 500 persons on board on No Man's Land, an island off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., has been floated and is on her way to Providence, according to a wireless message received here last night by the company's agents. The message was timed 10.20 p.m., and was from the Roma's captain. It read:

"We are floated and are taking the route to Providence."

The line's agents said they did not question the authenticity of the message, and they closed their offices here late last night, satisfied that their vessel was safe.

When the Roma went aground wireless calls for assistance were sent out and grave anxiety caused for several hours.

Wild Motorist Cut Throat.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Lee Bond, a wealthy resident of Lyndhurst, Hampshire, who was arrested Sunday after a thrilling automobile ride, that lasted thirty hours, cut his throat in prison yesterday. His condition is precarious. Bond, when captured by the police, was flourishing in each hand a revolver, with which he had compelled a chauffeur to drive him.

Train Wrecked at Open Switch.

CALGARY, Feb. 17.—What is said by C.P.R. officials to be the work of train wreckers caused a railroad smashup at Bellevue at 2.10 yesterday morning, when two engines were derailed, with the result that a man was killed. A double-header freight train, westbound, ran into an open switch, the engines jumping the rails and crashing into the ditch, both turning over.

Engineer Harry Thompson, formerly of Belleville, Ont., who lived at Macleod and who is well known among trainmen in Calgary, was thrown under one of the engines and killed.

MUSTN'T TAKE ARMY.

Austrian Government Makes Arrangement With Shipping Pool.

LONDON, Feb. 17. — The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Herr Ballin, head of the Hamburg-American Line, and M. Heinecken, head of the North German Lloyd, are on their way to London to attend the international shipping conference for the purpose of concluding peace in the Atlantic rate war and prolonging the "pool" arrangement for five years. They left Berlin with some secrecy after dining with the Kaiser at the castle last evening.

He also announces the extraordinary terms which the Austro-Hungarian Government has dictated to the members of the "pool." They are required to pledge themselves henceforth not to transport any male Austro-Hungarian emigrants between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five. This is the direct outcome of the disclosures that Emperor Francis Joseph's army had been robbed of thousands of recruits by wholesale emigration to Canada and the United States.

ANOTHER IS DYING.

Illness of Sparling's Brother May Free Dr. MacGregor.

UELY, Mich., Feb. 17.—An illness mysterious and defying every diagnosis of Michigan doctors, may mean the liberation of Dr. Robert MacGregor, the London, Ont., physician serving a life sentence for the alleged murder of Seyril Sparling.

Ray Sparling, brother of the young man, for whose death Dr. MacGregor was sentenced, is slowly wasting away. His mother, who was charged with being implicated in Seyril's death and who only recently made the dramatic plea to be allowed to be tried again in order that Dr. MacGregor's chances for a new trial, denied by the Michigan courts, might be enhanced, has tried several times to take her only remaining child to Port Huron for treatment. Each time she has been forced to give up the trip because of his weakened condition.

The father and brothers died after a long illness—slowly fading away. Their deaths were a mystery in the district for many months.

TOOK SEVERE COLD.

A bad cough accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and for this reason it will stop that tickling in the throat which causes that dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Mr. Sanford Roode, Antrim, N.S., writes:—"Last fall I took a severe cold which left me with a terrible hard cough and a nasty tickling sensation in my throat. I tried many cough medicines, but they did not help me so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used half of it the cough had left me, and the next one made a complete cure, and I will recommend it as the best cough medicine on the market."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Do not accept any imitation. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price, 25 and 50c., and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1914

THE CALGARY MEMBER CHARGES SUBSERVIENCE TO THE RAILWAYS

Minister of Militia Says His Bill for Motor-Car Hire While in Britain and Europe Was Over Six Thousand Dollars—Gen. Ian Hamilton's Tour of Inspection Cost $20,740—New Bills.

HUGHES' AUTO EXPENSES

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—The afternoon sitting of the House yesterday was enlivened by a triangular conflict between R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, on the one hand, and E. M. Macdonald, of Pictou, and E. V. Nesbitt, of North Oxford, on the other. The subject before the House was a bill renewing a charter for branch lines from the C. P. R.'s Calgary and Edmonton line into the newly-discovered oil fields of Alberta. The railway committee last Tuesday amended this particular bill by cutting down the time in which construction should be commenced and completed, but reversed itself on Thursday when, according to Mr. Bennett, all the reactionaries and railway attorneys rushed to the rescue of the corporations.

When the bill was reported, Hon. H. R. Emmerson complained that fish was being made of one railway company and fowl of another.

Hon. Frank Cochrane said that the western people were protesting against the great flood of railway charters which were granted and renewed without any railway construction resulting therefrom, but Mr. Nesbitt (North Oxford) opined that cutting down the time for construction would not cause the railway companies to build any faster.

When E. M. Macdonald (Lib., Pictou) asked what happened in the railway committee on Tuesday regarding the bill, R. B. Bennett (Con., Calgary) said he should have been present instead of waiting until he was "sent for on Thursday, when all the reactionaries and friends of privilege combined to have the committee reverse what it had done two days before."

Mr. Macdonald demanded that the remark be withdrawn, and Mr. Bennett refused. E. W. Nesbitt (Lib., N. Oxford) said the statement was a lie, and Chairman Blain sought to secure order. Dr. Michael Clark (Lib., Red Deer) charged that the oil interests could have railway construction hastened when settlers could not, and D. S. Neely (Lib., Humboldt) declared that the Government was a mere servant in the matter of granting extension of railway charters.

After nearly an hour of heated debate, the bill stood over for further consideration.

Col. Sam Hughes answered a number of question yesterday about his trip to Europe and the cost of Sir Ian Hamilton's inspection tour through Canada. On the European trip the Minister and his party were compelled to go about a good deal in automobiles and their expenses in this behalf aggregated $6,904. The total expense of Sir Ian Hamilton's trip, defrayed by the Dominion Government, was $20,740.

Hon. J. D. Hazen introduced a bill to revise the Fisheries Act, which has not been codified since 1868. Some new features are introduced. The Governor-General-in-Council is empowered to prohibit the sale and export of fish. Something of the kind has been attempted by Provincial Governments, but their action, Mr. Hazen said, was ultra vires.

It is made an offence for anyone to have fish in his possession during the closed season for that fish. Where a fisherman is found with fish out of season, the onus will be upon him to prove that he did not catch them unlawfully.

Hon. George H. Perley introduced a bill respecting trust companies. The bill is designed to bear the same relation to trust companies as the Insurance Act does to the insurance companies, and the Bank Act to the chartered banks. Every trust company hereafter chartered would be subject to the general act introduced yesterday, which is to be explained in the House by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, upon the second reading of the bill.

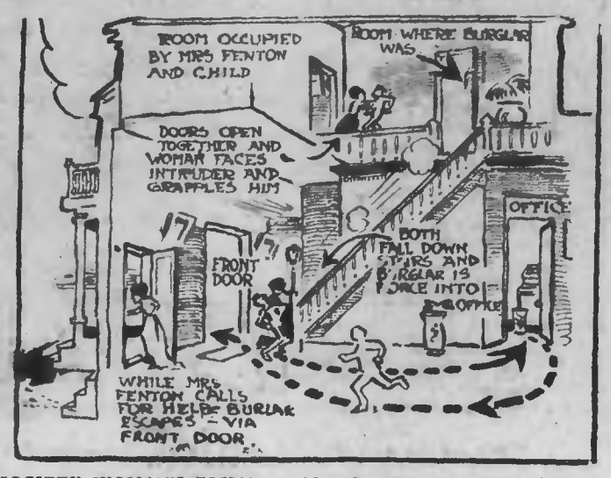
Compulsory audit and full report each year to the Finance Minister are among the salient features of the proposed legislation.

Upon the orders of the day, Hon. G. P. Graham complained that Opposition members had no opportunity to examine the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton upon the National Transcontinental Railway, and asked that the same be printed and distributed also without waiting for the evidence to be printed. The Prime Minister said that the report was in the hands of the printer.

What, Again?

"Has your wife gone shopping?"

"Alas, I'm afraid not! I'm afraid she gone buying."



SOCIETY WOMAN'S PLUCKY CAPTURE OF DESPERATE BURGLAR—How Mrs. Fenton, widow of the late Dr. Fred Fenton, of Toronto, grappled with an intruder in her home in the night. She was alone in the house with two children and a maid, when she heard a noise in an adjoining room. She quickly opened the door of her room. At the same instant a door across the hall opened and Mrs. Fenton was fact to face with a burglar, John Gowans. She grappled with the intruder and they both fell downstairs. With grim tenacity she retained her grip and forced the man into the office formerly used by the doctor. Then she ran to the street and called for help. A man and woman were a few feet away, but the woman would not let the man go to Mrs. Fenton's assistance. Meanwhile the burglar forced the door of the office and escaped across the verandah. The chase then commenced. The fleeing man knocked over a citizen who tried to stop him, but was eventually caught in a fence corner.

SPRING ASSIZES WILL COMMENCE NEXT WEEK

Partial List of Cases That Will Come Up For Disposal

ACTIONS FOR $5,000

The Spring Assizes will open one week from to-day, with Mr. Justice Kelly presiding. The Court will open at one o'clock. There will be a large list of civil actions, but nothing of a criminal nature.

A few of the cases that will come up for disposal are as follows:

A writ for $5,000 damages has been issued by Mr. J. Arthur Sharpe, through Peck, Kerr and McElderry, against the Canadian Pacific and Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railways, in connection with the death of his son, Thomas L. Sharpe, in Hamilton, last March. The writ states that the death was due to the negligence of the defendants, their servants and workmen.

Thomas Sharpe was killed on March 19, 1913, in the T. H. & B. yards, in Hamilton. He was engaged as a C. P. R. telegraph lineman, and was walking west along a track with five others. Sharpe and Wm. Askings, of Toronto, stepped out of the way of a freight train and were run down by a light engine on the other track. Both men were instantly killed. The other four shouted when they saw the danger of their two companions but apparently were not heard, or the interval was too brief.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED.

Another case that will occupy the attention of the Court is that of John Robinson, of Havelock, vs. the Corporation of Havelock, in which Mr. Robinson, the plaintiff, claims $5,000 from the defendant for damages in connection with the death of his three children who were killed by a cave-in at a gravel pit, owned by the corporation.

The plaintiff claims this amount for the benefit of himself, wife and remaining members of the family. He also claims costs of action.

The defendants deny the allegation, and ask that the plaintiff's action be dismissed.

J. D. Lynch is representing the plaintiff, while Peck, Kerr and McElderry are acting for the Corporation of Havelock.

SIR HENRY PELLAT.

Another case is that of the Lakefield Building and Canoe Manufacturing Company, plaintiffs, in a writ issued by G. N. Gordon, agent for O. A. Langley, solicitor for the plaintiffs, against Sir Henry M. Pellat, A. W. C. Stewart, Gerald Mints and the Simre and Debenture Corporation of Canada, defendants for the sum of $1,437.54, claimed by the plaintiffs.

FALSE ARREST ALLEGED.

One of the cases which will come up at the Spring Assizes is that of Wm. J. Kearns vs. H. F. Jackson, the plaintiff, claiming damages to the extent of $3,000 for false arrest and imprisonment. Hall, Medd and Davidson are acting for the plaintiff, while G. N. Gordon is representing the defendant.

WRIT FOR $5,372.43.

A writ for $5,372.43 has been issued by Peck, Kerr and McElderry, counsels for the State Line and Sullivan Railroad Company of Mass., against Joseph H. McClellan of this City. The plaintiffs' claim is against the defendant as the maker of a promisory note.

A writ against Arthur J. McClellan for the amount of $1,438.54 has also been issued by the above firm on a promisory note.

34 Dead As Result of Cold

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 17.—Gotham now counts up thirty-four dead, directly as the result of the recent cold spell and a storm. An army of eight thousand men began to-day to clear up the snow from the streets, which have been clogged by drifts for less for a week.

KING GEORGE TAKING AN INTEREST IN HOME RULE

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 17.—(Special Cable)—That King George is taking a more active part in politics in relation to the Home Rule question than has any British Monarch since the institution of constitutional government, is indicated by the announcement this morning that His Majesty has called to attention both parties with the request that earnest consideration be given to his proposition that present opportunity should be utilized for earnest consideration of the Imperial Parliament idea. Commenting on this the Westminster Gazette suggests to leaving over the Home Rule question for the time being to enable a commission from both parties to take up the whole constitutional problem bringing to its aid and counsel representatives from the Dominion beyond seas, who would have power to say what their respective countries desire on the question of imperial parliament and be prepared to take action.

A FIGHTING COMMITTEE

Personnel of the Committee to Discuss Redistribution Looks Like a Very Scrappy Organization

MAY NOT BE SMOOTH

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Despite Premier Borden's specific announcement regarding the redistribution bill the personnel of the committee which will have the matter in hand, looks like a fighting organization. It is stated to-day that Hon. Robt. Rogers, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Messrs. S. N. Rhodes and W. B. Northrup will be the Conservatives on the committee, while Dr. Beland, Messrs. Fred Pardee and E. M. MacDonald will probably be the Liberals. It is scarcely possible with this line-up that the bill will get through without a serious scrap both in the committee and House.

RECORD CROWD

Witnessed a Splendid Show at the Royal Monday

The programme at the Royal to-night is the best selected programme of motion pictures ever seen. "The Star of Bethlehem" will be shown for the last time. John Bunny will also be present, ensuring to you a good show. The attraction in vaudeville are the "Musical Simpsons," an act that is well worth the money alone. Mr. Simpson is a wonder. Harry Rich is a clever comedian and a wonderful dancer. The French boy will make you sit up and take notice. The Royal is giving some splendid shows for the admission.

Dr. Adam Shortt On "Taxation"

Will Address the Canadian Club To-morrow Evening

Dr. Adam Shortt of Ottawa, Chairman of the Civil Service Commission of Canada will address the Canadian Club on Wednesday evening, Feb. 18th, at the "Savoy," (Coleman's). Dr. Shortt was for years professor of political economy at Queen's University. It was while there that he won for himself a place among the foremost in the ranks of political economists. He has contributed largely to magazines and periodicals, in both Canada and the United States on current events and topics of reform. He is a recognized authority on labour questions and disputes, and has on different occasions been appointed by the government to act as arbitrator in times of strike and lockouts.

His subject is "Taxation" and one is quite safe in saying that he will treat this present-day vexed topic in a manner that will be at one and the same time a delight and an instruction to those who hear him, for he will bring to bear upon it the fruits of years of study and a facility of expression that is the result of clear thinking.

It is to be hoped that there will be a large turn out of the members of the club to welcome Prof. Shortt, and to hear what will be one of the best addresses of the season.

Dinner at 6.30 p.m. sharp on Wednesday evening, Feb. 18th.

MAY PLAY OFF THE TIE HERE

Local Fans May Get a Chance to See Oshawa and Kingston Perform

WILL BE A GREAT GAME

Thre is a chance that Peterborough may be chosen for the play-off game between the Kingston Frontenacs and Oshawa Juniors, who have tied up their round. Oshawa is anxious to have the game played here, and the local Rink management were asked by the Oshawa management for a price on the rink for the night. A reasonable offer was made and the matter is being taken up with the O. H. A. Both teams would run excursions here and it would be one of the most exciting games of the season.

BAD FIRE IN HAMILTON STORE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 17. — Shortly before eight o'clock this morning when hundreds of employees and shoppers would have been in the premises, a fire broke out in the four-storey departmental store of R. McKay & Sons, and before it was extinguished there was damage to the extent of a hundred thousand dollars. Several firemen had narrow escapes when the roof collapsed.

"Meet me at the Grand Hotel to-night." They have arranged for a G.N.W. wire, giving returns of all the games played to-night, and for the rest of the season. Senior Fixture to-night, Midland versus Argonauts. No returns given over the 'phone.

POSED GIRLS IN THE NUDE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 16.—Several of Boston's select suburbs are in a state of agitation over the case of Henry O. Ryder, an Auburndale photographer, who was given a hearing in police court to-day on a charge of having obscene pictures in his possession with an intent to distribute. Ryder's arrest resulted from an action brought against him recently by William A. Graham of Waltham, who sued the photographer for $10,000 for having posed his sixteen-year-old daughter in the nude. When news of the suit became public the authorities raided the photographer's studio, and it is said they found there photographs of a number of high school girls of Newton, Waltham and Ouburndale. The pictures, it is further alleged, bore a striking resemblance to "September Morn."

STONEY LAKE COTTAGERS WILL PRESENT APPLICATION TO THE RAILWAY BOARD

JOHN GOWANS

Asking For Improved Railway Service at Lakefield—A Fish Hatchery Wanted, Also

IMPROVED MAIL SERVICE

A fish Hatchry.

Improved railway service.

Mails sorted at Peterborough.

Rowboats and launches to carry lights at nights.

Lift Lock to be operated three times a day instead of two.

These and one or two other recommendations were endorsed by a largely attended meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association that was held last night in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. Mr. D. W. Dumble, who presided, outlined the object of the meeting. He said that the owners of approximately three hundred cottages were interested in the matter of better traffic conditions at Lakefield. It was desirous to have the trains run right down to the wharf instead of stopping eight hundred feet away, thereby compelling the cottagers to hire trucks in order to facilitate the removal of baggage to and from the boats. "The last man to embark," said Mr. Dumble, is usually the Captain, who comes sauntering down with a bag of mail over his shoulder. In the opinion of the cottagers the tracks should be built right down to the wharf, so that the baggage can be taken directly off the train and onto the steamer. This would facilitate transportation, reduce travelling expenses and save time. It could, they claim, be accomplished with but little expense to the railway.

A Fish Hatchery.

Regarding the question of establishing a fish hatchery, Mr. Dumble said that it was not so many years ago since the cottagers were able to go out in the mornings and catch a supply of fish for breakfast. Now, it was all a man could do to catch the regulation quantity of fish in a whole day. "The lakes are not only being depleted of fish," said Mr. Dumble, "but the fish are getting peculiarly small. We ought to have a fish hatchery. We could have one at Buckhorn or Young's Point, and could keep pouring fish into the Lakes by the millions. It would be a good investment. Anything that will keep Canadians at home is not only a benefit to the country but will serve to induce foreigners to visit the Kawartha Lakes.

It was decided to petition the Government respecting the establishment of a fish hatchery, and also prepare an application for submission to the Dominion Railway Board concerning improved facilities at Lakefield.

The Cottager's Mail.

The meeting also expressed disapproval at the manner in which the mail addressed to Stony Lake was handled. Last summer a special launch was engaged for this purpose, which, it was stated, could not be relied upon. Many of the cottagers were in favour of having the mails delivered by the steamboats providing they could be sorted in Peterborough, so as to avoid delay at Lakefield. This matter will be taken up with the postal authorities.

The government will also be asked to consider the advisability of changing the present fishing laws, so that the opening of the fishing season will be delayed until July 1st. The close season ends on June 15th.

Many of the cottagers claim that the fish are still in spawn on the 15th of June. This is attributed to the coolness of the water in Stony Lake, as compared with Rice Lake, and other waters. The cottagers are averse to having the fish removed from the water when in this condition, and will urge upon the Government to have the date changed from the fifteenth of June until the first of July.

Lights at Night.

The carrying of lights on all craft, including rowboats and canoes, was also urged upon. One or two cottagers volunteered a few narratives that might have proved fatal for the principals, had circumstances been otherwise.

As it is at present the Lift Lock will not operate for the benefit of launch owners after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The hours for launch owners is 9 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon. An endeavour will be made to have the lock operated once in the evening.

A committee comprising Messrs. D. W. Dumble, E. H. D. Hall, and E. A. Peck, M.P.P., were appointed to look into the various matters that come up for discussion.

VESSELS ARE WRECKED IN BIG STORM

LIVES ARE LOST

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—All along the Atlantic coast from Florida to the River St. Lawrence to-day there is wreckage indicating the effects of the worst storm this year. At New Orleans, where the weather is seldom rough, eighteen were recovered by a life-saver from a sinking Atlantic steamer, and five men went down with the ship. An unknown steamer is in distress, and near Long Island the French freighter Rudolphe is floundering about and wirelessing madly for assistance. It is feared the loss of life in unknown small craft has been great. Estimates cannot be correctly made for a day or two till the weather moderates.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Conducting journalism on partizan prejudices leads the conductors into rather striking contradictions. All the Conservative papers in Canada which we have noted referring to the subject, hold up both hands for the Unionist amendment, providing in effect that the Home Rule Bill be shelved till popular opinion was elicited by an appeal to the people at a general election. All the Conservative journals which we have noted as referring to the subject, hold up both hands in condemnation of the proposal of the Senate, that the question of Canada contributing thirty-five million dollars to imperial defence, be submitted to the people. And the Senate had good warrant for its action. Premier Borden distinctly said, in proposing his contribution policy, that if Parliament rejected the measure, he would appeal to the people. Now the harmless old Senate tried to make it easy for Mr. Borden to keep his promise; in their simplicity they really thought Mr. Borden meant what he said, and that he was a man of his word.

PARTIZAN TO THE CORE.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Post-Master General), has been appointed Chairman of the Redistribution Committee of the House of Commons. One cannot think that he will be a model of impartiality in that position. He has showed himself to be the most intense partizan in the government. He has earned the sobriquet, "Ghost-Master-General," from the hosts of officials he has gratuitously slaughtered in the application of the spoils [illegible] he will be able, in his new capacity, to divest himself of the intense partizanship that has marked his past career in office. A redistribution committee demands a better head than a man who is partizan to the core. But his selection is what might have been expected. Mr. Borden is so bound, hand and foot, to the Nationalists, that he doesn't seem able o act independently of practical recognition of their support as payment for the favours they receive at the hands of the head of the Conservatvative party in Canada.

FIVE THOUSAND FACTS.

The 1914 edition of Mr. Frank Yeigh's "5,000 Facts About Canada" is the best that has appeared in the many years of its production. Its seventy pages are literally packed with concise information systematically arranged, relating to the early history of Canada, the development of its political institutions, its extent, area and production, its material resources, its agricultural, mineral and industrial production. It also deals individually with the several provinces and chief cities, giving interesting statistical information. Altogether it is an encyclopedia in tabloid, relating to the facts and achievements, interesting to, and necessary to, every well-informed Canadian, who has a due interest and pride in the country which its people have made the first of the dominion in the British Empire. "5,000 Facts About Canada" should be in the hands of every Canadian, as its low price, considering its value, makes easily possible. Toronto; compiled by Frank Yeigh and issued by the Canadian Facts Publishing Company, 588 Huron street.

A COSTLY SEARCH.

If Conservative governments on coming to office were as anxious to keep their own record straight and clean as they are anxious to discredit the Liberal governments they succeed, they could better justify their existence in power. Before and after the Whitney government came to office there were loud boasts of the crookedness and corruption they would uncover when once they had access to the records of the Ross government. They had such access, and all their diligent search during nearly ten years, has resulted in no discovery of wrongdoing on the part of the administration of the Ross government. We may be sure if there had been anything wrong found it would have been proclaimed lustily.

When the Borden government came to power it was seized with the same thirst for unearthing and discovering wrong-doing on the part of the Laurier government. It inaugurated a civil service search, rather unfortunately. The chairman of the sleuths was so blameworthy in another capacity that he narrowly escaped jail. Then the Transcontinental railway must be investigated. Two partizan experts—in partizanship—were set to work at the modest wage of $65 per day each, with travelling expenses, and the total cost to the country of two years work on the part of these unearthers of iniquity totals something like $60,000. After a presumed minute and careful search for graft in connection with the building of the Transcontinental railway, these two gentlemen made their report, and all they have discovered is one payment of $7,950 out of a total expenditure of 109 millions of dollars, which they assert "cannot be justified in law or morals." How well these two gentlemen are qualified to give an unbiassed judgment is easily seen. They entered upon the investigation, not so much to discover the truth as to discover something crooked. One of them, Mr. Lynch-Staunton, a corporation lawyer, opposed to public ownership, and a stalwart Conservative, an experienced political campaigner, would be sure to give a partizan turn to every trivial fact susceptible of being so turned. The other, Mr. Gutelius, a former employee of the Canadian Pacific railway, which regarded the Transcontinental as a dangerous rival, to be smitten under the fifth rib if possible, cannot be regarded as an unprejudiced searcher after truth. Instead of discovering "waste," these investigators have only served to impress the fact that the unusually heavy cost of the Trancontinental represents money well spent—to make it the best built road of its length in the world, except that part built under the Borden government, which has been "degraded" in the interests of a false economy. The road might have been built for a few million dollars less, but then it would have had to be rebuilt at proportionately great cost, after the wooden trestles had rotted away and the stress of traffic had made the line unusable.

CANADA'S RESOURCES.

Canada's sources of production and wealth which, after all, have only been developed to a limited extent up to the present time, are enormous and inexhaustible. With all the immigration of the past years, only a small percentage of the arable land in the western prairie provinces has been brought under cultivation, and the country's manufacturing and commercial [illegible] generally on a sound basis, so that, fundamentally, Canadian conditions would appear satisfatcory beyond question.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy in Saturday Night.

A BIG HAUL.

There is one piece of extravagance in connection with the building of the road that we must condemn; and that is the hiring of Mr. Gutelius and Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, at enormous cost, to make this needless investigation. Mr. Staunton has received $17,940. From February, 1912, to March, 1913, two hundred and seventy-six days, our fellow citizen received $65 a day.

And the worst is yet to come. For Mr. Staunton's job has been going on ever since, he drawing his $65 a day, rain or shine. Besides this he received from the Government $894.56 for travel and outlay. This is quite a little fortune in itself, and with the $15,000 or so more that is coming his way, Mr. Lynch-Staunton needn't worry about the future.

Then, of course, Mr. Staunton has been doing odd jobs between. In fact, he has been attending more or less to his regular business while engaged in this investigation. Who wouldn't be a "Tory" with a side line like that providing him with pocket money?

Mr. Gutelius, who is off the job, having got another one from the government, received for his share in the business $24,180, and $1,467.98 for travel and outlay.—Hamilton Times.

WILL THERE BE AN EARLY GENERAL ELECTION IN ONTARIO?

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Rumours as to the probability of a general election in Ontario this year, which are making their appearance in the public press, have been discussed privately among politicians for some time and there seems to be quite a widespread feeling that the prediction of an early election is correct. One of the chief points is that a redistribution bill is to be introduced into the Legislature this session and in Ontario politics at any rate this usually presages an appeal to the country.

The reasons now being advanced for the likelihood of an election, to the effect that the Conservative party will appeal to the electors once more under the leadership, even inactive, of Sir James Whitney, raises most interesting questions. If this forecast is correct it shows that the split in the Conservative party over the succession to Sir James Whitney is, for the present at least, incapable of a peaceful solution and that a hurried election under the present Prime Minister is a necessity to keep the party together.

If Hon. Adam Beck does not go to London as High Commissioner the rivalry between him and Hon. Mr. Hanna for the leadership will become acute. It apparently looks to the Conservatives like good tactics to postpone the evil day ofr reckoning on the question of a new leader and attempt in the meantime to get back to power under the old.

The whole proposal, however, reveals graphically the lack of unity in the Conservative party, and at the same time a surprising want of confidence in a Government which has such a large numerical majority. It evidently is afraid of the growing power and popularity of the Opposition under its present leader, and is anxious to have a general election at the earliest possible moment in the hope that it may get a renewal of power before the movement towards the Liberal party becomes dangerous.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The annual meeting of the local Council of Women will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Public Library building on Friday, February 20th at 3.30 p.m. Conveners will present reports for the year and secretaries of affiliated societies will give brief accounts of the work and aim of their societies. Dr. Cameron will speak on the tuberculosis sanatorium, and Mrs. Middleton on supervised playgrounds.

Distribution Of Wealth Of Geo. A. Cox 5 Years Ago

Had Looked Forward to Fifteen Years of Life—Varying Scale of Succession Duties Applied to the Estate as Filed.

PROVISION MADE FOR THESE

"There was nothing of the kind," declared E. T. Malone, K.C., one of the executors of the late Senator Cox, when it was mentioned that a published statement suggested that there had been an evasion of the succession duties in connection with the estate. "I think it would be a slanderous thing to so so," added Mr. Malone. "The Succession Duties Department understand everything; all papers are open to their inspection."

The law, Mr. Malone pointed out, recognized the right of a man to deal with his property and to distribute it a certain length of time before his death.

Gifts and the Law.

"Any property or income therefrom voluntarily transferred by deed, grant, bargain, sale or gift made in contemplation of the death of the grantor, or made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after such death to any person in trust or otherwise, or the effect of which is that any person becomes beneficially entitled in possession or expectancy to such property or income."

"Any property, taken as a donatio mortis causa (a gift by reason of impending death) or taken under a disposition purporting to operate as an immediate gift inter vivos . . . which shall not have been bona fide made twelve months before the death of the deceased; or property, taken under any gift, whenever made, of which property bona fide possession and enjoyment shall not have been assumed by the donee immediately upon the gift, and thenceforward retained to the entire exclusion of the donor."

Marriage Settlement $1,500,000.

It is stated that on his marriage in April, 1909, Senator Cox made a settlement of in the neighbourhood of $1,500,000 upon his wife and at that time also distributed the greater portion of his wealth among the members of his family. Such gifts of course, would not be subject to any duty.

The fact that this distribution took place nearly five years ago would mean a loss to the Province of Ontario in the neighbourhood of $950,000 in succession duties, if the Senator's wealth, undistributed, had amounted at the time of his death to as much as $10,000,000.

Looked for Long Life.

It is pointed out by friends of the late Senator Cox that he had no idea of death coming to him in so short a time when the distribution was made. "He expected to live at least fifteen years," said one who knew him intimately this morning. "He used to speak of what he was going to do. There was no idea of death at the time of distribution."

How Dues Are Made Up.

The comparatively small sum left to strangers will have to pay a duty of ten per cent. For instance, the gift of $50,000 to George F. Little, the private secretary of the Senator, will have to bear a tax of $5,000, though this comes out of the residuary estate and not off the bequest.

The largest portion of the estate, bequeathed by the will, that left to the sons, will pay six and a half per cent. duty under the clauses that place a duty of five per cent. on estates of over $200,000, and of one and a half per cent. where between $200,000 and $400,000 goes to any one person. It is probable that the succession duties collected by the province on the estate as probated at $870,000, will be in the neighbourhood of $50,000.

A Wide Margin.

If the estate left by the Senator had been in the neighbourhood of $2,000,000, the succession duties on the bulk of it would have been ten per cent. or close to $200,000. In this case it might be taken for granted that the sums left to each of the four children would have exceeded $1,200,000, and in that case each would have had to pay a five per cent. additional duty over the five per cent. charge on estates aggregating over $200,000.

In like manner the taxes on an estate of $5,000,000 would approximate $800,000, and on an estate of $7,000,000 they would be nearly $700,0000. If the estate had been $10,000,000 the succession duties would not have fallen far short of $1,000,000.

Duties—If Any.

Under a clause in the will, the succession duties are to be deducted from the residuary estate which is left to the two sons. The words "if any" follow the words "succession duties." The clause reads:

"I hereby direct my executors to pay from and out of my residuary estate all my just debts, funeral and testamentary expenses, as well as succession duties (if any) which may be chargeable against any gift, devise or legacy herein contained, as it is my intention that all such gifts, devises and legacies shall be enjoyed free of succession duty."

Income Tax.

In England, it is stated, there is no regulation to prevent a man denuding himself of his property before death, and so escaping the succession duties, but there it is case of out of the frying pan into the fire, for even if succession duties are thus avoided, the income tax falls upon the unfortunate recipient of a fortune.

If the province is not satisfied with the valuation at which any estate is entered for probate, the Surrogate Judge may be asked to investigate the valuation. The Surrogate Judge may proceed either by taking evidence or by caling on the sheriff of the county where the property is situated to make a valuation. If the province is still not satisfied it may appeal to the High Court, and from a decision of a judge of the High Court to the Appellate Division, but the decision of that court is final.

Harvey Lumbermen Are Up At 2:30 a.m.--Story of The Present Day Life In Shanty

During late years in towns and cities, the knowledge regarding labour connected with logging camps has been very meagre, and many wrong impressions formed. In all lumbering centres the camps have to be built to comply with government regulations, and frequently the sanitation and ventilation are in advancement of some of our town and city houses.

An up-to-date set of camp equipment belonging to "The John Carew Lumber Co., Limited." of Lindsay, Ont., superintended by Geo. Kelly, of Lindsay, and managed by foreman Mr. E. Patterson, of Bobcaygeon, may be seen on the shore of Crane Lake, township of Harvey. These camps consist of ten separate buildings, all well built and well kept; the floors of the dining hall, office and sleeper being swept daily, and scrubbed out clean once a week, ventilated day and night as well as being kept warm.

The dining hall constructed by Cook W. Glasbrook, assisted by James Quinn, would put some of our town boarding houses and hotels in a second rate place,—the bill of fare being equal to any two-fifty a day hotel. The sanitation of these buildings is perfect, and a lady could make herself quite at home.

Mr. Patterson does not allow card playing nor the use of profane language, and the men, about fifty, are all happy and contented, retiring to bed about nine o'clock and awaiting the call of the stable boy for breakfast.

At this season of the year, when drawing is in progress, the cook starts work about 2.30 in the morning; breakfast about 4 o'clock, and the men and their teams with their loads and dumpers and light torches are away to the drawing before 5 o'clock. There are three drawing gangs of four teams each; a load starts an hour or so before the rest and returns to camp that much earlier. About two to two and a half thousand logs are cut on the ice daily, dumping on Crane and Turtle Lakes.

This camp has close to sixty thousand logs cut and skidded so the loads are built where teams drawing the loads have no uphills, being the same as on a lake, or if anything a slight decline, which explains the drawing of big loads on ten foot bunks. The teams are Mr. Carew's, and if the foreman thinks fit to load heavier no objection can come, as would in case of hired teams.

These logs are all counted when cut, and skidded, and when hauled as well as measured by government scalers before they are taken off the skids.

The supply of a modern camp is quite a problem; in this case a team is kept on the road hauling supplies all the time from Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn or Lakefield for both men and horses.

Stove wood for the different buildings is quite an item, amounting to about one hundred cords for the season. This, of course, is procured and cut nearby.

A successful foreman has to be an all-round qualified man; the handling alone of fifty men is a task, but besides this he has to watch that the supplies do not run short in the cookery, the blacksmith shop or his own store. He has to do his own clerking after hours when the other men are resting or sleeping; he has to act as veterinary surgeon, and many other calls which the man outside does not know about.

The John Carew Lumber Company has a number of camps in operation each winter, as it owns close to 20,000 acres in timber lands. Mr. Geo. Kelly, of Lindsay, is superintendent of all these outside operations, and upon his advice Mr. Carew usually acts when new limits are purchased. Kelly started about fifteen years ago for Mr. Carew as a dump cart driver, and step by step has risen from the lowest to the highest position in the concern. He is hired by the year as the company operates the year round either in the mill, the woods or driving their logs out and cribbing them in order to tow them to Lindsay for sawing.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

HONOURS FOR A FAMOUS SAVANT OF GERMANY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Feb 16.—Receiving congratulations from distinguished friends and disciples in many parts of the world, Prof. Ernst Haeckel, the celebrated German Darwinian, whom many consider the greatest living man of science to-day observed his eightieth birthday anniversary at his home in Jena, surrounded by members of his family, giving up a part of the day also to a general public reception.

Some time ago it was planned by the pupils and other admirers of the famous philosopher to present him with some fitting proof of their admiration on the occasion of his birthday. The news of the plan reached the ears of Prof. Haeckel, however, he sent out an appeal to his friends, requesting them to refrain from sending him any personal donations. He has asked them to devote the money they intended as a contribution to a personal gift to a special fund which he plans to place at the disposal of the German Monists Union, in order to make that union international in its scope.

Though he is still as alert mentally as ever Prof. Haeckel is beginning to show the weight of his eighty years and is physically weak. Nevertheless, he insists on answering personally all the letters which have been pouring in upon him for several days, congratulating him on his birthday.

For nearly fifty years Prof. Haeckel occupied the chair of zoology at the University of Jena. Only a few years ago he retired from the position, and has since devoted his attention almost wholly to his phylogentic museum. The phylogenetic museum is devoted to the history of genealogical development.

Prof. Haekel is perhaps the best known German philosopher alive, and he is also well known in his native land as a bitter controversialist. He has engaged in a greater number of polemics with other philosophers and professors than perhaps any other man in Europe. He is the father of the monastic philosophy of to-day and his books are read by thousands in Europe. Many of them have been translated in the English language.

He has long been known as the most eminent disciple of Charles Darwin. Darwin's "Origin of Species" appeared just as Prof. Haeckel was beginning his scientific career, and he fell under its influence. He was recognized as the leading exponent of Darwinism in Germany, and when he was only 32, published a book on "General Morphology," which was hailed as an epoch-making work in the history of biological research. He republished it in more popular form at a later date as "The Natural History of Creation."

Prof. Haeckel has carried the theories of Darwin to more definite conclusions. He has traced the evolution of man through twenty-six stages, and was the first to attempt to draw up a genealogical tree showing the origins and relationships of the animal kingdom. His most ambitious work has been "The Riddle of the Universe," which was published in 1900, in which he gave his own solution of the problem of the application of the doctrine of evolution to the higher nature of man.

Altogether Prof. Haeckel has published more than forty books, besides almost innumerable articles and pamphlets. One of his most interesting controversial works was called "Free Science and Free Teaching," in which he replied to his old teacher, Prof. Virchow, who objected to the teaching of evolution in schools, because it was an unproved hypothesis.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lansdowne Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

Series Of Fires Causes Damages In Albany

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 17.—One man is dead, two are dying, six are hurt, scores of families homeless and three hundred thousand dollars damage, is the result of fifteen fires in this city within twenty-four hours. Whole blocks have been destroyed. Incendiaries are suspected in many cases.

TWO LIVES LOST IN NEW YORK FIRE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Poking among the ruins of a fifty thousand dollar building landmark in the Bowery district, which was destroyed early this morning by fire, firemen came across the ice encrusted bodies of David Baran, aged forty, and James Franko, aged two. Evidently Baran had lost his life trying to save that of the little lad. There were several miraculous escapes in connection with the fires. The firemen carried several women down ladders to the street in a howling gale of wind and rain. Dynamite stored in the place exploded and made the neighbouring skyscrapers totter.

LEFT PROPERTY IN PETERBORO'

The legal firm of Dumble and Johnston have given notice of their intention to apply to the Surrogate Court of the County of Peterborough for Letters of Administration in Ontario to the estates of the late Mary Ann Steer, late of Yellow Grass, Saskatchewan. Deceased died on January the seventh at Yellow Grass, leaving property in the county of Peterborough to be administered.

William George Steer is named as administrator.

REPORT HAS STILL TO BE MADE

The investigation concerning the destruction by fire of a C.P.R. mail coach between Peterborough and Cavan on Friday night last has been concluded. A report respecting the findings of the investigators may be forthcoming in the course of a few days. Mr. Dodd, the local C. P. R. agent, stated to the Examiner this morning that he had not heard a word, good, bad or indifferent, from the investigators.

As was previously stated, one hundred packages of express, under the care of the Dominion Express Co., an unknown quantity of mail, and a $10,000 mail car were destroyed by fire on the C.P.R. Montreal express near Peterborough, and, so far, the division superintendents of the mail, express and railway services have been unable to ascertain how the fire originated.

Some eight miles west of this City the fire was discovered in the mail coach. As soon as possible the train was stopped, and the other cars detached from the one that was burning. A quantity of the contents of the car were removed, but a number of parcels post packages are believed to be lost, as well as about one hundred packages of express.

The car was practically wholly destroyed, the flames making very effective progress. It was left standing on a siding about five miles west of Peterborough, while the mail was transferred to one of the baggage cars, and taken on the trip.

The report of the investigators is expected to be on hand in a day or two.

IS HANGED FOR MURDER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 17.— W. J. Nicholls, the Missouri man who murdered his partner on a lonely ranch near here was hanged this morning, despite the eleventh hour attempts of influential United Statesers to secure a reprieve. At first he acknowledged the murder, but later repudiated the confession. The Minister of Justice declined to interfere.

TWO HOME WOMEN TALKED ABOUT HAIR

Two women met in our store the other day, when one of them said:

"My, how pretty your hair looks! What have you been doing to it?"

"Why, I have been using Harmony Hair Beautifier for the past two weeks," was the reply.

"Why, indeed!" replied the first woman, "that is just what I am using. Isn't it great, and don't you think my hair shows a lot of improvement?"

Harmony Hair Beautifier is becoming all the rage among both men and women who are particular in the care of their hair. It is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft, and more easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." Contains no oil, and will not change color of hair nor darken it. Simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. It is washed off just as quickly, the entire operation taking only a few moments. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us.

THE COST OF LIVING REDUCED

Sloan's Liniment is to be Manufactured in Canada

There is not a man or woman in our vast Dominion who is not interested in reducing the cost of living. It is the universal cry at the present time.

A new enterprise has just come within our borders, which will very materially reduce the cost of a universal household article.

When a thing costs us 35 cents, that can be bought in the United States for 25 cents, we begin to wonder why, especially if it happens to be something that everybody wants.

Sloan's Liniment has become so popular in Canada, that we were demanding that we might purchase it on this side of the line just as reasonably as those living on the other side. There was but one way to meet this demand, and that was to open a factory within our Dominion.

The Dr. Earl S. Sloan Inc. has established a branch factory in Toronto, to make this product and sell is to us at the same price charged in the United States.

We are glad to see high-class industries of this kind locate within our borders.

"The Last Days Of Pompeii"

A Splendid Picture at the Grand Opera House

One of the finest series of motion pictures that have been seen in this City for some time is now being shown at the Grand Opera House. Bulmer Lytons historic novel, "The Last Days of Pompeii" is depicted in all its realism, and whether one has read the book or not, it is an easy matter to follow the progress of the story. The dramatic climaxes are cleverly portrayed and excite keen interest. Apart from the fascination of the theme itself, the pitcures are creations of the most artistic beauty, and from this standpoint alone are altogether delightful to the eye. The beautiful architecture of the ancients, as well as the lovely scenes of gardens and lanscape call forth one's highest admiration.

These films will be shown at two performances, every afternoon and evening, concluding Thursday night.

FARMER'S CLUB IS ORGANIZED AT FAIRMOUNT

FAIRMOUNT, Feb. 17. — The farmers of this district met last Friday night in the Schoolhouse and listened to very able addresses by Mr. R. S. Duncan, B.S.A., who very clearly presented the object of Farmers' Clubs, also advantages to be derived from them, and Mr. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, who very clearly depicted the work that co-operative societies were doing, presenting something of the strength and growth of such societies. After listening to those addresses the farmers themselves discussed the subject before them, which resulted in a club being organized, with the following officers:

President, Mr. Jas. Seymour.
Vice President, Mr. Geo. McBain.
Sec.-Treas., Mr. Sam. Staples.
Directors—Messrs. Thos. McIndoe, Jos. Sanderson, J. O. Ball, T. J. Staples and M. G. Hutchinson.

All came away feeling that the meeting had been both pleasant and profitable.

Mr. R. S. Duncan, B.S.A., is holding a four weeks' class in agriculture and stock and seed judging in Millbrook, which a number of our young men are attending. The boys report a very pleasant as well as profitable time, as Mr. Duncan has spared no pains in making it a very agreeable month for them.

WILL ATTEND THE JUBILEE

Mr. E. N. McWilliams left to-day to attend the Golden Jubilee celebration by the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias at Washington, D.C., which is to be held on January 19th.

Mr. McWilliams was chosen to represent the local lodge and is to be congratulated in asmuch as he is not an old member of the order, and it must be taken as an evidence of the esteem in which he is held by the members of Marathon Lodge.

The programme includes a reception by President Wilson at the White House and an address on "Fraternity" by Secretary of State Bryan, Past Chancellor of the Pythian Lodge at Lincoln, Neb.

BOND WOULD BREAK

AMENDMENT IS DEFEATED

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The tariff reform amendment to the address was defeated in the House of Commons yesterday by a majority of 74. Capt. Bayon advocated imperial preference so far as practicable without imposing fresh duties on imported foodstuffs, and by admitting colonial imports at a lower rate than foreign imports. He would impose an ad valorem duty up to ten per cent. on foreign manufactures.

On behalf of the Government the Solicitor-General, Sir Stanley Buckmaster, said the policy of imperial preference was one that could not exist. If the Opposition desired colonial preference they must tax food. Did the Opposition intend to include raw material? He denied that such a preference would tend to bind the colonies to the Mother Country. It was likely to carry with it seeds that would lead to results which many would be unwilling to contemplate. If they desired to accomplish Imperial preference they must put a tax on food and also put a tax on raw material. He denied that it was impossible to give effective preference to the colonies.

"Canada," he said, "is rapidly becoming an industrial country. There costs of production are not much lower in many industries than ours to-day. I think it quite possible that if this system of preference were once adopted we would gradually find, probably in the lifetime of most of us, a position in which the Canadian manufacturers would be willing to content themselves with protection, which is a natural one, owing to the cost of carriage, and when we might have complete free trade between Canada and the United Kingdom. That is the ideal everyone will consider worth striving for. Those who are the best judges in the colonies think there is something in it. We will give them precisely what they ask for and we will give them everything that they have asked for when we get the power."

DRAFTING A SCHEDULE.

Lake Disaster Relief Committee Has a Difficult Task.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—The special board appointed to distribute compensation to the dependents of sailors lost in the late gale of last autumn, are wasting no time in their preparation of a schedule. It was learned last evening that the families who lost breadwinners will be aided by monthly instalments extending over a period of five years.

Owing to the immense amount of detail involved, it will be some time yet before the first amounts are issued. These, however, will be distributed as nearly as possible in proportion to the earning capacity of the victims. It is understood that the amounts paid out in this way will average from $16 to $70 monthly. In striking a balance of remuneration an attempt will be made to make the sums approach half the wages of the drowned breadwinners.

Proximity of relationship and the financial prosperity of dependents will be taken into consideration before any remuneration is allowed.

BROTHER OF MR. T. C. STEPHENSON OMEMEE, HAD A NARROW ESCAPE AT TIME OF THE FATAL ACCIDENT

The entire countryside adjacent to the village of Omemee turned out yesterday in large numbers to attend the funeral of the late T. C. Stephenson, who was killed in the Stephenson Bros. chop mill Tuesday. The deceased gentleman had an extensive reputation and was popular with townsman and countryman. He was a prominent man in the village of Omemee, and his name is a byeword in the homes of the farmers. In fact the farming community relied upon him in many respects, and his sudden death will be a great shock to the neighbourhood.

The large concourse in attendance at the last sad rites Thursday bears testimony to his popularity. A strictly good man was laid in his last resting place, and the light sleigh which carried the floral tributes to the grave was banked with beautiful flowers.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. W. H. Currie, Sam Grandy, Geo. Griffin, R. H. Johnston, T. A. McPherson and H. Murray. Service was held in the Anglican church by the Rev. Mr. Earle, assisted by Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto, an old college mate of the deceased. Interment took place in Emily cemetery.

HOW ACCIDENT HAPPENED.

The real cause of the terrible accident is yet a mystery, and many conflicting stories are heard. It was thought that a bolt dropped out of an overhead pulley or shaft, into the chopper, thus causing the explosion. Another story is to the effect that the chopper was covered over and that a bolt could not fall into the grinders, but that a new set of plates had been installed in the chopper, and that a bolt or nut may have worked loose, thus causing the bursting of the machine. Still another story is to the effect that the chopper was 'running at too high speed, thus causing an explosion.

At the time of the accident a brother of the deceased was standing about ten feet distant, behind a number of pillars and machinery, and it is to this barricade that he perhaps owes his life, for with the bursting of the machinery particles of steel were imbedded in the pillars, while large hunks of machinery were hurled several feet distant.

TO TRY MELLEN ON WRECK CHARGE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 17.—The trial of former President Charles S. Mellen and five other officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, which is to take place at the term of the Superior Court which convened here to-day, is believed to be the first instance in the history of American railroads in which the highest officials have been held to answer for deaths and injuries resulting from wrecks on their lines. Mr. Mellen and his former associates are to be tried on charges growing out of the collision of the Springfield expresses which occurred near Westport, Oct. 3, 1912, and which resulted in the deaths of seven persons and the serious injury of forty others. The six officials of the railroad were indicted for alleged responsibility for the wreck. In addition to former President Mellen, the defendants include former Vice-President E. H. McHenry, former General Superintendent B. R. Pollock, former Vice-President H. T. Horn, General Superintendent C. N. Woodward and Lawrence J. Carmalt, engineer in charge of maintenance of way. The six are to be tried jointly.

POISON TRIAL BEGINS TO-DAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y., Feb. 16.—An adjourned term of the Supreme Court convened here to-day for the trial of Mrs. Cynthia Buffum and Ernest Frahm, who are under indictment on a charge of having murdered Mrs. Buffum's husband, who died last August. Mrs. Buffum is alleged to have confessed that she poisoned her husband and four children in order that she might be free to marry Frahm, who was employed on the Buffum farm.

BRITAIN HOLDS POTTERY FAIR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 16. — Although Staffordshire has for centuries produced more pottery than any other district in the world, the Pottery Fair which was opened at Stoke to-day is the first comprehensive exhibition of pottery ware ever held in the United Kingdom. Aroused by the enormous strides that the German pottery industry has made in recent years and the growth of its foreign exports, attributed largely to the display at the annual fair in Leipzig, the Staffordshire manufacturers decided to join in holding an exhibition of their own products.

Probabilities In Military Spheres

The military season will soon again have its advent. On all sides of the military life in Peterborough, Cavalry, Artillery, and Infantry, the military air is prevalent.

Perhaps the first to take action for the coming season's work are the men of the 3rd Dragoons, who, in the course of a day or two, will be under the charge of a sergeanti nstructor from Toronto, qualifying for ranks of N.C.O.'s. Major S. T. Medd, is a military enthusiast, and for the benefit of the squadron under his command, is prepared to sacrifice time and personal pleasure. It was through his instrumentality, that a course of Cavalry instruction for Peterborough and district was inaugurated. It was the intention at first, to send the men who wished to qualify for N.C.O.'s to the Military School in Toronto, but that course, was later found to be impracticable, as the number of applicants for courses, exceeded by far, the accommodation that was available in the school.

A standard of high efficiency is at all times maintained by this corps, which, it is generally acknowledged, is by far the smartest Cavalry Regiment in the Province. The Prince of Wales 3rd Dragoons in Canada, will, doubtless, maintain the name that they have already acquired.

The courses before mentioned, will be held at the local Armouries, probably two nights a week, and it is anticipated that a large number of the men of the Regiment will avail themselves of the opportunity which is presented and by which they may become familiar with, and attain to, the rank of Non-Commissioned Officer.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

SECOND TRIAL FOR MURDER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LA JUNTA, Colo., Feb. 16. — The case of Robert Harris, who is accused of having shot and killed two marshals at Rocky Ford in 1911, was called for trial here to-day. This is the second trial for Harris. At the first trial he was convicted and sentenced to death, but was finally granted a new trial by the Supreme Court.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR IS ENTERTAINED

St. Paul's choir were most delightfully entertained last night by Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Keyes, 773 Water Street. The house was charmingly decorated, and everything possible was done to render the evening a thoroughly enjoyable one by Mr. and Mrs. Keyes and their attentive helpers. After several novel competitions, games, songs and stories, an exceptionally dainty supper was served by the hostess, after which Mr. John Allan, the organist and choirmaster, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Keyes most heartily for so hospitably entertaining the choir, and said he doubted if it was known how much choirs were encouraged in their work by such kindly appreciation as had been shown them that evening.

After the singing, fortissimo, of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne," the happy guests wended their several ways homeward.

Gillett, King street, and is to be fitted up with modern heating, plumbing and lighting systems, such as will prove a credit to the village and a comfort to travellers.

DIVORCE DISCUSSED

W. B. Northrup Urges Simplification of Process

THE DEBATE IS ADJOURNED

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—A resolution calling for reform in Canadian divorce procedure, so as to give the poor people a better chance, was presented to the House of Commons last evening by W. B. Northrup, the Conservative member for East Hastings.

Mr. Northrup, in opening, said that Canada and Ireland were the only civilized countries in the world which granted divorces by act of Parliament. It had once been the practice in England to grant divorces in that way. But nearly 70 years ago divorce courts had been established and their procedure would be greatly cheapened and simplified as a result of the report of the royal commission of 1910. He did not advocate increasing the grounds for divorce or maintain that divorces should be granted at all, but there should either be no divorces or there should be divorces for rich and poor alike. As it was only people of considerable means could obtain a divorce in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In the other four provinces there were divorce courts.

"When a poor man comes to me and says that his wife has abandoned him and her children, and is living with another man in Watertown or Oswego, I can only advise him to get rich. The poor cannot get divorces in Canada."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said that as a Roman Catholic he was opposed to all divorce legislation. The deplorable condition of affairs in the United States should serve as a warning to Canada. In France the low birth rate was in part attributable to the divorce law of 1884, and there was a strong agitation for its modification or repeal.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) supported Mr. Northrup's motion.

Judge Doherty, Minister of Justice, reminded the House that the law of Canada did not recognize divorce at all. It was beside the question to talk of reforming our divorce procedure, or of conferring jurisdiction upon the judges. How could the judge grant divorces, unless Parliament first passed a law establishing the right to a divorce upon certain conditions therein prescribed? There was no inequality in the present system, because no person in the provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta had any legal right whatever to obtain a divorce. True, Parliament did at times pass private bills which had the effect of divorces, but they constituted exceptions to a universal rule to which he would be glad to have no exceptions hereafter.

Mr. Barnard (Victoria, B.C.) said the divorce courts of British Columbia worked satisfactorily. He moved an amendment that the whole subject be referred to a select committee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the effort seemed to be to make divorce easier. To this he was opposed. He thought the fewer divorces we had in this country the better.

Upon motion of the Prime Minister the debate was adjourned. Mr. Borden said that he could not quite agree with the Minister of Justice that Canada had no divorce procedure. People came here to get divorces from Parliament, just as in other countries they went to the courts. He thought that the proceedings were unnecessarily expensive and that many reforms might be introduced into our Parliamentary procedure, especially in the way of preventing collusion between the parties. However, all divorce bills originated in the Senate and the Senate committee was practically the divorce court. He therefore suggested a conference with the Senate and the appointment hereafter of a joint committee to investigate the whole question, not with the idea of establishing divorce courts but for the purpose of improving the Parliamentary procedure.

GUELPH FIRE CHIEF THREATENS TO RESIGN

GUELPH, Feb. 17.—Chief L. G. Finch, of the Guelph Fire Brigade, threatens to resign his position unless he receives an increase in salary. He is at present receiving $1,100 a year, which he claims is entirely inadequate considering the responsibility of his position, and is only $100 more than is received by the captain of the brigade. He claims to have received several offers from other places. The matter will likely be dealt with at the next meeting of the City Council. Chief Finch has been in Guelph for five years.

LESS DYSPEPSIA NOW —HERE'S THE REASON

The fact that there is less dyspepsia and indigestion in this community than there used to be is largely, we believe, due to the extensive use of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, hundreds of packages of which we have sold. Among other things, they contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe the inflamed stomach, allay pain, check heartburn and distress, help to digest the food, and tend to quickly restore the stomach to its natural, comfortable, healthy state.

There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. Your word is enough for us. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't restore your stomach to health and make your digestion easy and comfortable, we want you to come back for your money. TURNBULL'S

PERFECT SHOT WITH HIS LAST STONE SAVED SKIP FLAVELLE FROM A LOSS

Peterboro's Margin on Home Ice Was Wiped Out by the Score Against Them in Lindsay Yesterday Afternoon.

THE CUP GOES NORTH

Although Peterborough was up eight shot at the conclusion of the game with four Lindsay rinks on the Charlotte Street ice yesterday afternoon, Robt. Neill opened the silverware cabinet, brought forth the Peterborough-Lindsay mug and handed it over to J. D. Flavelle. Three cheers and an extra, rent the waiting room for the edification of the visitors, and Lindsay returned the compliment. You might have expected that the spoils would have gone to the victors, but the contemporaneous games in Lindsay where four local rinks were playing, gave the Scugog curlers 11 shots to the good and a net margin of three points. In other words the total for the eight local rinks was just three stones short, and the trophy rests in Lindsay for the year. The games were concluded here at 4.45 p.m., and the long distance 'phone secured the result of the play in Lindsay.

Flavelle-Morrow Contest.

The ice at the Charlotte Street rink was perfect for good curling, and the result was a big dose of skillful work by both clubs. Undoubtedly the most interesting struggle of the afternoon was staged on Ice No. 5, where George Morrow and J. D. Flavelle went sixteen ends to a draw. Every end was closely contested and a variety of methods were used. It looked like a win by two shots for the Morrow-W. H. Ferguson rink right up to the last stone. Flavelle's four took an early lead and on the 12th end were leading by four points. The 13th end gave the local rink four stones counting and tied it up. On the next two ends they secured a lead of two, and had the last end practically cinched with Flavelle only one stone to play. Of all the situations in the game it was one of the closest. Skip Morrow and Vice-Skip Ferguson had plunged away until Morrow and J. D. Flavelle went six-counter, practically onto the button, and seemed to have the end safely. He appeared to have sent the stone away loosely, but it lased along and stole into the inner ring, just shutting out a Lindsay counter.

Tied With Last Stone.

It was just one of those situations that makes curling the good old game it is. There have been ends with better guards out, but the setting needed a delicate handling, and it was up to the veteran Flavelle. His vice-skip, Dr. Brown gave him a draw to the Morrow stone. Flavelle skipped one along, just a little faster than the usual rate. It was a perfect shot. The Lindsay stone cut out Morrow's and left the visitors with two counters, and tied up that particular contest Not only that, but it practically saved the bacon for Lindsay on the day's play. It was fine curling, and quite a group of "fans" witnessed the finish. Harstone and Bob Sturgeon completed this rink. Doc. Brown, Lyons and Moynes gave Skip Flavelle capable assistance.

Morrow. . . . . .xx2x2x2xxx411x—12
Flavelle. . . . . .12x1x11x121xxx2—12

Neill's Good Start.

Over on Ice 7, Robt. Neill at one stage appeared to be walking away from Rev. Wallace. On the seventh end he was leading by seven shots and some of the men on the other Lindsay rinks were remarking that "Neill is giving the parson an awful lacing." The Reverend Skip stayed with it, however, and reduced the margin to two points. The score was as follows:

R. B. Rogers	J. A. Carroll
J. H. Ferguson	G. H. Matthie
Geo. Boucher	J. M. Knowlson
R Neill	Rev. Wallace

R. Neill. . . . . .1x11312x1x2xxx1x—13
Rev. Wallace . .x2xxxxx2x1x131x1—11

Came From Behind.

Harry Foote's rink got away to a bad start and were down 6 on the second end. They had not improved their positions at the sixth, but n ithe 7th they hit their stride and finished with a margin of three in their favour. Archie Moore, Frank Hughes and Alex. Archibald gave the skip able support.

A. Archibald	H. Beid
F. Hughes	Geo. Bell
A. Moore	A. Fisher
H. Foote	M. H. Sisson

Foote. . . . . .xx1x1x22x41x3xx2—16
Sisson. . . . . .33x1x1xx1xxx1x12x—12

Secured Safe Lead.

On Ice 5 Jack Fitzgerald's rink walked into a safe lead about the middle of their game and had fairly smooth sailing. They finished with a margin of three and with J. Connal, Ross Cameron and Percy Fitzgerald got away with a lot of nice curling. Reesor slipped in a couple of ends with three up toward the finish of the game that cut down a comfortable lead, but the Lindsay rink was on the job all the time. Wm. Needler, second stone, was probably the oldest player on the ice.

Score by ends:

Reesor . . . . .x311xxxxx211x3x3—15

Eleven Down in Lindsay.

On the Lindsay ice, S. T. Medd was down 3 shots to Little; T. Brightman lost to Gregory by the score of 12 to 20; Dick Davidson was down 5 to Carew. W. H. Taylor defeated "Dickey" Butter by 21 to 16, showing the locals down 11 on the Lindsay rink.

INTERESTING PRESENTATION TO BISHOP O'BRIEN

Of An Address and Purse, on the 30th Anniversary of the Inception of St. Peter's C.M.B.A.

THE ADDRESS

An interesting presentation took place at the T. A. S. rooms last night, when His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was presented with an address and a purse of gold, by the members of the C. M. B. A., being the thirtieth anniversary of that society. The main hall was the scene of the first part of the programme, where approximately two hundred members had assembled to witness the presentation. After the address of welcome of the Chairman, a short musical programme was rendered, the following being the numbers:

Violin solo, Mr. James Collins.
Solo, Mr. Joe Minicola.
Solo, Mr. Eddie Hanrahan.

The following address was then presented to Bishop O'Brien, by Mr. J. J. Lynch:

The Address.

My Lord,—On this, the thirtieth anniversary of the inception of St. Peter's Branch No. 30 of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, directly connected with St. Peter's Parish, together with the membership of the recently formed Branch No. 509 in the Sacred Heart Parish.

We, as members of said association, unitedly deem it a fitting opportunity to extend to your Lordship our fraternal greetings, and further convey our most hearty congratulations on your recent elevation and consecration as Bishop of the Diocese of Peterborough.

We also at the present time beg to recall to your memory a brief outline of your ministry in behalf of the Catholic citizens in the above respective parishes.

In taking a retrospective glance it seems but a brief period of time since your Lordship knelt before the altar in St. Peter's Cathedral to be ordained a priest of our Holy Mother Church.

Immediately following your ordination you became an associate priest to St. Peter's Cathedral. During this period of several years of ministry, teaching and preaching, your several duties were faithfully fulfilled. Your life has been one of self denial, Christian practice, zeal in the interests of God and His Holy Church. Ever ready in storm and sunshine, in the midnight darkness or noonday light, to speed to the bedside of the dying to administer the last rites of the Church.

Your hand outstretched and purse ever open to the poor and needy, willing at all times to help by advice or otherwise anyone coming to you for assistance, and living always a truly Christian life, as befits a priest of God. You have been ever alert in looking after the welfare of the youthful in order that they might receive a good, sound, religious and secular education.

My Lord, there are many individuals and households in St. Peter's parish, as well as the Sacred Heart, that has just cause to thank you for your foresight and perseverance in bringing to such a successful issue the cause of total abstinence. It speaks out from various surroundings with a mighty sound and an echo from afar as a magnificent work, efficiently and faithfully done.

Owing to increased population, the Church of the Sacred Heart was erected in the southern portion of our City, and to this new parish you were appointed parish priest. Here you applied yourself with energy, thereby displaying your tireless efforts for the goodof the people placed under your spiritual care. By your many kindly acts you endeared yourself in a special manner to all classes. Here also was your efforts successful in greatly reducing the debt in a very agreeable manner.

We might be permitted to say that here in the surroundings of the Cathedral See there are several institutions that come under your Lordship's direct care, viz., St. Joseph's Hospital, where the sick and afflicted are properly treated; the House of Providence, where the old, infirm and unfortunate receive necessary care and attention; and the dear St. Vincent's Orphanage, where the sweet innocence of the orphan and the tender years of childhood are trained, cared for and looked after, so that they will later on prove good and useful members of society.

We herewith desire to pass to your Lordship a cheque for the sum of $150.00 to be applied as you think best.

My Lord, apparently your mission to the Sacred Heart was of a temporary nature. For there was awaiting you a higher call in God's holy work, and the glad tidings arrived from the Holy See naming and appointing you as Bishop where your higher ideas and administrative abilities might be applied in a more judicious manner.

We may say that your life has been a series of good works. We know and feel that your many services to the Church should receive its just reward. Your learning and talents has received worthy recognition. The distinguished honour whereby you have received the mitre, is well deserved and will be ably and worthily worn.

We beg that you accept from us our good will in mememory of this C.M.B.A. anniversary and trust and hope that the God whom you have so well served will shower His blessings upon you and the various duties pertaining to your mission as Bishop.

Signed on behalf of our association.

M. H. Quinlan, Henry McDonald, J. Christopher, Geo. O'Hearne, H. Carveth, Geo. Ball, John Trombley, Claude Brady, M. Lynch and J. J. Lynch.

In reply, His Lordship thanked the members of the Society for the kind consideration shown to him. He referred particularly to the necessity of any person carrying beneficial insurance, in a society such as the C. M. B. A., emphasizing it as one of the chief factors of the day, that such precaution should be taken, so as to insure security.

Father McGoll and Father McAuley of the Sacred Heart Parish, also applied a few remarks to the same subject.

The assembly then retired to the hall above, where an excellent banquet had been prepared, under the supervision of Mr. J. Trombly. After all had done justice to the requirements of the inner man, dancing was indulged in, the music, which was of a very fine nature, being supplied by Messrs. Asa Huycke and J. Wilson.

Mr. Huycke also sang in his usual excellent manner, during an interval. Of the money that was presented to His Lordship, a cheque for $50 was diverted to the funds of St. Vincent's Orphanage, while a further sum of $100 was given over to the fund of building the new Church in East City. The party broke up about 1 o'clock, after a very pleasant evening had been spent.

A Tribute To Lawrence Irving

Laurence Sidney Brodribb Irving, who will appear here at the Grand Opera House under the auspices of the British-Canadian Theatre Organization Society, is without a shadow of a doubt the greatest living English actor. He is the younger son of the late Sir Henry Irving. He was born in Wharfedale Street, London, S.W., and was god-fathered by Irving's greatest friend, J. L. Toole, whose name he bears

Laurence Irving and his elder brother, H.B., were educated at first at a day-school in Hereford Square, then went as weekly boarders in Linton House School, Notting Hill Gate, whence they migrated to Marlborough College where Laurence had the dubious privilege of being the youngest boy in the school.

He remained at Marlborough College for six years. From Marlborough College he went for a year to the College Rollin in Paris, and naturally very quick at languages he rapidly became a very brilliant French scholar. From Paris he went over to Russia, and in Petersburg spent three of the happiest years of his life. And there were sown the seeds of a play which many have spoken of as a work of genius, his play "Peter The Great," produced by Sir Henry Irving at the Lyceum Theatre.

It was in St. Petersburg he made his first essay in a grown up part, when he played for the first time the part of "David Garrick" at the Conservatoire of Music. It may have been the success he obtained at this performance, or it may have been an inborn love of the theatre that determined young Irving to throw diplomacy to the winds, and don the "sock and buskin." Following his father's advice to begin at the bottom, and not, as so many of our young people of to-day are fond of doing, at the top, young Irving joined that well-known nursery of good actors, F. R. Benson's company, under the name of Mr. Laurence. As "Mr. Laurence" he played the humble role of one of the awkward servants in "She Stoops to Conquer," and other parts, at the modest salary of thirty shillings a week. Following this experience he joined his god-father, J. L. Toole, and appeared in a one act farce by Pinero, called "Daisy's Escape," as a comic young man in a red wig. He was considered then a little odd and eccentric, and it was on tour that he made his first big success as "Svengali" in the first flush of "Trilby's" enormous vogue.

During all this time he was writing, still writing, for Laurence Irving is dramatist as well as actor. The first play of his produced was a one-act tragedy called "God and Vol," written before he was twenty, of which the late Edward Terry spoke as a work of genius. His play "Peter The Great" associated him first in the theatre of with his father, and from then he spent valuable years learning all that can be learned of stage-management from the greatest producer of his age.

Not only did Laurence Irving find his stage mentor in his father's company, but he also found there his charming life partner, Miss Mabel Hackney, who joined the company to play small parts and boys, and ended by becoming Sir Henry's leading lady, and marrying Sir Henry's younger son. Having thus found a leading lady, in his wife, he started off in management on his own with that charming love idyll "Richard Lovelace," another play which I still think will be seen in London.

Now came a time of many rebuffs for Laurence Irving.

Theatre managers in London would give him nothing, and in despair he turned to the Music Halls to earn money to allow him to put on "The Unwritten Law," which every prominent manager in London had refused. No sooner had he signed a long contract with the Music Halls than Mr. Charles Frohman engaged him to create the part of the young English nobleman in "Raffles" at the Comedy Theatre, a part in which he scored a great success, and it was with the money he had made from this engagement, and from his Music Hall engagements both in England and America, that Laurence Irving, who has a peculiar knack of attaining his ends in the long run, produced the much rejected play "The Unwritten Law," and from that moment his high status as an actor was placed beyond question both by the press and the public.

His subsequent creations, of the "Comte de Maigny" in "The Lily," "Iago" a His Majesty's, "King Skule" in "The Pretenders," and finally his inimitable impersonation of the Japanese doctor of letters in "Typhoon" have placed him in a position amongst the younger actors of to-day that is certainly second to none.

TOOL ROOM EASILY BEAT THE TEST AND NOW THREE TEAMS ARE TIED FOR TITLE

Manager Cassidy's Aggregation Decisively Out-played Test, Winning by 9 Goals to 1 With the Half Time Score 5 to 0.

WINNERS IN GREAT FORM

The Tool Room team, heroes of many a hard fought Mercantile League game, came through with a decisive victory over the Test last night, and as a result the two C.G.E. teams and the Bankers are sewed up in a three cornered tie for the championship.. The Tool Room seven won going away by 9 goals to 1 and beat the heavier Test team all over the ice. Individually and as a team the superiority of the Tool Room was clearly demonstrated. The pony forward line had too much speed for their heavier opponents and played them off their feet, covering them from one end of the rink to the other when the Test were in possession and easily breaking away from their checks and working in with neat combination when on the attack. The Test were checked every inch of the way, and although they gave Cassidy considerable work, their shots were for the most part from outside and they rarely had an uncovered shot. On the other hand the Tool Room got right inside and heaved their shots at Dwyer from a few feet out. He made half a dozen spectacular saves in the second half, but with the Cassidy gang in on top of him, he had little chance. The great checking back of the Tool Room demoralized the Test and they were never given a chance to get going. In spite of the large score it was about the best Mercantile League game of the season and had the good sized crowd on their feet all the way. It was fast and snappy and the pace never let up. The Tool Room led at the half 5 to 0 and scored another in the second half before the Test got their solitary counter. The winners wound up with three in a row. The game was splendidly handled by Referee Len Dobson. Considerable money changed hands as a result of the battle.

For the Tool Room Barrie and Jackson were the stars; in fact they were the best pair on the ice. The two worked together beautifully and each of them tore off some dazzling individual rushes. One magnificent rush by Jackson through the whole Test team for a score was the individual feature of the night. The Tool Room were two men short at the time. Primeau and Cranfield completed a snappy forward line and both checked back magnificently. Kelly's rushing was of much assistance and McGrath did some great checking. Manager Cassidy in the nets contributed a grand performance, tearing off some great saves. The only one that beat him was from close in.

The Test Room were covered up so completely that they got but little chance to shine. MacDougal and Carter were probably the pick of the advance guard. Although nine shots beat him, Dwyer did some grand work in the nets and saved his team a worse beating by nipping the shot after the Tool Room had got inside his defence.

The teams were:

Tool Room		Test
	Goal
Cassidy		Dwyer
McGrath		McKean
	Defence
Kelly		Breckinreid
	Rover
Barrie		MacDougal
	Centre
Jackson		Carter
	Right Wing
Primeau		Boone
	Left Wing
Cranfield		Munro

From the start the Tool Room checked back splendidly and the Test were given little chance to break away. They had several shots from well out which Cassidy easily blocked and then the Tool Room drove them back and Dwyer had to kick out two or three in quick succession. Then Barrie dodged inside on a pretty rush and fooled the Test guardian for the first counter. Shortly after Cranfield took Dwyer's measure on a side shot for Goal No. 2. Barrie added another shortly after. He shot from well out and his drive was going high. In trying to stop it Dwyer pulled the puck down into the nets and the score was 3 to 0. Then Jackson got away and skating around the Test defence went in on top of Dwyer and scored again. Shortly before half time Primeau shoved one through in a scrimmage and the Tool Room went in for their rub down with a five goal lead. They added another in the second half when Cranfield and Jackson got away together, and the latter scored from the mouth of the net on a pass from the former. Then the Test broke into the scoring column, Carter doing the trick. Kelly got it back with a rink length rush that wound up in a neat goal. Shortly after, with McGrath and Kelly both on the fence, Jackson flashed through the Test defence and scored again after a spectacular run. Primeau bagged the last goal on a side shot from a scrimmage. Dwyer came out and saved several times in great fashion, blocking several sure goals.

The summary:

1 Tool Room, Barrie.
2 Tool Room, Cranfield.
3 Tool Room, Barrie.
4 Tool Room, Jackson.
5 Tool Room, Primeau.
Half Time—
6 Tool Room, Jackson.
7 Test Room, Carter.
8 Tool Room, Kelly.
9 Tool Room, Jackson.
10 Tool Room, Primeau.

OSHAWA AND KINGSTON ARE TIED ON ROUND

KINGSTON, Feb. 16.—The O. H. H. A. Junior Frontenacs won from Oshawa here this evening by a score of 6 to 3, thus tieing the two teams on the round. The play-off will likly take place in Belleville, as the rule calls for the replay to be on neutral ice.

WIARTON PUT RIVERSIDES OUT

WIARTON, Feb. 16.—The Wiarton rink, one of the largest in Western Ontario, was filled to its utmost capacity to-night to witness the return semi-final O. H. A. intermediate game between the Wiarton and Toronto Riverside teams. Scores of people could not obtain admission. The game was admittedly very fast, and was easily in favour of Wiarton. The checking of the home team completely broke up the combination of the Kiversides and their skating was faster. The first half was hard fought throughout, but ended 8 to 1 in favour of Wiarton, and the total score was 10 to 2 in favour of the home team.

A CHALLENGE FOR THE LOCAL INTERMEDIATES

If the Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team is willing a game will be staged in the near future for the City Championship. Eugene Hurauibise has collected a line-up that he thinks can make the Petes step to town and he has asked the Examiner to challenge the O. H. A. team to a game for the City title. Gene's team will be known as the Outlaws, and he has announced the following line-up:

Goal, Dwyer.
Defence—Spratt, Reynolds.
Rover—Giroux.
Centre, Rose.
Right wing, Kenenally.

MAY SETTLE THE CITY LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

The battle of the season will be played in the City League to-morrow night ,when the Boston Exploits and Y.M.C.A. clash for the second time. A win for the Exploits will give them the League championship, while a "Y" victory means that the two teams will be tied up. Last time out the Exploits won 6 to 1, but the red and black team say they were off colour on that occasion. They have certainly shown a big improvement since, and if the ice is hard, as it promises to be, Manager Gettas' team will know they have been in a game. It will be a battle royal between two fast and well-trained teams and will undoubtedly attract a big crowd. The Exploits and "Y" will play the opening game at 8.10 o'clock, while the Alerts and Wanderers will clash in the second game.

SOME DOPE ON THE ALL STAR OLD BOYS

The team of Peterborough Old Boys who will play the local Intermediates here on Saturday night is a pretty classy aggregation, and a line-up with these boys wearing the Peterborough uniform once more would throw the fans into a delirium of delight. Most of the players were brought out by local junior clubs in the last four or five years, and would look mighty sweet wearing a blue and white uniform again.

Leo Derocher, the goalkeeper of the team, started with the T. A. S. in the old City League, and was afterwards with the Auburns and Strathconas in the same League, breaking into the O. H. A. when the Strathconas represented the City in the Ontario organization. From then until last year Derocher was the regular goalkeeper of the Petes. In the fall of 1912 he went to Syracuse, and after playing for some time with the team of that city, went to Ottawa and finished the season with Ottawa College. He is still making his home in Ottawa, and was with the Collegians on their United States invasion this season.

Frank Heffernan, one of the best players Peterborough has turned out, started with the T.A.S. City League team, but first came into the limelight three years ago as the star defence man of the local Junior O.H.A. team. In the same year he made his Intermediate O.H.A. debut, showing great form in the game with Lindsay The year after he went to Ottawa College, where he won fresh laurels Last season he was the star of the T R. and A. A. team, Senior O. H. A champions, and he is with the same team this season.

Harold Matthews, who will be on the defence with Heffernan against the Petes in the benefit game, broke into O.H.A. company at the same time as "Heff" on the local Junior O. H. A. team, playing good hockey at left wing for the Grillers. The next season he entered the Royal Military College, Kingston, and is playing defence for the Cadets this season.

Harold Morrow, who will be used for part of the game on the defence, started with the Peterborough Juniors last season, and gave a good account of himself. This year he is with the Royal Bank team in the Toronto Bank League, having been transferred to Toronto too late to participate in O.H.A. games.

Harold Parker, who will also be seen in action on Saturday night, is another Peterborough boy who has gone to the front in the hockey world He learned his hockey with the Midgets here, but two years ago moved to Hamilton. He played his first O.H.A. hockey with the Hamilton Juniors last year, and this season was captain and the star of the same team.

Ken. Crane, who will play rover tarted his hockey career with Jack Thirnbeck's famous little ponies, the "Chieftains." His first O. H. A. hockey was with the local Collegiate in the Junior O. H. A. series, and the same season he played with the West Ends in the City League. Transferrd to Toronto by his bank, Crane played the following season with the Simcoes of Toronto in the Junior O. H. A. series. He was with the Stratford Seniors for a season, and this season was moved back to Toronto too late to qualify for the O. H.A. He has been playing in the Bank League and exhibition games with the Argonaut Seniors.

Hugh Burritt, centre for the All Star Old Boys, also commenced with the Chieftains, and, like Crane, played his first O.H.A. hockey with the Collegiate. That season he played centre for the Strathconas in the City League, and was the sensation of the League, scoring twenty-eight goals for the champions. With Crane he was a member of the Toronto Simcoes the following season. Two years ago he was moved to Seaforth, and was the star of the junior team of that town which reached the semi-finals Last season he was in Winnipeg and caught a place on the line up of the fast Victorias. This year he is with the Senior Argonauts of Toronto, as well as with the Dominion Bank team in the Bank League.

Pete Campbell, right wing, and originator of the benefit game, is a Peterborough boy, who has won great fame as a rugby player, and is also a hockey player of ability. He was on the line-up of the Trinity College School team for several years, and has played with the Varsity Junior and Senior teams, accompanying the latter on their tour of the United States this season.

Harry Clancy, left wing, was a member of the Bear Cats two years ago, and was one of the stars of the line-up. Before that he was in the Mercantile League. At the end of the season two years ago Clancy was moved to Seaforth by his bank, and was counted upon by the Seaforth team last season. Just before the O.H A. season opened he was moved into Toronto, to play in the Bank League and he was with the champion Dominion Bank team, of which he is still a member.

These boys will all be seen in action against the Petes in the benefit game for Charley Ray on Saturday night. It is certainly a well-balanced team, with a good goalkeeper, a heavy fast defence, and speedy line combining good stick-handling and shooting, and the ability to play combination. Here is the line-up:

Goal—Derocher (Ottawa College).
Rover—Crane (Argonauts).
Centre—Burritt (Argonauts).
Right wing—Campbell (Varsity).
Left wing—Clancy (Toronto Bank League).

Hockey—That's All

In a fast game of hockey on Saturday morning on the Brock Street Rink, between 9 and 10 o'clock, the Sacred Heart School defeated St. Peter's by a score of 1-0. The half-time score was 1-0. The stars for the Sacred Heart were Murray, Kennaley and McCarney, while Murty, Quinn and Sheehan were the stars for the losers. Murray scored the only goal. The line-ups were as follows:

Sacred Heart — Goal, Neary; defence, Dove and Ranger; rover, Murray; right wing, Coursey; left wing, Kennaley.

St. Peter's — Goal, Theobald; defence, Wolfe and Sheehan; rover, Quinn; centre, Heffernan; right wing, O'Donnel; left wing, Murty.

BROWNS ARE OFF FOR THEIR TRAINING CAMP

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 14.—An initial push was given the base ball season to-day with the departure of a squad of the St. Louis Brown for the spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. Manager Rickey was in charge of the party, which included more than a dozen of the young players. The veterans will follow in about tend ays and by the last week of this month it is expected that the entire list of players reserved by the club will be on duty and ready for the warming-up practice. The club will remain at St. Petersburg for several weeks and will then play exhibition games through the South and Central West until the championship season is opened in April.

BASEBALL

Brantford Expositor: An announcement of more than usual interest of baseball fans was made at the Old Home Week meeting, at the city hall. It was given out by President T. J. Nelson of the local ball club, who stated that he had arrangements well under way for the bringing here of the major league teams to play an exhibition game with the Red Sox during Old Home Week. The announcement was received with applause, and it will undoubtedly be good news to the ball fans of the city —and they constitute the major portion of the residents, it can be safely said.

Incidentally, President Nelson, commenting on the fact that Rube Deneau would be manager of the Red Sox this year, said: "We have added the head to the tail. We hope soon to have a body to it." Here's hoping that it will not turn out to be a white hope!

Petes Have Four Hold-outs

Sterling, Tracey, Cresswell and Byrne Want More Money

So far the Peterborough Baseball Club has not received a signed contract from any of last year's team, although contracts were sent out some weeks ago. The management is not worrying any, however, and expects to get the documents back before the call to spring training comes. Four of the players, Pitchers Sterling, Tracey and Cresswell, and Third baseman Byrne are holdouts, and have written the Club intimating that they would like to find a few bits of Canadian currency in their envelopes every two weeks. The players under reserve or under contract to the Peterborough Club just now are:

Pitchers—Ken Tracey, Stan Cresswell, Knut Belting, Bob Sterling, Louis Scheletter.

Infielders—Joe Byrne, Frank Fox, Eddie Price.

Outfielders—Manager Curley Blount Willie Swartz.

Catcher—Elphege Chapdelaine.

Eddie Price Last Year With Youngstown and Fond du Lac is Signed

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 16 —Eddie Price, a local boy, who played with the Steelmen last year until the disbandment of the League, and who finished the season with Marty Hogan's Fond du Lac Club, has signed a contract to play with the Peterborough Club of the Canadian League for next year, which is managed by Curly Blount. Curly secured Eddie's signature to a contract Saturday night, and he will report in April, to play shortstop. With the experience he gained last year, Price should make a valuable addition to Curly's club.

SIXTY HURT IN A WRECK

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 17—Sixty persons were hurt, some very seriously, when the Kansas City-St. Louis flyer side-swiped the Memphis train at Nichols' Junction.

WANTS TO COME TO CANADA

The immigration season will soon again be opened. The local Immigration Officer, Mr. J. W. Miller, reports that already the farmers are filing their applications for help and a busy season is expected.

Last year, many of the people who came to this district, with the object of taking up employment with local farmers, refused to do so when they saw the facilities offered in the city.

This difficulty will be overcome this year, as employment in the cities will be a great deal slacker than has formerly been the case, and many, who would prefer working in the cities, will doubtless be induced to take positions on the farms.

The tide of immigrants at this time of the year is insignificant, although an occasional straggler may be found at the immigration offices. But by the end of the coming months the work of providing situations for newcomers will be in full swing. Communications are frequently being received from interested parties in Europe who intend to make Peterborough their centre of activities.

That the better class of people desire to come to Canada is shown in a communication received recently by Mr. Miller, from a firm of London lawyers, who applied to the Immigration Officer to ascertain whether or not he can place the son of a wealthy client on a farm in this vicinity with the object of gaining a knowledge of Canadian farming.

It is expected that an accommodation in this respect will soon be made.

J. J. DUFFUS SR. SELLING STOCK AND IMPLEMENTS

Bills have been posted announcing the sale on Thursday Feb. 20, of the stock and implements of the farm of J. J. Duffus & Sons, lot 25, con. 11 Otonabee. It is understood that Mr and Mrs. Duffus and family are taking up residence in Peterborough. The goods for sale comprise an extensive list.

MR. W. SCOTT, EAST CITY ATTENDED THE CONVENTION

Wm. Scott of the Peterborough Cold Storage Co. attended the annual meeting of the Canadian Produce Association held in Toronto yesterday. It was decided to again enforce the "loss-off" in the purchase of eggs this year.

The reports presented showed that during June and July the average discard of inferior eggs in thirty dozen case lots ranged from one dozen to two and a half dozen per case, for which the shipper received absolutely nothing. When the system was launched a few years ago the produce dealers experienced considerable difficulty in convincing the farmers as to the importance of the ordinance, but the results attained last year showed conclusively that the system was practical and could be operated in the interests of all concerned. Under the present system the produce concerns reserve the right to refuse to pay for rotten or inferior eggs or eggs unfit for use in any sphere.

CHARTER TO A NEW RAILWAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—The Railway Committee of the Commons this morning granted a charter to an ambitious railway project in Western Canada. It will start 30 or 40 miles north of Prince Rupert and extend eastward to the Ground Hog coal deposit, the only deposits of smokeless coal suitable for the British navy on the Pacific.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Live Stock Market.—Receipts fair, trade slow, prices little changed from yesterday. Hogs fed and watered $9.35 to $9.50, off cars $9.65 to $9.75, f.o.b. $9.15 to $9.25.

AN UNDESIRABLE CHANGE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I notice in your columns a faint reflection of the feelings of deep disappointment and indignation which are being freely expressed apparently on all sides, in regard to the proposed removal of the Post Office. Of course it is difficult to write letters to the papers, which not all can do, but the feelings are there.

From Mr. Burnham's letter it would appear that a large responsibility rests on the Mayor and Council, and we look to them to consider the interests and convenience of citizens of 1914 for whom they were elected to act as well as those of 1954 who may be looked to, to take care of themselves according to the needs of that time which we can hardly anticipate.

Citizens have become thoroughly accustomed to the present site which is central to the business portion of the City, where people naturally congregate from all parts, enabling them to do Post Office business in connection with their shopping. Moreover, it is understood that the present carefully-chosen site was the result of an understanding with residents of Ashburnham, instead of giving them a separate post office. Why should it be necessary to combine the Post Office and Customs House? If so, it is said that the adjoining property can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

It must be remembered that business and professional men have the greatest interest in being near to the Post Office, and the proposed site, next to a factory and the River, will bring it nearer to few more people, while taking it away from the beaten track of many.

It is urged that whatever site be chosen there is bound to be criticism. Will there not be less dissatisfaction if the present site be retained, or (that being impracticable) if one in the vicinity be secured?

Yours truly,
Citizen.

SHOULD PROTEST

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—(Re Post Office)—I hope there will be a largely signed petition of the citizens of Peterborough to the Council against the removal of the present post office on Hunter Street. It is an absurdity to think of removing from the present site; not only that, but the idea of having a post office down near the C. P. R. station is a down-right shame. Our present office will suffice for this place for the next 25 years. Thanking you for this space in your paper.

Yours, etc.,
James Stewart.

ONLY OXY-ACETYLENE PLANT IS AT ROLLIE WILSON'S SHOP

Generates a Heat of 2,700 Degrees and is a Feature of His Complete Machine Repair Shop—A Growing Concern.

HAS "EVENRUDE" AGENCY

One of the City's growing industries is the Peterborough Machine and Lubricating Company, located in the former Roller Rink Building on George Street, between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie Streets. Its development is principally due to the ability and progressiveness of Mr. E. R. Wilson, the proprietor, who is looking forward to and has prepared for the biggest year he has yet experienced.

The present plant has been occupied since some time in 1913, and is thoroughly equipped for all kinds of machine jobbing and repair work, sheet metal press work, manufacturing special machinery and allied work. Special attention is given to the repairing of automobiles. Everything necessary for prompt and thorough attention has been provided.

The building has a floor space of 7,500 square feet, and is divided into two sections, one of which is used for the handling and storing of automobiles. In the north section there is a complete machine shop with lathes, shaping, drilling, milling, grinding and forging machines. Part of this floor is devoted to the press department, with machines ranging from 300 tons down.

HAS OXY-ACETYLENE PLANT.

The shop equipment presents the only oxy-acetylene welding plant in the City. By means of its flame a heat of 2,700 degrees is attained. Most readers are familiar with the working of this blazing jet, although they may not have seen it in operation. Breaks in iron castings are welded together and allowed to cool in lime, thus preventing the weld from becoming brittle. The gas is containing in tanks at 1,500 pounds pressure and the oxygen at 2,200 pounds to the square inch. The machine unites and controls these gases and reduces the pressure to about 45 pounds for the acetylene and 10 to 15 pounds for the oxygen.

A great deal of work for the big manufacturing concerns of the City is brought to this particular appliance, which saves the cost of a new casting.

By the use of large or small torches, of which there are seven sizes, work, both small and large can be handled. It is a decidedly interesting operation to witness the welding of a piece of iron which has been broken. The blue flames from the two gases reduce the broken ends to a molten mass and permit their reunion, and their use is extended to brass and other minerals.

Threading and trimming machines are found in the press department, and although conditions are generally quiet, there was a decided hum of industry about the plant this afternoon.

GASOLINE ENGINES.

Mr. Wilson turns out his own 2 cycle marine engine, which is extensively used, and is also agent for the Kermath engine and the Evenrude, which is now being widely advertised. It can be attached to square stern skiffs and other craft. It is a simple and highly satisfactory machine for the propulsion of these craft.

Mr. Wilson has a full supply of automobile and motor boat accessories for the accommodation of his patrons. His repair work is extending widely into this district, and the shop has been busy with all kinds of work, quite a percentage of it coming from the country. His manufacturing of special machinery includes a new advertising machine which he is turning out for a Toronto firm.

All told it is a decidedly busy plant, and as the year opens up it will have increased work to handle. Mr. Wilson has built up a reputation for carefulness, and personal consideration that has proved a big asset.
